Thinking Big and Small.
Your Share Is $3,000.
Meat and Alcohol Win.
Christianity Improves.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HENRY FORD will say in Capper's Magazine for April that "it is just as easy to think big as it is to think small."

It is, after you get a start. For instance, in 1859, 71 years ago, John D. Rockefeller, who began working as office boy for $15 a month, started for himself as a commission man. He began "thinking big." He had accumulated $17,000 in 1862 and took a partner, Maurice B. Clark. They invested their money in a crude oil "refinery" in Cleveland.

THAT was the beginning of "thinking big."

In 1865, Mr. Rockefeller, who is now approaching his ninety-first birthday and was then 26, bought out his partner for $72,500. Standard Oil Corporation papers were signed on January 10, 1870. Standard Oil is now 60 years old.

John D. Rockefeller has been "thinking big" ever since.

HIS best "big thinking" has been devoted to the fight against disease. Instead of using a few dollars to relieve individual cases, he uses tens of millions to eliminate diseases permanently.

THE National Industrial Conference Board tells you that the wealth of the United States amounts to three hundred sixty billions, one hundred million.

It sounds a lot, but it is only $3,000 for each American, with about $500 extra for New Yorkers. That isn't enough.

If a healthy black slave in 1860 was worth on the auction block $1,000, what is the value of an American, willing to work, and able ordinarily to earn at least $5 a day.

HUMAN machines, alone, leaving out mines, real estate, factories, are worth more than three hundred and sixty billions.

This land and its people are worth whatever science and industry choose to produce—certainly not mere billions, but trillions.

IN INDIA, Hindus and Mohammedans fight, the Hindus, women included, getting the worst of it. Mohammedans looted Hindu shops, burned Hindu homes.

THE Hindus live on vegetables and drink water.

Mohammedans eat meat and drink water — their prophet won't let them drink alcohol. With their meat diet, they beat the Hindus.

The British, thousands of miles away, eat meat AND drink beer, wine and spirits. And they beat both Hindus and Mohammedans.

Find the moral in that.

THANKS to Senator Borah, whom the Russian government seems to respect, eleven of fourteen rabbis, in danger of execution, have been guaranteed their lives.

The other three are still uncertain.

Protestants and Catholic dignitaries are striving to save the Rabbis, accused of organizing opposition to Russia's government.

THE Russians cynically remark that this showed improvement in Christianity, since, not very long ago, Protestants and Catholics were both engaged in persecuting Jews and killed many, often to get their money from them.

SECRETARY LAMONT, of the Department of Commerce, learns that 75 per cent of business failures are due to carelessness.

Mr. Solomon, who owns forty beauty parlors, asked:

"Is that a good business?" replied: "It's a good business if you know how to manage it. But any business is a rotten business if you don't know how to manage it."

Personally, as he will tell you, Mr. Solomon pays more attention to business than to beauty.

LADY ASTOR, who talks sweetly on the radio, warns you that another big war "probably would end Western civilization."

Perhaps it would. Probably not. It would kill millions with poison gas, destroy billions in property.

But it would act very quickly, as the "black death" did, when it killed nearly half the population of Europe.

THE victims would be in the big cities, where gas and airplanes can reach crowded populations conveniently.

After the surrender of a nation taken by surprise, the country would again reconstruct what we call "civilization."

It would be necessary to end scientific knowledge to end civilization. Merely killing people would not do it. Human beings have been killing each other for 1,000,000 years.

WHAT a man really wants to do, he can do.

Martin Jensen, using the first plane turned out by his factory in Pennsylvania, flew backwards and upside down against a 40-mile wind on Long Island yesterday.

No bird has ever done that, although birds have been flying a long time.

TAXES may be bigger.

President Hoover warns Congress that it is inclined to spend money too freely. An increase of 40 per cent in taxes might follow any too liberal appropriations.

TAXI PARLEY DISCUSSES PEACE

Owners and Strikers Confer In Secret With Mayor, Hopeful of Settlement

Today's peace conference in the taxicab drivers' strike—first of renewed efforts by Mayor Charles H. Kline to end the walkout—was to resume in the Mayor's office late this afternoon.

At the conclusion of this morning's two-hour session, the participants adjourned for lunch. They made no statement as to whether progress had been made toward settling the 44-day-old walkout of drivers.

SESSIONS IN SECRET

"Mayor Kline is working hard to bring the cab companies and the men together," said Attorney Leonard A. Mazer, who, with the executive committee of the drivers, represented the 1,400 men on strike.

Representatives of the drivers had suggested prior to the morning meeting that newspapermen be admitted, but aparently this did not meet with favor and the conference was held behind closed doors.

Before entering the conference room, Attorney C. K. Robinson, counsel for the Parmelee Corporation, said the meeting was being held at the request of the men.

BOTH SIDES FIRM

"The request for this conference came from the men through Mayor Kline," said Robinson. "At the end of yesterday's conference with our company, Mayor Kline said that the men had asked for a meeting at 11 a. m. today. We accordingly arranged to be present, and made arrangements so that the management of the properties could be available if developments made this necessary."

Although neither side indicated a desire to deviate from its previously announced stand on the matter of recognition of the cab drivers' newly organized union, the city's chief executive expressed hope that differences of opin-

KENNA'S TANK SEIZED IN TUBE

Harry Bath, 32, of 2013 Shadeland avenue, driver for the Peoples Service Station, owned by Edward M. Kenna, road division superintendent, was arrested today for driving a tank truck loaded with gasoline through the Liberty tubes.

Lieut. Jack Eckert, of the County police, arrested Bath at the city end of the tubes as he was taking gasoline from the service station to the county garage. The tanks contained 500 gallons of gas, Eckert said.

Bath was arrested for violating the state auto laws, a provision of which prohibits the passage of gasoline-filled tank trucks through the tubes. The information was made before Alderman John Kearcher, South Thirteenth street.

SNOOK TO DIE FRIDAY; LAST PLEA LOST

U. S. Supreme Court Refuses To Review Case of Ohio Professor Who Killed Coed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—James Howard Snook, the Ohio State University professor under sentence of death on February 28 for the murder of Theora Hix, today was denied a review by the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court yesterday waived its rules and permitted the filing of the petition asking a review after Justice McReynolds, in charge of the circuit in which Ohio is located, had refused to take action.

The action of the court today apparently removes the last hope of Snook for a judicial review of his conviction. Gov. Cooper, of Ohio, recently refused to stay the execution.

While the court gave no reason for its action, the assumption was that it held that it did not have jurisdiction.

The plea to the high court for Snook was made by E. O. Ricketts and Arthur M. Spiegel, attorneys, after the Ohio State Supreme Court had set today to hear a motion for a stay of execution.

Wheat Prices Crash, Then Rebound

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—AP.)—Wheat prices crashed down below the dollar mark today in a panicky drop five cents below yesterday's figures and then as sensationally rebounded in the last hour of trading to finish at ⅝ cent decline to ⅜ cent advance.

The final quotations were: March, $1.04¼; May, $1.08½ to ⅞; July, $1.10½ to ½, and September, $1.13½ to ¾.

The trade generally attributed the spectacular break to the refusal of the Farmers National Grain Corporation to purchase cash wheat from other holders than co-operatives affiliated with it.

Corn, oats and rye tumbled along with wheat to new bottoms, but all climbed back near yesterday's closing levels in the final spurt.

The grain price slump took the limelight from the stock market, as traders here and in New York were crowding around the grain tickers to get their cues on probable action in stocks.

The mid-session prices were the lowest for this season and below any offers at this time of year in many sessions. March futures dropped as low as 98¾ cents a bushel, and May sold down to $1.02¾.

Taft Losing Ground, Physicians Announce

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Ex-Chief Justice Taft was reported losing ground today in his fight against the illness which compelled his resignation three weeks ago.

The physicians' bulletin at noon said:

"The former chief justice has shown no improvement for several days. While there is no immediate alarm, it is felt he has lost ground."

The bulletin was signed by Drs. Francis R. Hagner and Thomas A. Claytor.

HOOVER PLEADS ECONOMY AID

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—President Hoover today reinforced his appeal to congressional leaders to keep expenditures within budget estimates by calling upon the "people back home" to rally to the support of the administration in its program of economy.

At the same time the Senate became embroiled in a discussion of appropriations. Carter Glass, of Virginia, a Democrat, accused the Chief Executive of trying to blame Congress for the expenditure of funds. He argued Mr. Hoover had set up a straw man and then knocked him down.

The President in his remarks at the White House, said that only a small per cent of the proposals to spend money emanated from Congress, making clear it was his opinion that much such propositions originated from groups all over the country.

DELAY FAVORED

Mr. Hoover said that many of the proposals eventually should be and undoubtedly would be undertaken in future years but added that this was "no time for general expansion of public expenditures," although there were sufficient resources to meet budget needs and "such necessities as marginal cases of disability among veterans and the speeding up of public works."

The President's statement then declared:

"I hope that the people at home will realize that the government cannot undertake every worthy social, economic, military and naval expansion, increase in pay to government employes, expanded pension systems, or public improvement projects—and will support the members of Congress in their co-operation with the adminis-

School Gets Million Given Up by Woman

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Emilie V. Moore has refused a gift of $1,145,531 in order that it may be available for a school. She was bequeathed most of the residuary estate of her sister, Miss Annie Clarkson, for life. Upon Mrs. Moore's death, the will provided, the money should go to the Thomas S. Clarkson Memorial College of Technology, at Potsdam, N. Y., founded by aunts of the sisters in memory of a brother. Mrs. Moore renounced the bequest so that the college could have the money at once for new buildings.

STORM HEROINE BADLY BURNED

The bravery of Blanche McKeever, 20, who faced death in a vain attempt to save her sweetheart, was being told throughout the Turtle Creek valley today as residents began clearing away results of the storm which caused the death of the youth, Thomas Fabyanic, 23.

When Blanche saw her companion hurled to the ground as he trod on a high-tension wire in stepping from an automobile in which he was driving her home this morning, she faced death and leaped after him. Fabyanic had left the car to remove a pole lying across Linhart road, near Turtle Creek. The wind of the midnight storm had toppled the pole, and wires were strewn upon the highway.

As Miss McKeever grasped Fabyanic's coat she was hurled backward by the electric charge that

Barbara Guggenheim Divorced in Paris

PARIS, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Mrs. Milton Waldman, the former Barbara Guggenheim, today won a divorce from her husband on charges of desertion.

Last year the two young children of the couple were tragically killed in a fall from a pent-house garden at the top of a lofty New York apartment house. At the time, Waldman was in Paris.

CLOUDBURST SWELLS RIVERS

Property Damage Heavy All Over County; Torrents Flood Homes; More Rain

With further showers today, Allegheny County still was suffering from these effects of last night's cloudburst, the most violent February storm in years:

1—One killed and one seriously injured.

2—Streets and roads swept by torrents, street cars and automobiles marooned, and cellars of hundreds of homes flooded.

3—Total rainfall of 1.72 inches caused rivers to rise, with a prospect of a 20-foot stage by tomorrow.

4—The rising waters released an ice gorge extending 25 miles up the Allegheny River from Kittanning. Ice Will begin running here tonight.

5—Fifty homes in Greenfield and many more in other parts of the city were flooded.

More rain fell today as Pittsburgh and its environs were recovering from last night's severe thunderstorm and cloudburst which killed one, seriously injured another, paralyzed traffic and caused immense property damage.

OHIO VALLEY SUFFERS

Weather bureau records showed total rainfall of 1.72 inches, since yesterday, most of which fell in three hours last night, transforming streets into raging torrents, blocking roads with debris, and flooding homes in low-lying districts.

The deluge was greatest in the upper Ohio Valley. Coraopolis reported 2.73 inches. The local rivers were rising and will likely reach a stage of 20 feet, five feet below flood stage, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted.

WIRE KILLS MAN

The dead man is Thomas Fabyanic, 23, of 343 Kline avenue, Turtle Creek. He was killed when he stepped on a high tension wire as he left his automobile to remove a pole that had blown across the Linhart road near Turtle Creek. His companion, Miss Blanche McKeever, 20, of the Rodi road, Linhart, was burned seriously when she tried to drag Fabyanic's body from the wire.

Turtle Creek police searched an open sewer in Brown Hollow, where they believed for a time that a young man drowned during the storm. Police were told that Howard Chilcoat, 24, of Brown avenue, had plunged into the creek when he heard the screams of three young men swept by the rushing water from the street into the sewer. He helped two of the men to safety. The others apparently got out unassisted as no person was reported missing today.

HOMES FLOODED

Fifty homes were flooded in the lower end of Naylor street, Greenfield, partly due to the cloudburst, and mainly due to the bursting nine months ago of a

'Slipper Bandit' Robs Another Girl

Pittsburgh's slipper bandit added the slipper of Miss Frances Sobieszyz, 2318 Lebanon street, to his collection this morning.

The mysterious bandit approached the girl as she was standing at Twenty-fourth street and Larkins way waiting for a girl friend to accompany her to work at the United States Glass Company, Eleventh and Bingham streets. Grasping Miss Sobieszyz's foot, he tore off her slipper and disappeared around the corner.

The Sobieszyz girl was marooned until her friend appeared and went to her home for another slipper. The girls then notified police at the South Side Police Station, but could give no description of the thief.

This brings the slipper bandit's collection of slippers to a total of about half a dozen.

'Pharoah's Curse' Bobs Up In Museum Aide's Death

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Death of a worker at the British Museum during the week-end gave the superstitious another bit of evidence that the "Pharaohs' curse" is still in operation.

Edgar Steele, 57, died after an operation for an internal trouble. He had been engaged in lettering exhibits of the various parts of the museum, among them some relics from the tombs of Luxor.

A museum official scouted the suggestion that there was anything sinister in Steele's death. He remarked that thousands of people had been indirectly connected with the Tut-ankh-amen relics and that there was no record of any overwhelming outbreak of mortality.

"I've handled Egyptian relics myself many times for years and I'm still as well as ever," he said.

The "Pharaohs' curse," legend has it, doomed to a quick death anyone molesting tombs of the ancient Egyptian rulers.

SENATORS PLACE GUARDS AT CAPITOL TO END SPYING

UNDER-COVER DRY AGENTS ACCUSED

Lawmakers' Nerves Shaky As Offices Are Rifled and Tales of Prying Spread

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—A tense little serio-comedy which might be entitled "Spying On the Spies," is being enacted daily around the Capitol.

Rubber heels glide noiselessly up and down the corridors, bearing flat-footed and serious-looking gentlemen who peer intently at casual saunterers and those who appear to be loitering around the premises. To those who loiter over-long and who are unable to give a ready explanation of their presence there may be a quiet tap on the shoulder and a "come with me!"

ON SENATORS' NERVES

The explanation is that the Senate, or a part of it at least, has a case of nerves and believes that it is being spied upon. The prohibition bureau is suspected, despite its denials.

Since the spectacular assault began on prohibition enforcement some weeks ago, with the present enforcement chiefs coming in for severe denunciation, dry agents have arrested two bootleggers with their wares around the Senate office building and strange tales are told of senatorial offices being rifled during the night. Two senators, one Republican and the other a Democrat, both critics of the present enforcement situation, have informed their colleagues that their offices had been entered and ransacked recently.

THEY FEEL "JUMPY"

Senatorial nerves, frazzled by the long session and the bitterness of the fighting since Christmas, have become jumpy. Persistent rumors that the Prohibition Bureau, smarting under the incessant criticism from the lawmakers, has put a squad of undercover agents to work around "the hill" in order to retaliate, have only served to intensify senatorial sensitiveness.

The Prohibition Bureau, of course, indignantly denies that any such thing has been done, but the denials have not allayed senatorial fears nor quieted senatorial nerves. And, being possessed of its own police force, independent of the blue-coated metropolitan force, the Senate has seen to it that a squad of half a dozen of its own force have been sent off in plain clothes to keep an eye on loitering visitors, the theory being "set a spy to catch a spy."

tration to hold down the new proposals for additional expenditures."

In the Senate the remarks by Glass, a former Democratic secretary of the Treasury, drew a vigorous reply from Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, in defense of the White House breakfast conference yesterday at which Mr. Hoover outlined to congressional leaders his desire to hold expenditures within bounds outlined by the budget.

When Watson expressed the view that the attack today was aimed at the administration, Senator Glass heatedly retorted that he had "never raised this issue as a partisan matter and I have never done any such thing."

"But I don't propose to sit supinely by," continued the Virginian, "when the White House undertakes to raise resentment against this body by the unmistakable intimation that we have indulged in a riot of extravagance and yet the President finds himself in the humiliating situation of having recommended to us $20,000,000 more than Congress is willing to appropriate."

SUIT ASSAILS CULT LEADER

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—An 85-year-old leader of a health and religious cult in Los Angeles was blamed today for breaking up the home of Herman R. Huber, architectural draftsman, who filed suit for divorce from Mrs. Anna C. Huber, 50, a follower of the cult.

The aged man was described as "Ottoman, czar of Adusht, master mind hanisch of the Mazdazans," whose temple is at 1159 South Norton avenue, in Los Angeles.

Huber, in his suit, said his wife had become "fanatical, idotical and unreasonable by following the repugnant rituals of moaning, raving and silly actions of the cult." He said the power that the "master mind" held over women makes them think more of his teachings than they did of their homes and families.

ion might be straightened out at today's conference.

LAWYERS IN PARLEY

Ernest Miller, president of the Parmelee Company, owner of the Yellow and Green Cab companies, did not attend today's conference. Vice President E. S. Higgins represented the owners along with Attorneys Robinson and Frank B. Ingersoll.

The striking drivers' executive committee met last night behind closed doors to discuss today's peace conference and while no actual report of the session was forthcoming from the union spokesmen, it was understood that each member solemnly repeated his oath of allegiance to the union made earlier in the day over the grave of W. P. Dreibhold, alleged strike sympathizer, killed by a police bullet in an attack upon cabs operating with imported drivers last week.

Whether it was a misunderstanding on the part of Mayor Kline that prompted his announcement that Pre. dent Miller would attend the conference, could not be ascertained.

Asked concerning the company's plans for "testing" the Mayor's authority in placing the ban on operation of cabs, the attorney refused to comment.

"Are you going into court or to the Public Service Commission?" he was asked.

"Not tonight," was his smiling rejoinder.

Duelist Arrested in Slaying Over Girl

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Shortly after midnight February 24, 1921, two men fought in an Italian garden for the love of a girl and one fell with a stiletto in his heart. Within an hour of midnight last night, just nine years later, Bellomo Scili Baldassare, a gardener, was arrested by federal authorities near Santa Barbara, Cal., and accused of the murder.

Baldassare was brought here for an extradition hearing before United States Commissioner David Head. The arrest was brought about by representations made by the Italian government to State Department officials at Washington.

Customer Leaves Phone Booth, Routs Bandit

A big, bad holdup man had J. Simons, clerk in the United Cigar store at Sixth avenue and Grant street, on the floor last night, rifling his pockets, when a customer stepped from a telephone booth and took the gun away from him.

The bandit escaped with a couple of dollars, despite a chase by Charles Berndt, 128 South Negley avenue, who had disarmed him.

VARE ENGAGES CAPITAL OFFICE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—The most definite indication of the determination of William S. Vare to seek renomination to the Senate in the forthcoming Pennsylvania primaries came today with the information that the Philadelphia organization leader has set up in Washington an elaborate political office to send out literature on his campaign.

Mr. Vare has retained a pretentious suite in the New Washington Building, just across the street from the Treasury Department, where Secretary Andrew Mellon, of Pittsburgh, holds sway. In the office are a dozen or more girl clerks, presumably preparing mailing lists.

It was said authoritatively that thousands of copies of Senate speeches defending Vare in his election contest will be mailed out to Pennsylvania voters. Under Congressional franking privileges any Senator is entitled to send out, free of postage, as many copies of any speech as he desires, with only a nominal attached to the printing of the speeches. Senator David A. Reed was one of those who defended Vare.

COUNCIL GIVEN CITY BUDGET

The budget was submitted to the finance committee of City Council today.

It provides for total expenditures of $27,664,000, of which $5,027,000 already has been appropriated for January and February.

New positions are created, calling for total salaries of $330,000. There are 80 new places and a new district in the South Side in the Police Bureau, 55 new jobs and a new district in the South Side in the Bureau of Fire. There are to be 25 additional physicians and nurses in the tuberculosis hospital and clinic and Child Welfare Bureau. Forty-five clerks and inspectors, scattered through various departments, also are provided.

Wage increases include a raise for policemen and firemen, totaling $765,000, as authorized by the citizens in a referendum; a 10 per cent increase, totaling $175,000 for employees working on a daily-wage basis; an increase not to exceed $120 for employes whose annual salary is less than $2,040, and $45,000 of scattered salary adjustments. The grand total of wage increases is $1,145,000.

There are salary eliminations and revisions downward totaling $150,000, mostly in the bureaus of engineering, water, bridges, highways and sewers. Substitutions of new machinery for obsolescent equipment in the highway bureau has permitted a saving of $50,000.

KING'S AIDES GO ON TRIAL

Echoes of the late vice-crusading Citizens League were heard today with the opening of the trial of Abraham Weinberg and Sol Rosenberg, investigators, charged with conspiracy.

Rosenberg was also charged with the theft of $100 cuff links and papers valued at $3,000 from the apartment of Samuel Korman, Elsinore square, on June 9, 1927.

Assistant District Attorney Roy P. Clunk was prosecuting the case before Judge A. B. Reid. Defense attorneys were William H. Coleman and Joseph P. Frank.

The erstwhile crusader, William L. King, is named in the same indictment with the investigators, but he never has been apprehended. The indictment charges the three with conspiring to charge Maxie Friedberg, Milton Jaffe, Gertrude Cahill and Mary Snyder with violating the liquor laws.

The case is more than a year old. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner said that Weinberg and Rosenberg asked that the charge be disposed of before it interfered with their business as investigators in New Jersey.

Secret Senate Sessions On Racy Books Opposed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The Senate, after all, may settle its controversy over foreign book censorship without ever sampling the concoctions, Senator Smoot, of Utah, has selected as examples of what should be barred from America's literary diet.

Leaders of opposing forces on the issue of whether customs officials should act as dieticians in control of the foreign book menu today stood ready for a preliminary battle to decide whether the Senate should meet behind closed doors to discuss the question.

Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, announced he would wage a fight against executive session for consideration of the salacious passages Smoot has picked from the books in question.

"Everybody knows there are indecent books," Cutting said, "but discussing them behind closed doors is no way to handle the question."

Smoot, however, is determined to have an executive session to read passages "too vulgar" to be pointed to openly. He said, in fact, that they were so vulgar, he would not read them unless his colleagues decided to hear them in private.

The conflict began when Cutting proposed revision of the present tariff law to void its provision for exclusion of indecent and obscene foreign books. Under the present law customs officers administer the censorship.

LEADERS MEET ON DEMOCRAT STATE SLATE

Party Chiefs in Conference At Harrisburg; Humes May Be Put on Ticket

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—With Republican party leaders standing by waiting until William S. Vare, Philadelphia boss, makes known just what he expects in the coming primary, and casting at the same time a wondering eye in the direction of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, the Democratic party today occupies the center of the stage in Pennsylvania politics.

The Democratic state committee meets here today to pick a slate with which to oppose whomever the Republicans name.

STRIFE POSSIBLE

The Democratic leaders are not expected to have entirely smooth sailing in their work.

It is generally believed here that John R. Collins, state chairman, and his closest associates are backing Sedgwick Kistler for governor and Judge William S. McLean for senator. From Wilkes-Barre comes the report that Luzerne and Lackawanna Democrats want the positions reversed, with Judge McLean their choice for governor and Kistler for senator.

Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Monroe County, for governor, and Lowry Humes, of Pittsburgh, for the Senate, is another possibility, with State Senator Harvey Huffman, a Stroudsburg attorney, reported quite active in their behalf.

OTHER CANDIDATES

Peace within the Democratic ranks is reported further endangered by resentment expressed at Stroudsburg that the picking of a slate for the primary "is undemocratic."

Other candidates who may find themselves on the ticket before the session ends are: Judge Henry C. Niles, of York, for State Supreme Court; Aaron E. Reiber, of Butler, and George F. Douglas, of Allentown, for Superior Court, and either Mrs. Carrol Miller, of Pittsburgh, or Mrs. Catherine Flohr, of Allentown, for secretary of internal affairs.

PINCHOT SILENT ON PLANS

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, a visitor here since Sunday, left today with John W. Vickerman, of Bellevue, for Harrisburg to dedicate the $36,000 state W. C. T. U. Building, without indicating his intention of running for governor.

Pinchot's friends expect him to enter the race if the state organization ticket, headed by Senator Joseph R. Grundy and Samuel S. Lewis, is opposed by William S. Vare and a running mate.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and friends today left for an automobile trip with their ultimate destination as Jacksonville, Fla., where Armstrong expected to meet Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. The party included Dr. F. H. Frederick, president of the City Civil Service Commission; George J. Schad, chairman of the county tax board; Congressman Stephen G. Porter and William Billinger, custodian of election polling places. Porter will leave the party at Washington.

Armstrong declined to make any comment on the state campaign.

County Commissioner Edward V. Babcock, also is visiting in Florida and it is probable that he and Armstrong will meet here.

Senator M. G. Leslie, who is in Atlantic City, is expected to seek re-election, but there were no signs that his petitions are in circulation. Mayor Kline's friends were said to be grooming a candidate to oppose Leslie.

Congressman Guy E. Campbell, of the Thirty-sixth District, and Edward Sweeney, candidate for Congress in the Thirty-fourth District, took out petitions yesterday.

Candidates for the Legislature taking out petitions yesterday were N. G. Glover and William Brown, First District; Pat McKnight, Third; William McDowell, Fourth; O. Hicks Friedman, Fifth; J. C. Davis, Sixth; John Rhodes, Ninth; W. A. Kimble, Twelfth; Julia Hudepohl, Thirteenth.

Mary N. Conwell today took out petitions for the nomination of Republican state committeewoman from the Forty-third Senatorial District. Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell to date is the only candidate to file for state committeeman from that district.

Vare Petitions Sent Here for Circulation

William S. Vare's petition blanks for the senatorial nomination today were received at the office of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong. They were contained in a letter addressed to Armstrong by W. R. Douglas, Vare's secretary.

Armstrong said the petitions would be treated the same as those submitted previously for Senator Joseph R. Grundy, Samuel S. Lewis and Francis Shunk Brown, the latter two candidates for governor.

Armstrong's attitude is to have the petitions available in the office for any voter who calls to sign them or to give them out to any citizen who desires to place the petitions in circulation.

BRITAIN DENIES NAVAL PARLEY FAILURE

Statement Believed Dictated By MacDonald Forecasts 'Satisfactory Agreement'

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—In an effort to "clear the air of rumors and exaggerated reports" spread around the world since the five-power naval disarmament conference was adjourned last Wednesday because of France's cabinet difficulties, an official British government communique was issued today expressing the conviction that a satisfactory agreement would crown the work of the parley.

DICTATED BY PREMIER

The communique, presumably dictated personally by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, was given out to the press by a government official at St. James Palace.

The communique vigorously repudiates the suggestion that a three-power pact between the United States, Great Britain and Japan is all that the conference can hope to achieve, and denies that political questions are impeding the progress of the conference.

It was definitely stated that the scope of the parley will not be widened to include discussion of freedom of the seas and the question of neutral rights.

It says further that France has made no formal demand for a security pact in the Mediterranean, and no such treaty can be formulated here since many Mediterranean powers are not represented at the conference.

OFFICIAL DENIAL

The communique followed an official denial through Premier MacDonald's secretary of a story in the London Daily Express stating the conference had failed completely.

Assuming that the new French delegation will arrive here tomorrow night, Premier MacDonald today called a meeting of the heads of the delegations for Thursday morning.

French Deputies Debate Chautemps Cabinet

PARIS, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Darkness closed in upon the Chamber of Deputies tonight with Camille Chautemps defending the program of his government stubbornly and eloquently after hearing his policies assailed by four successive speakers in one of the hottest fights ever seen in the French Parliament.

In the midst of the attacks Chautemps surprised his opponents with a counter-offensive. He insisted that the French foreign policy was unchanged. Pointing to the presence of Aristide Briand as minister of foreign affairs as a guarantee that the French policy of "peace and good will, which Briand championed many years, would be continued."

The Premier emphasized that there would be no change in French naval policy at the London disarmament conference, saying that Briand would leave for London tomorrow "if Parliament granted confidence in the present cabinet."

Secretary Stimson Suffers From Cold

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Col. Henry L. Stimson, American Secretary of State and delegation head, today was forced to seek advice of a physician for treatment of a cold, such as those from which many of the American delegation are suffering.

Bandit Bride, Mate Held in Crime Wave

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—The arrest of an attractive 18-year-old bride here, police believed today, had brought to an end a wave of banditry lasting several months. The girl's husband also was seized.

The bride, a bobbed-hair blonde, is Mrs. Stella Shidick. Her husband, Charles, 22, was arrested in Bridgeport when police became suspicious of his actions. His 21-year-old brother was also arrested.

The arrests grew out of the holdup of Salvatore Desimone, bus driver, near Conshohocken.

Mrs. Shedick, police say, confessed to several robberies and implicated her husband, his brother and a fourth man. She acted as chauffeur, Mrs. Shidick told officials.

had stricken her sweetheart. Although burned and numb from the shock, she tried again to drag him from the wires. This time she was knocked unconscious. Workmen found her a half-hour later, still unconscious, in a ditch just off the road.

Fabyanic was dead when picked up. The young woman was removed to her home, where it was stated her condition was critical. She told, while a physician treated her burned body, of her vain attempts to save her companion.

Tellez Renamed As Mexican Envoy

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Reappointment of Manuel Tellez as Mexican ambassador to Washington was announced by Foreign Minister Genaro Estrada here today.

Owing to the retirement of Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, Tellez now becomes dean of the diplomatic corps in Washington.

Monaco Calms With Royal Family Row Near Pact

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The domestic differences of the princely house of Monaco were reported to be on the way to settlement without litigation.

Though Princess Charlotte, daughter of the ruling Prince Louis, has filed suit for separation at Nice, France, Mayor Eugene Marguet told the Associated Press correspondent that the Princess' marital disputes with her husband, Prince Pierre, would probably never reach the courts. He expected them to be settled by a civil family agreement in which Prince Pierre would hold the regency for his young son Ranier.

"Princess Charlotte has not returned home as has been reported in the newspapers," he said. "Her whereabouts are unknown, but we think she is in Italy. She cannot sue the Prince nor he her outside Monaco.

"I discussed the question with Prince Louis and believe the matter can be arranged satisfactorily."

All parties in Monaco have united in the effort to avoid disturbing the calm of the principality. The troops were kept readi in their barracks, the entire army of 80 being mobilized.

Prince Louis has persistently refused to receive interviewers. His butler told reporters that the Prince was "eating such a fine lobster he couldn't be disturbed over state affairs."

RUSSIAN WAR ON RELIGION SPREADS

More Buildings, Chapels and Holy Objects Burned by Peasants in 12 Villages

International News Service.

MOSCOW, Feb. 25.—Disregarding the protests of millions of believers in other parts of the world, the Soviet government is continuing its anti-religious policy with undiminished vigor and with the apparent whole-hearted support of the majority of the Russian people.

The peasant residents of 12 villages consolidated into one collective farm in this district, today voted to close three churches and destroy all roadside chapels.

In the villages of Prutaya and Yusupovo, the peasants have gathered together all wooden ikons and other holy objects in the churches there and used them for bonfires.

No Religious Neutrality Possible, Stalin's Stand

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The evening World today published a reply from Joseph Stalin, head of the Soviet government, to a message asking him to give his side of the present anti-church campaign in Russia and the protests the movement is causing throughout the world.

"Reply to your question could be found if desired in the pamphlet 'Questions and Answers to American Trade Unionists,'" Stalin's message read. Stalin's interview with the first American trade union delegation to Soviet Russia published in America. See question XI and Stalin's reply.

Question XI in the pamphlet referred to in Stalin's reply, as asked him by the trade union delegation was:

"We understand that some good Communists are not in entire sympathy with the Communist party's demand that all new members be atheists, now that the reactionary clergy are suppressed. Could the Communist party in the future take a neutral attitude toward a religious faith which supported all the teachings of science and did not oppose communism? Could you in the future permit some party members to hold religious opinions if they did not conflict with party loyalty?"

HE KNOWS OF NONE

Stalin's reply was:

"In this question there are several inexactitudes. In the first place, I do not know of any such 'good Communists' that the delegates talk about. It is hardly likely that such Communists exist at all. Secondly, I must declare that, speaking formally, we have no conditions of party membership which demand that a candidate for party membership shall be an atheist.

"The conditions of membership of our party are: Acceptance of the program and rules of the party; absolute subordination to the decisions of the party and its organs; payment of membership dues, and membership in one of the party locals."

Told by a delegate that it was often published that members had been expelled from the party because of belief in God, Stalin replied: "I can only repeat the conditions of membership in our party that I have just mentioned. We have no other condition."

HOLD DECIDED VIEWS

The party is not neutral towards religion, Stalin said. "We carry on and will continue to carry on propaganda against religious prejudices. Our legislation guaranteed to citizens the right to adhere to any religion. This is a matter for the conscience of each individual. That is precisely why we carried out the separation of the church from the state. But in separating the church from the state and proclaiming religious liberty we at the same time guaranteed the right of every citizen to combat by argument, by propaganda and agitation any and all religions.

"The party cannot be neutral toward religion and does conduct anti-religious propaganda against all and every religious prejudice, because it stands for science, while religious prejudices run counter to science; because all religion is something opposite to science. Cases such as recently occurred in America, in which Darwinists were prosecuted in court, cannot occur here, because the party carries out a policy of the general defense of science.

"The party can not be neutral toward religious prejudices and it will continue to carry on propaganda against these prejudices because this is one of the best means of undermining the influence of the reactionary clergy, who support the exploiting classes and who preach submission to these classes.

"The party can not be neural toward the bearers of religious prejudices, toward the reactionary clergy who poison the minds of the toiling masses.

"Have we suppressed the reactionary clergy? Yes, we have."

FORMER NAVY GRID STAR FELLS WIFE, LEAPS TO DEATH

PLUNGES OUT WINDOW OF 8TH STORY

Just Returned From Trip to Mexico to Regain Health After Nervous Breakdown

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—While apparently still suffering from the effects of a recent physical and nervous breakdown, Richard Howland Jones, former naval lieutenant and widely known football player, committed suicide today by jumping from a window of his eighth floor Park avenue apartment.

Before jumping, Jones, a former official of the Tidewater Oil Corporation of New Jersey, felled his wife with the pedestal of a statuette when she tried to restrain him in his rush for a window.

Mrs. Jones said that a half hour earlier she had called in an employe of the building to aid her in quieting her husband with whom, she said, she had been struggling for half an hour. She said the employe, an elevator operator, left the apartment after remaining only a few minutes, as Mr. Jones apparently had quieted down and gone to sleep.

Previous reports from police had said that Jones jumped after a quarrel with his wife.

Jones was 35. His wife, formerly Louise H. Conkey, of Kansas City, Mo., is 20. Both appear in the social register.

Jones had given up his position with the Tidewater Company on January 1, due, it was said, to a nervous condition. He and his wife took a short sea trip to Mexico in the hope of regaining his health and the couple returned to New York only about a month ago.

MARRIED LAST APRIL

They were married last April. Shortly before, Mrs. Jones had been a debutante in Washington, where she made her home with her uncle, Ralph W. Snowden Hill, a former observer on the reparations commission in Paris and later connected with the State Department.

Jones graduated from Annapolis in 1916 and served as a lieutenant in the war. He was a member of the Army and Navy Club, the Engineers Club and others.

Jones played two years on the Navy football team.

LIQUOR RAIDERS' VICTIM DIES

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—George Lewis Redding, 30, shot by a federal prohibition agent in a liquor raid here last night, died today.

A guest in the Redding home at the time of the raid, Lawrence Morgan, of Crystal City, Okla., was in a hospital dangerously wounded.

Three federal prohibition agents are in technical custody of the United States marshal's office here.

W. F. Wolverton, M. E. Craig and Henry B. Jones were the agents who made the raid, which Wolverton declared in a statement to United States Commissioner Wilson Roach, was staged on an affidavit alleging liquor sales had been made at the residence. After entering the house, Wolverton said, a woman shattered a jug of whisky on the floor, then handed Redding a revolver, which the man snapped at him. It failed to discharge, and Wolverton then began shooting, he said, wounding both Redding and Morgan.

The other two agents declined to say whether they participated in the shooting.

The officers said they found 24 gallons of liquor in the house.

'Arizona Suit Against Boulder Dam Ready

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Gov. J. C. Phillips, in an interview here, said Arizona is ready to file suit in an effort to block construction of the proposed Boulder Dam on the Colorado River whenever Secretary of the Interior Wilbur lets construction contracts. Arizona is demanding a larger share of the benefits from the proposed development than allotted in the division of water and electric power among the states of the Colorado River basin.

WALL ST. POOL LIQUIDATES

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Completion of the liquidation of holdings of the "banking pool" headed by J. P. Morgan & Company on October 24, the third day of the stock market panic, was hailed with satisfaction in Wall street today.

The pool, composed of Morgan & Company, the First National Bank, the City National Bank, and others, was formed to stem the tide of deflation.

The overhanging stock, represented by the unsold holdings of this group, had long been looked upon as a thorn in the path of constructive operations, but with this out of the way, the pessimism has changed considerably.

The belief is held that should any further adverse factors bring about continued market unsettlement, these powerful banking groups unencumbered by any stock holdings, will be able to act as a prop to prevent a duplication of the upheaval of last fall.

POISON SLAYER INDICTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—James Baker, who says he murdered 11 men "for fun," was indicted today for the murder of Henry Gaw, a watchman, killed here in December, 1928.

Two alienists had previously informed District Attorney Crain that Baker, the 23-year-old farm hand arrested in Detroit, is sane.

An incident in the youth's examination for sanity connected him directly with the Gaw murder, police said. When he boasted of his ability to tear a telephone directory apart with his hands, a book more than an inch thick was brought him and he immediately ripped it in two. He then started to scatter the leaves of the book. This recalled to police that when the watchman's body was discovered in a chemical laboratory, a torn telephone book was found in the room and the floor was covered with its leaves.

Baker's latest confessed killing was that of a taxicab driver named Soth. The youth said he shot and killed Soth in Detroit January 20 of this year and robbed him of a watch and $10. He said he pawned the watch the next day.

NORMAND RITES AWAIT MOTHER

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A public funeral for Mabel Normand, who died Sunday in Monrovia sanitarium, was suggested by friends as a last tribute of the popular comedienne.

Definite arrangements were held in abeyance, however, pending the arrival from New York of the actress' mother, Mrs. Mary Normand; a brother, Claude, Jr., and a sister, Gladys. Services at the Church of the Good Shepherd tentatively were set for Friday.

Suggestions that Miss Normand's body lie in state at the mortuary here were also considered as hundreds of letters and telegrams and telephone calls were received by her husband, Lew Cody.

The comedienne, friends said, expressed the wish some time ago that her body be placed in a mausoleum.

De Rivera's Son Still Plans Duel

MADRID, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The "affair of honor" between Miguel Primo de Rivera, son of the former dictator, and Capt. Rexach, Spanish aviator, has been only postponed—not settled. The trouble arose when Miguel Primo de Rivera resented remarks by Capt. Rexach concerning the elder Primo de Rivera. The son of the ousted dictator has been expelled by Spain. Arrangements are reported made for a saber duel, probably in France.

2 FLIERS LOST IN STORM

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Search of the storm-swept area between here and Kingman, Ariz., was resumed today for James Doles and Albert W. Beider, Western Air Express pilots, missing since they left Kingman at 11:45 A. M., Sunday. Four planes which flew over the territory yesterday, returned with reports that they had seen no trace of the fliers.

The two pilots were returning from Kingman, where they had flown with a party from Los Angeles. They carried no passengers on the return flight. When they failed to arrive here Sunday night, officials assumed they had made an emergency landing to avoid a storm. Failure to hear from them yesterday, however, was the signal to begin a search.

Doles, one of the most able transport fliers, was the object of a search several months ago, when a plane he was flying was forced down in Arizona. Twenty-four hours later he turned up at Albuquerque, N. M., and reported that he had landed to avoid a storm.

Hired Girl's Poem Takes Place of John D's Dime

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A simple poem written anonymously by a 19-year-old English girl in domestic service has taken the place of the famous dime as John D. Rockefeller's gift to visitors.

A group of Rotarians from London and Windsor, Ont., here on an international good-will tour, called at the Ormond Beach home of Mr. Rockefeller.

"I am pleased to meet you. I want to give you these poems," said their host, and dug the printed cards out of an inside pocket.

The poem, which is called "I Do It Unto Thee," follows.

"Lord to all pots and pans and things, since I've no time to be a saint by doing lovely things, or watching late with Thee or dreaming in the dawnlight, or storming heaven's gates. Make me a saint by getting meals and washing up the plates. Although I must have Martha's hands, I have a Mary mind. And when I black the boots and shoes, Thy sandals, Lord, I find. I think of how they trod the earth, what time I scrub the floor; accept this meditation, Lord. I haven't time for more. Warm all the kitchen with Thy love and light it with Thy peace, forgive me all my worrying, and make all grumbling cease. Thou who didst love to give men food, in room or by the sea, accept this service that I do—I do it unto Thee."

Rib Not Broken, Lauder Denies Hero Role

GARY, Ind., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Sir Harry Lauder dissipated reports that he had been playing before Chicago audiences with a broken rib.

Various reports had been published concerning Sir Harry's injury. They had asserted that the comedian had fractured the rib and had gone on playing without realizing it and also that he had been playing heroically despite his injury.

In the first place, the comedian said, his rib was not broken, in the second, the slight injury he sustained had been adequately treated. Third, he's now in good shape and was while in Chicago.

Sir Harry said that while he was playing in Cedar Rapids, Ia., February 11, he slipped while stepping into a bathtub in a hotel. He fell and his right side struck the corner of the marble washstand.

After a week of traveling in Iowa and Wisconsin he reached Chicago with his side still bruised. He showed it to a hotel physician, Dr. F. W. McNamara, and the latter found that the cartilage had been slightly damaged, but that the rib itself was unhurt. He applied adhesive tape.

Magistrate Quashes Story Of Hill Club Raid

The story of the recent riot outside a raided club at 1341 Fifth avenue today appeared to have been lost to the history books, thanks to Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Constable Jack Schneider, First Ward politician, and his deputy, Ike Pollas, were arraigned in Center Avenue Police Court on charges of disorderly conduct. Pollas was discharged, decision was reserved in Schneider's case.

Lieut. William J. Lavery testified that the defendants had assailed him with strong language, following his raid on the club.

Pollas began to explain, "I had just got down from the club——"

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg stopped him, declaring that what had happened at the club wasn't important.

It was in the club raid that Patrolman John Nowack was beaten.

Lavery added that Schneider had urged a crowd outside the restaurant to deliver him from the police.

The $30 forfeit of James Kelly, third prisoner, was taken when he failed to appear. Kelly, who is facing a murder charge in the death of Peter McGann, was said to be in Florida.

Wilkins Search for Base Fails

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS,
Commander of the Hearst Wilkins Antarctic Expedition

In this installment Sir Hubert tells the thrilling narrative of what befell him and his three aids during the more than two weeks between January 23 and February 13 that their ship, the Wilkins Scoresby, was out of communication with the world. The Scoresby had just left Deception Island in search of an airplane base on Peter I Island which Wilkins planned to make his dash across the polar cap.

Universal Service Special Cable

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 25.—Leaving Deception Island on January 25 we set a course to carry us a little south of Peter I Island, where the whaling vessel Norwegia met us a year last year.

With the disabled plane Los Angeles arranged on a seaplane and lashed firmly to the deck of the William Scoresby we were two days out from Deception Island when we ran into a great wind high seas, and snow squalls. We saw no pack ice until we reached longitude 80 East, latitude 69.20, about 30 miles south of Peter I Island.

Even at the edge of the pack there was no improvement in the weather. We followed the edge of the ice between latitudes 69.20 and 69.30 until it took a little almost 100 West, when we turned southward into what appeared to be a big bight in the pack ice. Clouds hung low about us and to the southward. We hit a snow squall moving from east to west. Hoping to push our way through the rough weather, we prepared to launch our plane. We then discovered that the frequent temperature changes and the bad weather since leaving Deception Island had caused condensation in the fuel tanks, and that at freezing temperatures ice had fouled the entire fuel system.

Fuel Lines Cleared

All the fuel lines were removed and heated to free them from obstructions. When that was done the weather was almost calm, but sullen patchy snowstorms glided slowly and silently over the areas in our vicinity.

After considerable effort we rose from the surface of the water, but soon found that our way southward was barred by snow too thick to fly through. A glance at the edge of the ice pack was cheering. We had stopped the Scoresby in a deep bay thinking that the ice swung far to the northeastward. From the air we could see that 15 miles further to the West the ice turned toward the South again.

Still aloft we tried to go South with the plane, time after time dodging snow squalls but at last completely surrounded by a frozen cloud we gave up and returned to the vessel.

With the machine back aboard the Scoresby, we proceeded to round the edge of the ice pack to the southward, bringing up again in latitude 70 degrees 10 minutes. There we waited for better weather.

The season was fast passing and as the weather continued bad we began to grow downhearted. Our wireless had failed to penetrate the atmospheric obstacles between us and our base on Deception Island, just as last season the wireless of the Norwegian research vessel failed. We had had only one communication since leaving Deception Island.

Sick on Shipboard

The men aboard the Scoresby suffered extremely from seasickness during the rough weather. The low clouds and frequent snow squalls continued. Even inside the ice pack the long swell of the sea made a takeoff impossible.

Day after day we paced the bridge, looking longingly toward the Southland. The prospect was cheerless. A few sea birds occasionally flew about us, and some seals, curious about us, occasionally nosed the side of the Scoresby. Almost every day we saw one or two whales spouting in the loose ice near the edge of the pack.

Then the wind changed, coming from the southward, clearing the weather, but knocking up a choppy sea and scattering fragments of ice which would have made a takeoff hazardous. One small piece of solid crystal in our path might bring disaster by wrecking out pontoons.

On February 1, in conditions dangerous enough to cause great anxiety, we launched the plane, and, with Al Cheesman at the controls and dodging the scattered ice with great skill and courage, managed to get the machine into the air.

We soon lost sight of the William Scoresby, but an iceberg, to which some mud was conveniently clinging, made a convenient landmark for our return to the vessel. The sky was overcast, the sun was not visible, and the ceiling was less than 1,500 feet. The wind beneath the clouds was fairly strong and turbulent. Light conditions were such that the rough ice was indistinguishable from the smooth, and the small patches of water between the thicker ice were, on account of the low temperature, covered with a thin film of grey new ice.

Plan Shaken

Streaks of newly-formed wind-driven snow on the older yellowish surface slightly aided navigation and aided Cheesman in keeping a fairly steady directional course. It was, however, impossible to keep the machine on an even keel, the air was very rough.

Although the icebergs were numerous at the edge of the pack, only a few were seen within it. We observed that the ice edge to the West swung still further southward until latitude 71, where it spread to the West as far as we could see. To the southward of latitude 71 the floe ice was stronger and only slightly scattered. We saw some floes, the first that we had seen in Antarctica, that were sufficiently large to afford landing fields. Under the clouds their surface looked smooth, but with the experience of eight polar summers behind me I knew that their mottled surface indicated treacherous ice, only partly snow-covered.

Never once have we observed in the Antarctica pack suitable ice for a landing field like that which we saw in the Arctic.

Doubtless we could have landed on the land-fast ice neighboring Charcot Land, or on the barrier further West had we found it, but we could not have made a landing among the scattered peaks over which we flew.

Explorer

SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Risky Flying

It was as unsafe flying over that with pontoons as it had been flying with wheels over the snow-covered mountains last year. As we proceeded 100 miles south of the ship the weather ahead looked more forbidding. A big snow-storm lay right across our path.

Normally we would have turned back under such conditions, but, since getting into the air was so difficult and uncertain, we decided to push through the storm. In the frozen cloud we experienced a peculiar condition of temperature as the damp air rose and filled the cabin of the plane with a fog. It was like a thick smoke, and even the engine felt the change in the atmosphere. Its revolutions died down and, despite all settings of the throttle, the machine seemed to be choking.

We began to sink lower and lower toward the rough ice surface and had almost decided to turn back, expecting nothing better than a forced landing, when the atmosphere cleared and the engine began to pick up. Still further southward we plugged.

A few seals, like dead flies on a huge white sheet, lay beneath us. Some turned lazily over to watch us as we passed, their flippers flapping as they turned, giving us the impression that they were waving us a friendly welcome.

Explorers Hopeful

The sight of these living things upon the forbidding ice pack somehow relieved it of its terrors and gave us comfort. After 50 minutes flying, Cheesman excitedly drew my attention to a dark looking mass looming through the grey mist to the southwest of our course. It was in the direction and vicinity of where Cook's strong appearance of land was marked on the chart.

At first we were positive that we could corroborate the old explorer's discovery, but, exercising the caution born of many disappointments experienced from judging polar conditions in a poor light, we decided to keep our course.

Soon to the southeast and almost ahead we could see more dark looming masses. We were elated. It must be land behind the barrier, we thought.

Taking observations for wind and drift, I discovered that we had lost the wind. This was not an unmixed blessing as the wind might be expected at intervals at least to clear the visibility, but in a calm a haze would surely develop.

What we thought to be great land masses still appeared before us. The outlook was rosy.

See Life Below

Suddenly my attention was drawn to objects beneath us. It seemed that two men were running for their lives. The shock was great, but soon passed. They were two of the great emperor penguins, of course, yet from the air they looked exactly like the wild Siberians we saw running helter-skelter from the shadow of the Graf Zeppelin as we crossed the northern wastes on the Hearst-Zeppelin round-the-world flight.

We craned our necks to watch the penguins laughing loudly at the comic figures they cut. Never once did they hesitate in their flight, or look around toward us. With their broad backs toward us and their bodies swaying pendulum-like they hurried from the whirlwind noise of our engine and the flash of our orange-colored Lockheed plane. We left the penguins with the impression that they would run on forever and hurried on to what we thought would be a great new land discovery.

The sight of the penguins and seals upon the ice, together with the looming dark masses ahead when we were flying in Latitude 72, Longitude about 101 West, fostered the belief that we would find a barrier or land not far off.

'Land' Iceberg

The weather, from windy snow-squally conditions, had changed to a thick dull haze. Our speedy Lockheed soon brought us to the nearest dark area. It shrunk, as things do in the hazy Polar light, as we approached. It was, after all, nothing but a long low iceberg.

Beside it, on the side nearest us, was a narrow strip of open water, black in comparison to the dull grey of the other openings between the pack ice. Apparently the drift of the berg had set up currents that prevented the young ice from gathering. The clear dark water reflected on the sheer side of the crystal iceberg gave it from afar a strong resemblance to snow-covered land.

In a few more minutes we could see that the other objects looming darkly on either side of the berg were also icebergs with similar dark open water beside them. The conditions which fooled us are probably similar to those which have led to so many false reports of land in the Antarctica.

In his third installment, tomorrow, Sir Hubert will tell of the flight back to the Scoresby and his observations that lead him to believe that the submarine has yet to play a role in Antarctic exploration.

WINDS HAMPER LINDY'S GLIDES

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Finding air currents unsuitable for sustained glider flights, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today awaited "real winds" before continuing with his sail plane experiments off Point Loma, near here. The flying colonel made one brief flight yesterday, but returned to Los Angeles last night to await reports of more favorable weather.

The flight marked the christening of the "Anne Lindbergh," a newly built Bowlus sail plane named in honor of Mrs. Lindbergh. The colonel took off from Mount Soledad, between San Diego and La Jolla in the previously untried glider and for 20 or 25 minutes kept it afloat in varying winds. He landed on a sandy beach approximately 15 miles from his starting point.

During the flight Lindbergh successfully piloted the tiny plane along the rugged shore line, and expertly skirted several high bluffs and peaks along the route. He expressed considerable elation over his glide, which was the longest he has made since taking up his motorless plane experiments.

Canadian Road Plans $21,000,000 Program

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Feb. 5 (AP)—D. C. Coleman, vice president for Western Lines, announced on his return from a conference with executive officers in Montreal that the Canadian Pacific Railways would expend $11,000,000 in Western Canada this year on branch line construction and $10,000,000 on improvements designed to increase the capacity and efficiency of present lines.

Washington Store, Dwelling Robbed

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 25.—The J. I. Hunt store was entered by a robber and Hunt relieved of about $40 in cash. The C. H. Walford home was ransacked and articles valued at about $75 taken.

PARENTS AIDING SCHOOL WORK

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 25 (AP)—The concept of parents and educators uniting in a wider view of what shall be given the child in education was the basis of an address delivered by William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, of Washington, D. C., before the department of superintendents.

The old custom of punishing the sluggard and not worrying if the slow pupil dropped out, no longer prevails, said Mr. Cooper. The sociologist and the psychologist are better able to help the child than they were a short time ago. The social adaptation of the child is growing more important and it must be left to the taxpayers until all are convinced of the value of the service and are willing to provide funds for it.

Delinquent Tax Change Proposed

An improvement in the present methods of collecting city delinquent taxes is asked in a letter received by Council from C. C. C. Stotler, secretary of the Title Guaranty Title Company. His letter was occasioned by an examination of a title for property on which no taxes had been paid since 1914.

Poland Gets Liners For New York Run

WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 25 (AP)—The Polish press has announced that the government had acquired three steamships from the Baltic American line which will maintain regular service between the Polish port of Gdynia and New York and Canada. The vessels are the Dolonia, Estonia and Lithuania.

SUNDAY SHOWS BAN DEMANDED

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 25.—Battle lines were drawn here today for a final showdown tonight before City Council relative to the operation of theaters and motion picture shows on Sunday. A committee of 100 citizens representing the Wheeling Ministerial Association will demand the passage of an ordinance prohibiting the opening of the theaters and picture houses on Sunday. A petition signed by approximately 10,000 residents will be filed by the Theater Owners' Association urging the theaters be allowed to remain open.

South Wheeling theaters, three in number, have decided to join the uptown show houses and are advertising that they also will remain open starting next Sunday.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Theater owners here have asked for an expression of public opinion on the question of Sunday movies. Ballots are to be distributed at the showhouses all this week, and letters were sent to ministers asking their views.

WESTMORELAND TOWNS FLOODED

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 25.—Thousands of dollars worth of damage was caused in this section of Pennsylvania last night by an electrical and rain storm. The district surrounding Greensburg was inundated. Many were rescued from their homes. Oakford Park suffered heavy property damage. The Brush Creek valley in and around Jeannette, Penn., Manor and Irwin was flooded and sections of both the Lincoln and William Penn highways were under water today.

JEANNETTE, Pa., Feb. 25.—Half a dozen persons were rescued and damage totaling thousands of dollars was done by a flood early today when a cloudburst swept through Turtle Creek Valley. Brush Creek and Bull Run overflowed and water ran down the main business street like a river.

Firemen rescued Mrs. Helen Scarca and her two daughters, Angeline and Florence, 15 and 14, from their home. West Jeannette and Penn were submerged. Firemen also rescued a Negro family and an aged man in West Jeannette.

The McKee Glass factory was flooded. Harrison City suffered heavy damage.

TULLY CHARGED WITH THREATS

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Feb. 25.—(AP)—James A. (Jim) Tully, red-haired "hobo author," was the defendant in a divorce suit today, charged with extreme cruelty and threatening his wife, Mrs. Margaret Myers Tully, "with great bodily harm."

Mrs. Tully, who recently established her residence here, charged her husband said that if she did not leave him he would go to the South Sea Islands.

The Tullys were married January 24, 1925, in Los Angeles. Mrs. Tully instituted two suits for divorce in 1928, charging cruelty, but dropped them after a reconciliation. Mrs. Tully was a student at the University of Southern California when she married the author. It was Tully's second marriage. He was divorced here in 1923 by his first wife, Mrs. Florence B. Tully, whom he married in Kenton, O., in 1910.

DRIVE UPON DRY LAW HURRIED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (INS).—Leaders of the House and prohibition forces here today were making plans for speedy consideration of the case for repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment before the House Judiciary Committee, which will open hearings Tuesday.

Although the hearings may be extended because of the long list of volunteer witnesses, both wet and dry leaders are pulling to make the most of the time allotted by presenting a volume of testimony and argument which cannot be overlooked.

Meanwhile, Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, was seeking support for a resolution to investigate the prohibition enforcement record. A vote on the resolution was postponed yesterday for two weeks because of tariff legislation.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(INS).—Carrying a plea for the crime increase, Dr. Harold A. Cook, Cook County Medical Examiner, former police chief, and Dr. Francis J. Gerty, superintendent of the Psychopathic Hospital, were to leave today for Washington.

Dr. Gerty and Cooke are to appear as witnesses before the House committee which is considering proposals to repeal or modify the present law.

HORSEMANSHIP TEST REVISED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP).—Why rising to the trot or "posting" protects both a horse and the rider, how to ride a horse over hurdles with aplomb and why one should lean on a horse's neck when sliding down a steep embankment will be explained in the revised Army textbooks on equestrian matters.

The War Department announced today that for two months a board composed of the outstanding horsemen of the cavalry has been in daily session revising the textbooks.

Brig. Gen. W. C. Short, dean of American Army equestrians, headed the board which discussed horseback riding from a strictly military viewpoint as well as from the standpoint of cross-country riding, hunting, steeplechase and horse-show jumping.

The board has included the various phases of horsemanship as taught for the last several years at the cavalry school, Fort Riley, Kan., where the best features were combined from a survey of methods developed at the French and Italian schools and by the American cowboy.

Anti-Saloon Chief In Missouri Dies

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 25.—(AP).—The Rev. Dr. Parker Shields, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Missouri since June, 1925, died in Baptist Hospital last night. He was 63 years old.

Dr. Shields, former central Illinois Methodist church pastor, was state superintendent in Tennessee for four years before coming here. He was an uncompromising foe of liquor and had an active part in all laws sponsored by the Anti-Saloon League nationally.

TINKHAM JOINS KEMPER SUIT

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS).—A petition on file in Federal Court today asks permission for Representative George H. Tinkham, of Massachusetts, and his two sisters to intervene as plaintiffs in a suit filed against William T. Kemper, Democratic national committeeman of Missouri. The Kemper suit was filed January 7, 1929.

Kemper is charged with having profited in excess of $6,000,000 when he served as the receiver of the bankrupt Kansas City, Orient & Mexico Railroad, at the expense of the security holders of the railway. He is also accused of having been "in connection" with the subsequent sale of the road to the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway.

It is alleged Kemper withheld knowledge of the sale and the improved finances of the railroad company from holders of gold notes the road's only security issue. These notes, it was charged, were defaulted in April, 1916, and brought from 10 to 25 cents on the dollars and were later sold with control of the road to the Santa Fe.

Tinkham's plea for intervention was made on the claim that he and his sisters were the owners of $10,000 worth of gold notes which were sold for about $1,100.

Dog Gives Life For Deaf Master

BUFFALO.—Lady, a beautiful collie dog, is dead because she refused to leave her master, a war veteran deafened in France.

Mike Convey, owner of the dog, in crossing a drawbridge, managed to get past the middle of the span before it was raised to permit a ship to pass through.

The dog, which had loitered some distance back of Convey, was left on the other side. The canine jumped in an effort to reach Convey, but plunged to her death when she failed to negotiate successfully the distance between the two spans.

BALDWIN DROPS FREE TRADE

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP).—A statement of Conservative party policy issued by Stanley Baldwin holds that free trade within the empire is the conservative ideal but that it is impossible.

The former premier gave the attitude of his party to the new United Empire party of Lord Beaverbrook formed to press the latter's appeal for free trade within the empire and a tariff wall around it.

"It cannot be done," said Mr. Baldwin. "The dominions will not have it. They have said so in the clearest terms."

One member of his two-man crew was slain and the other wounded probably fatally.

The skipper said his boat was anchored in a cove on the island and he and Steve Somerankо, of Lancaster, Cal., and John Heise, of San Pedro, Cal., were below deck when they heard a disturbance on shore. He said Somerankо went out to reconnoiter and was shot dead. Heise then went out and was wounded.

CLOUDBURST KILLS ONE, PARALYZES TRAFFIC HERE

MORE RAIN DUE; HEAVY DAMAGE TO PROPERTY

36-inch terra cotta sewer pipe leading from Scholley Park.

The breaking of the sewer trunk line and the clogging of sewers in that vicinity was reported by the taxpayers frequently and only last week a board of health inspector investigated conditions, said John Woods of 730 Naylor street, spokesman for indignant residents.

Cellars last night held about 7 feet of water, and the unpaved street was impassable.

DAMAGE WIDESPREAD

Every borough in the county reported serious damage from the storm. Street cars were halted in many parts of the county, roads were blocked, automobiles marooned and homes damaged by lightning. Creeks overflowed, filling cellars of homes in low-lying districts.

Two inches of rain, it was estimated, fell in the North Boroughs district. It was the worst storm ever experienced there, residents say.

The season's first rainbow was observed this morning as the clouds broke and the sun shone through as a light drizzle was falling, residents of Crafton reported.

WALL SWEPT AWAY

Two automobiles were swept from the Clark-Wright garage building, Ardmore boulevard and Braddock avenue, when one wall of the building was swept away by water which rushed down the boulevard valley. Damage to the building was estimated at $15,000.

The Detroit Limited, back train of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was halted for several minutes last night while workmen removed debris that had fallen onto the tracks from the hillside along the tracks between Etna and West Etna.

THREE AUTOS TRAPPED

In the city the most serious report was received by police at the East End station. Residents of the Braddock avenue and Finance street district informed police that three automobiles and their passengers were trapped in a tunnel there. The motorists attempted to drive under a railroad crossing, and the roadway, because of a slight dip, was filled with water. All three automobiles were stalled. Employes of the street department helped the occupants to safety and dug away the debris clogging the sewers.

In Boundary street, in the rear of Forbes Field, water filled the cellars of 10 dwellings. At first occupants became alarmed and left their homes but returned when the waters abated. When sewers at the north end of the Liberty tubes became clogged with sand and mud washed down the side of Mt. Washington, ponds of water two feet deep formed at the entrance to the tunnel. Many motorists were frightened when they suddenly found themselves engulfed in the flood. Many south-bound drivers turned back.

Mud covered car tracks and switches in the streets throughout the city, making it impossible for street cars to move. Water filled the carburetors and dampened ignition part of automobiles, stalling the engines.

Fineview, Trafford City and Harmony trolley routes were still out of service this morning.

LIGHTNING HITS POLES

A telephon pole was struck by lightning at Fifth avenue and Tunnel street and caught fire. Firemen were called out. Lightning also struck and ignited a transformer atop a pole at North Canal and Chest streets and a pole in East Diamond and East Ohio streets, North Side. The fires were extinguished with chemicals.

Firemen answered a dozen alarms during the three hours the storm raged. They also were called to the home of W. H. Harmon at 3114 Iowa street, which caught fire after being struck by lightning. The blaze caused $200 damage, firemen said. Slight damage was reported at the home of William McBride, 3308 Terrace street.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company reported that cars were delayed in virtually every section of the city and county. Several times firemen were called out when fire started on the cars, due either to lightning or to short circuits started by dampness.

STREETS FLOODED

Landslides and water filled Second avenue from Brady street to the Glenwood Bridge and halted cars and automobiles. This condition also existed in Butler street from Forty-first street to the city line. Brady street at Fifth avenue and at Forbes street was filled with water and mud. In the West End, water filled Main street, Carson street, Steuben street and Wabash avenue, halting all Point Bridge street cars.

Entire County Suffers Heavy Storm Damage

PITCAIRN.

Several motorists were forced to wade knee deep from their automobile when it became stalled in Wall avenue. A short time after they had escaped, the raging waters covered the top of the car. Street car and vehicular traffic was stopped in virtually every part of the borough. Dirty Cap Run overflowed its banks and caused serious damage in Wall avenue extension. Cellars were flooded and in several cases the water reached the first floor. Families fled to safety and returned when the water receded early today. Street Foreman John Smelz and crew worked all night clearing the streets.

CORAOPOLIS.

Embankments leading to the southern approach of the Coraopolis-Sewickley Bridge were weakened and for a time it was feared they would slide away. The county road department sent a crew to repair the damage. Narrow Run road leading to the bridge was blocked by water and mud. Street cars were halted when sewers backed up and filled Fourth avenue and Locust street with water.

EDGEWOOD

Police were called to Race street, Edgewood, by a landslide. The earth movement was in an uninhabited section and caused little property damage. Braddock avenue was flooded and considerable debris left in the wake of the water. A culvert overflowed in Greendale avenue, bringing vehicular traffic to a halt.

BAUERSTOWN

Girty's Run overflowed its banks in Bauerstown, Shaler Township, causing heavy damage in Evergreen avenue. Several families residing near the banks of the run hastily left their home while the water was at its height. Several small landslides added to the terror. Many cellars were flooded, according to Fire Chief John Nill.

ASPINWALL

Automobile traffic in the Freeport road, Aspinwall, was at a standstill during the storm. More than 50 machines stalled in that vicinity, water having reached the flooring of the cars and flooded the ignition.

SHARPSBURG

A dozen men under Street Commissioner Samuel Tanza worked all night to clear streets of debris washed down hillsides outside the borough. Streets as far as Sixth and Main streets were littered with mud.

SEWICKLEY HEIGHTS

Rocks, trees and other debris were washed into streets of Sewickley Heights, blocking automobiles and delaying all traffic. Fern Hollow and Blackburn roads suffered most damage. Police Chief Frank Sturm and other members of the force cleared the roads for motorists.

RANKIN

The storm provided pyrotechnical displays for residents of Rankin. Electric wires were struck and caught fire at Third and Mound streets and in Oak alley. Streets also were filled with mud and water but no serious damage was reported.

NORTH BRADDOCK

Electric and Bell avenues, North Braddock, were covered with mud and slime. Street workers labored throughout the night to clear the thoroughfares of the debris.

SWISSVALE

Residents of Edgewood, Oakgrove and the Manor avenue districts of Swissvale were without lights for several hours. Cellars were flooded and streets blocked with water and mud. Swissvale Hollow, near Edgewood, was flooded, borough police said.

ETNA

Trolley service was halted for two hours in Butler street while Street Commissioner John Miller and his workmen cleared the streets. The street employes worked all night clearing away the debris. A landslide along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad right-of-way between Etna and West Etna threatened to stop traffic, but workmen cleared the tracks.

McKEES ROCKS

Firemen maintained a guard in Locust street to keep pedestrians from danger when lightning struck a pole and knocked wires into the street. High water and mud delayed street car traffic in Broadway. Landslides also caused delays at the Pittsburgh, Chartiers and Youghiogheny Railroad crossing and at the Davis School.

STOWE TOWNSHIP

Cellars were flooded in many Stowe Township homes, police stated. Debris and water filled the streets and porches in the Highland avenue extension section.

GLASSPORT

A landslide along Dunchee's Hill, between Glassport and McKeesport, interrupted traffic between the two towns. Only slight damage was reported in the borough, according to police reports.

WHITAKER

Steps along the borough's streets were damaged by rushing water. High water also halted street car service at Duquesne Junction. Kennywood Boulevard was flooded and covered with mud.

McKEESPORT

Improved property in Auberle street suffered severe damage when Crooked run overflowed and flooded cellars. High water also swept debris into homes in the East End and in the Tenth ward. In West Fifth avenue a concrete wall was carried away.

ALIQUIPPA

A road leading into Aliquippa near the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation plant was reported washed out.

BELLEVUE

Scores of automobiles were put out of commission when motorists tried to drive through deep water. Police towed the cars to public garages. The borough was without electric current for two hours.

EDGEWORTH

Cellars were flooded and streets made impassable by the high water that flooded the borough. Street Commissioner James Gibb and six men worked all night.

AMBRIDGE.

Ambridge firemen were summoned to a house at 1304 Church street after it had been struck by lightning. Small damage resulted. Street car traffic in Duss avenue was delayed when one of the tracks became covered with debris.

GLENFIELD.

A heavy landslide along the river road between Haysville and Glenfield occurred during the early course of the storm. Sewickley police were notified at 10 o'clock last night that the road was unsafe and to warn motorists. Early today, the Sewickley authorities were told that the road was closed to traffic and that all vehicular traffic should be detoured.

FOREST HILLS.

In Forest Hills the storm caused havoc along Ardmore boulevard and on the Ardmore street car line, piling logs, stones and dirt over the thoroughfares. The greatest damage was done at the Linc-Hi-Wa storage house where water tore out a section of the foundation and damaged about 35 automobiles stored there. Three new cars and one used car were washed out of the building.

EAST PITTSBURGH.

Flooded sewers backed up into East Pittsburgh streets after Turtle Creek overflowed, covering streets with debris. Entrances to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company plant on Electric avenue, were blocked with mud and stones.

A flood sewer became choked, and water backed up and flooded aisles in the Westinghouse plant, suspending night operations. Debris was cleared away early today, and operations were resumed.

TURTLE CREEK

The borough of Turtle Creek was the hardest hit in the valley, police said. Virtually all streets leading to Braddock and Airbrake avenues were impassable until shortly before noon, and street trolley traffic was tied up five-and-a-half hours.

The overflow from Turtle Creek was responsible for most damage, police said, but damage was caused also by overflow from Brown avenue creek, which flooded cellars along Brown avenue.

Several foot bridges floated down the stream to block the new storm sewer near Shaw avenue. Automobiles being driven in Brown avenue, Shaw avenue and Braddock avenue were disabled by water and mud, and had to be abandoned.

Workmen and residents labored all night to clear the thoroughfares. At the Turtle Creek plant of the Westinghouse Company it was said the entire yards were flooded, and thousands of dollars' damage done.

EMSWORTH

A temporary foot bridge over Lowrie's Run was swept away by the torrent.

A landslide temporarily blocked Camp Horne road, directly across from the camp. Above the slide a portion of Eicher road was washed away.

MILLVALE

North avenue was covered with three feet of water which entered cellers, damaging stores and supplies in the business district. The front of Werner's Paint Shop, North avenue, was damaged. The storm washed away the supports of a scaffold erected during the remodeling of Walter's Tailor Shop, Lincoln and North Avenues. Overflow from Girty's Run damaged lumber in the yards of the Bennett Lumber Co.

SEWICKLEY

The lawns of many residents in Nevin avenue, Sewickley, today were covered with debris left by the storm. Water rushed down the hillsides to the thoroughfare so fast that sewers were unable to carry it off. Cellars also were flooded. Lights were out in the borough from 10 p. m. until 6 a. m., one of the transformers at the sub-station being out of order. Water seeped into the basement of the Valley Hospital, and firemen were called to pump it out.

WILKINSBURG.

Telephone service in the Churchill Exchange was crippled and street lights in Montier street and the Laketon road district were darkened when water reached the underground conduits. Cellars of homes, in Montier and Glenn streets and Swissvale avenue were flooded.

OVERBROOK.

In Overbrook the principal damage was done to lawns of newly-erected homes. In many cases, the dirt was washed into the streets, clogging sewers. Many basements were flooded and wireless aerials were knocked down by the storm.

CHAIN BANKING PROBE OPENS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—De-centralized branch banking was suggested as a solution for the banking needs of the country today by John W. Pole, comptroller of the currency, the first witness to testify at the opening of the House Banking Committee's investigation into group, chain and branch banking.

Pole said, however, that "there seems to be no need for emergency legislation, but rather for an attempt to reach a normal and fundamental solution." He expressed the opinion that there was a "condition in our system of bank organization which appears to require legislation to protect the public."

He asserted it was his view that "rural communities are not supplied with adequate banking facilities."

"I should like to see the people of every community have access to more than one strong bank with the banks competing for business," he continued. "All persons should have the benefit which comes from a competitive banking service."

ALLEGED KILLER TAKES STAND

Herman Stevens, Negro, 30, of 2714 Penn avenue, rear, took the stand in his own defense today for the killing of his alleged common law wife, Minnie Smith, alias Stevens, Negro, 29, last October. The commonwealth closed its case at noon.

Two jurors were dismissed yesterday by Judge Frank P. Patterson when they told the court of prejudices against Negroes. The jurors were Herbert Haaek, 520 McCandless avenue, and L. J. Kucher, 1214 East street.

HAITIAN REBELS LESS HOSTILE

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The council of state has adjourned until April 14 when it will elect a new president of Haiti. Under the law, changes in the personnel of the council are possible only while the council is in recess.

The opposition organizations held a series of orderly meetings yesterday. They decided not to hold any manifestations on the arrival of President Hoover's commission and to concentrate on a demand for election of the president by the legislative body instead of the council of state.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

U. S. ATTORNEY ON TRAIL OF DOPE RING

N. Y. Grand Jury Findings Expected to Win Support For Porter Drug Measures

By WINIFRED BLACK,
Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—So the cat is out of the bag at last.

Right out in the open—where we can all see what a miserable mangey, cunning, dangerous animal it is, and has been for an outrageously long time.

United States Attorney Tuttle, of New York, is dragging the whole miserable astounding story of the dope trail that leads right straight to the Federal Narcotic Bureau in Washington, out into the air.

GRAND JURY BUSY

And now the grand jury is going to investigate the doings and the strange friendships of Col. L. G. Nutt, deputy commissioner of prohibition, who is at the head of narcotic enforcement for the whole United States.

And all about several other things that look rather strange.

What happened to some of the large quantities of dope that were seised in New York—and never quite accounted for.

Who had direct as well as indirect dealings with a certain ring of smugglers well known to the customs people?

The grand jury is going to begin that definite investigation within the next 10 days or two weeks.

Let's all watch it day by day and hour by hour.

STORM BREWING

Unless the indications are all absolutely wrong, there's going to be a big storm somewhere, and some very strange conditions will be exposed.

And then there are people in the world who laugh at the idea that there is a rich, powerful dope ring that stretches from one end of the world to the other and pulls rich people and people of importance into the net just as it drags poor, helpless victims down into the mud.

What a time of all times for Porter of Pennsylvania to push his two bills through Congress.

The first bill provides for a separate department of narcotic control—and if the scandal that is shaking the Federal narcotic bureau to the very foundations isn't a good reason to consider a new deal all around with a new department as well as a new narcotic commission—then there is no such thing as a good reason for anything, anywhere, anyhow, any time.

EVIL GROWING

The dope evil is growing like some poisonius toadstool—growing bigger and more dangerous every day.

The dope situation is too serious a menace to be treated as a little by-product of prohibition.

Let's put narcotics and the control of narcotics into a separate and distinct department of the Federal government and let's help the government to put a man at the head of that department who knows his business and who is courageous enough and honest enough and intelligent enough to attend to that business without being influenced in any way whatsoever, either by money or by political pressure or by the "friendship" of leaders in the cruel, wicked business of dope dealing.

Let's make a clean sweep of the whole inefficient dawdling, maybe and maybe not Narcotic Bureau and feel that we are meeting with the greatest single evil that threatens our nation today, with something like common sense and common understanding.

"GET BEHIND PORTER"

The Porter bill stands for just exactly such a program—let's get behind that bill, you and I and every good citizen in the United States.

The second Porter bill which will come up at the same time, probably, as the first one, is important too.

Vitally important.

That bill is aimed at the doctors and druggists who take advantage of their position to sell dope either over the counter or through fraudulent prescriptions issued by doctors who are a disgrace to their noble, and high-minded profession.

Think of it.

There are 2,000 doctors in the United States—2,000 who have been convicted of "dope dealing"—not suspected mind you—not even merely "accused"—but convicted.

Shall these men, and men like them, drag their splendid profession into the dirt without even a protest from the fine men of ideals who stand between us and death, like a great army of courageous sentinels?

DOCTORS APPROVE

The best doctors in the United States want to turn the mercenary "dope doctors" out of the profession and keep them out.

The Porter bill will do that very thing when the bill passes and turns into a law.

Keep your eye on the grand jury investigation of the Federal narcotic bureau.

Keep your ears open for news of the Porter bills.

These things are of vital importance to every home and every household in the United States of America today.

Don't let any one throw dust in your eyes—there is no politics in this particular situation—or there should be no politics in it.

Youth, hope, courage, ambition—these are the things the dope ring uses for counters in their dreadful game of the dope evil.

Let's stand by our own, and stand firm—for once.

Rail Tower Men, Flooded Out, Use Box Car

Pennsylvania Railroad signalmen who work in the UF Tower at Fifteenth street, were forced to go to work on top of a box car early today. The men usually enter a small room on the track level and mount a ladder to the signal room. During the electrical storm a sewer leading out of the lower room backed up and filled the place with several feet of water. The workmen climbed to the roof of a freight car, were moved alongside the tower and climbed through a window.

Ben Avon Burglar Gets $700 in Gems

E. W. Langfitt, 140 Dickson avenue, Ben Avon, reported to county detectives that a burglar entered his home last night and stole a $500 ring, a $200 bar pin and $15. A rear window was forced open by the intruder, who did his work without awakening anyone.

H. J. French

TROLLEY CRASH DEAD NOW 2

BALTIMORE, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The death toll in the triple trolley car crash in Baltimore yesterday was increased to two last night with the death of Louis Helm, 52, whose legs were severed by a piece of steel. Thomas Cerney, 42, died shortly after the accident without regaining consciousness. He lost a leg. Both men were passengers.

Forty-six persons were injured in the crash which occurred as the cars, groping their way through fog, were carrying several hundred persons to their employment. Each car had a trailer.

The first car stopped to receive passengers and was bumped slightly by the second. While the motormen and conductors were making notes of the collision the third, traveling down grade at a faster rate of speed, struck the second car, telescoping the trailer.

People were thrown from their seats and many were cut by flying glass.

Investigation resulted in the arrest of Yackoby and Raymond Shiley, 21, driver of another machine, who, police said, was racing with Yackoby. Shiley, who had six passengers in his car, barely escaped hitting the freight train. Both drivers are being held.

CHINA PUTS BAN ON JAP PAPER

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The Shanghai Nichi Nichi, Japanese daily newspaper published in Shanghai, again has incurred the displeasure of the national government and is suffering the loss of mail privileges as a result.

Six months ago the Nichi Nichi was banned from the mails because it took exception to a statement made by a Chinese official regarding the Japanese nation. At the end of five weeks, the government raised the ban and announced that the organ might continue to circulate providing it refrained from criticizing the Chinese.

Recently the government again surprised the editors of the paper by once more refusing them the privilege of the mails. No explanation of the second ban has been given and the Japanese have filed a protest with the Shanghai Commissioner of Foreign Affairs demanding that one be made.

The Nichi Nichi is now the second foreign newspaper in Shanghai denied circulation by post on orders from the national government. The other is the Shanghai Evening Post, the only American daily in the city, which was banned recently.

DOCTORS ISSUE DIET WARNINGS

Too Strenuous Reducing Diets Lead to Serious Results

Statistics from all over the country show an alarming number of girls and women who are paying the penalty of reducing diets which are sponsored by ill-advised people. These slaves to their diet are suffering from many evils. Some have no resistance to the common cold, many have constipation and there are those who are in the first stages of tuberculosis.

Overweight should be avoided but the diet in normal cases should be complete. The system needs regularly proteins, roughage, water and vitamins. The foods which have these elements are meat, fish, eggs, leafy vegetables, fruit and milk.

In planning meals, desserts should not be overlooked. They fill an important place in the diet. Cakes, puddings, fruit pies, custards, ice cream and candy are a fitting climax to a balanced meal. Sugar sprinkled on cereals makes them more palatable and especially inviting to children.

Many cooks have discovered the value of an old rule to use sugar in seasoning vegetables. Carrots, parsnips, tomatoes, peas and cabbage, which are rich in nourishment, are much improved in color and flavor by adding a dash of sugar during the cooking process.

It does not pay to risk your health by denying yourself necessary food in an effort to reduce your weight to compare with that of another. Health depends upon good foods and good foods can be made more appetizing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

"For three years I was bothered with hard, red pimples on my face and neck. They itched and burned so that I could not get a good night's sleep. I tried different remedies but only got a few days' relief and then the pimples would break out again as bad as ever. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It gave me relief so I purchased more and in about four weeks the pimples were all gone. I was healed." GIRLS' QUARREL CAUSES FEUD

WEST HELENA, Ark., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Sheriff J. V. Barlow last night assigned deputies to street patrol duty to prevent execution of alleged threats of bloodshed which developed from a school girls' quarrel. The greater number of citizens in this town of 3,500 people at a mass meeting protested the resignation of George Cromwell, as superintendent of schools, which Cromwell said had been caused by threats upon his life by Lawrence Brown, father of two children, who were disciplined after their quarrel with another girl.

Sheriff Barrlow said threats against Brown were made in the meeting and the deputies were assigned to the double task of preventing Brown from carrying into effect his alleged threats and preventing attacks upon the father. Brown is on parole from the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases at Little Rock, where he was sent after he pleaded insanity in his trial in 1927 on a first degree murder charge. He previously had been tried twice for two other killings.

Citizens at the mass meeting asked Cromwell to reconsider his resignation and the school board petitioned the superintendent to continue.

Barlow said he learned Brown's two small daughters, after a quarrel with another girl about their age were sent home by Cromwell. Later, he said, Brown threatened to kill Cromwell unless he disciplined the other girl. This Cromwell refused to do.

TURKEY LIMITS FOREIGN CASH

ISTANBUL, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—As a measure to bolster up the weakened Turkish lira, the government issued a drastic order forbidding banks to accept accounts in foreign money.

The order states that all foreign money received by Turkish exporters must be changed to liras on the Istanbul Bourse within three days after receipt.

Foreign companies and individuals in Turkey whose bank accounts are usually kept in sterling or dollars will be forced to change them to liras.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A quarrel, which had arisen after their marriage of five months, was blamed by Dorothy Weber for the suicide of her husband, Albert, as she started to carry out her threat to return to her mother.

Mrs. Weber told police she and her husband had quarreled and that she started to her mother's home. Her husband accompanied her on the street car and after she had alighted from it and started to walk through a field to her house, followed. She reiterated her intention to returning to the house to stay and a few seconds later heard a shot behind her where her husband was walking. She turned to see him on the ground and a pistol slipping from his hand.

THIRD WILL SUIT JURY FAILS

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Unable to reach a verdict after nine hours deliberation, the jury that for the last six weeks has been hearing the contest in the will of Francis A. Donnelly, brought by a brother and two sisters, was discharged last night by Judge Albert S. J. Owens, of the Court of Common Pleas. The will disposing of a $500,000 estate has been in the courts for nearly two years. The action concluded yesterday was the third trial.

In the first trial a city court judge ruled in favor of Mrs. Mary Frances Donnelly, who was left practically the entire estate, but the court of appeals overruled the lower court. In the second trial the jury was unable to reach an agreement.

The suit was brought by Mrs. Mary A. S. Moore, Mrs. Genevieve Funk and Edward A. Donnelly who charged that their brother was not of sound mind when he made the will.

Armstrong has long been active in Republican political circles of the state, and last was in public position as one of the three attorneys who acted as counsel for the Legislative grand inquest committee during its investigation of the State Roads Commission during the 1929 session of the Legislature.

NO SLEEP IN THIS KENTUCKY HOME

ALBERT ROESSLER, JR.

Till REM relieved two coughs

Albert Roessler, Jr., of 421 E. Ormsby Ave., Louisville, Ky., and his sister Lynwood, both had bad coughs at the same time. They had both caught cold and were coughing so that there was hardly any sleep for anyone in the family. No matter what their mother tried, the coughing continued until a REM ad turned her steps to Lichtefeld's Drug Store at Preston and Ormsby. She brought home a bottle of REM and discovered "relief was very quick for them both. After just a few doses of REM, they stopped coughing and started getting their rest at night." One reason for REM's remarkable results is the special ingredient it contains that isn't found in ordinary cough syrups. Insist on REM—every druggist has it.

DOWNTOWN FIRE LOSS $5,000

Firemen from the South Side and North Side each today battled a slight downtown fire on the third floor of a two-story building at 606 Penn avenue. The fire was in the quarters of the Pittsburgh Motion Picture Company and the U. H. M. Kilm hat cleaning establishment on the third and fourth floors. Battalion Chief Louis Cook estimated the damage at $5,000.

Dense smoke and acid fumes filled the two floors and although firemen were wearing gas masks they were unable to remain in the building for any length of time.

The North Side and South Side firemen responded because downtown companies had been called out on another alarm a few minutes before. The Penn avenue blaze was discovered by Patrolman George Schaffmiller, who from Sixth street and Penn avenue saw smoke issuing from the third-floor windows. It is not known whether any valuable instruments were destroyed or damaged in the fire.

Ten persons, members of two families were ordered from their homes by police and firemen today when it was discovered that the basement of a building at 425 Water street was filled with fumes of unknown description. The families reside over the restaurant of John Rallis at 525 Water street and of the adjoining structure at 423 Water street.

VACANT ROOMS PAY NO RENT

WASTE space is money wasted—especially if the waste space takes the form of a nice, attractive, spare room that could be "rented out." Put that spare room to work. If you don't use it, let the income from it reduce your living expenses. Twenty-five or thirty dollars extra, a fair price for a nice room, the first of every month will come in mighty "handy." And there is scarcely any extra work connected with renting a room or two. They have to be cleaned and dusted and heated anyhow, whether they are occupied or not.

Let the Sun-Telegraph find congenial tenants for your vacant rooms. A sign in your window will reach a few, but your ad in the Sun-Telegraph Classified Section will be read by hundreds of thousands of regular Sun-Telegraph readers—persons who buy the Sun-Telegraph because they, too, think it is "Pittsburgh's most complete and interesting newspaper." Plenty of these readers are eager to get a suitable place to live in pleasant surroundings, and you can select your roomers from many.

Call Grant 5400 and tell the ad-taker about your room. Give her all the particulars, location, price, etc. Don't be afraid to use plenty of space. The more you tell, the more you sell. It is cheaper in the end to give a good description of your rooms than to omit any details that might attract tenants. She will help you word your ad effectively, tell you how much it will cost, and render any service you may desire. If your name is listed in the telephone directory you may charge your ad and a bill will be rendered later. Decide to rent your vacant rooms today. Use the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads.

Experience Is the Best Teacher—but you need not experiment. Hundreds of Pittsburgh women have already done that, and found the Sun-Telegraph brings them most satisfactory results.

Mrs. C. B. C., West Liberty Ave., Dormont, was advised by her husband to advertise her room in the Sun-Telegraph. She placed her ad and rented her place the first day. Needless to say she is very much pleased with the Sun-Telegraph.

Mrs. A. B. Mc., Lilac St., Squirrel Hill, rented her suite of three rooms through an ad which appeared for one day in the Sun-Telegraph. Mrs. Mc. is now a Sun-Telegraph booster.

Mrs. K., Victory St., Dormont, rented a four-room suite through the Sun-Telegraph. The ad was ordered in for three days but was canceled the second day, as the rooms were rented on the first day. She will use the Sun-Telegraph the next time she has rooms to rent.

Time and time again the Sun-Telegraph has demonstrated its ability to bring results. If you have any renting problems, rooms, apartments or houses, let the Sun-Telegraph do the job for you. Call Grant 5400.

FATHER WINS BURIAL RIGHT

In a "tragic counterpart of 'Abie's Irish Rose,'" the father of Mrs. Frances M. Butler was given the right to bury his daughter by Judge George V. Moore today in an equity action instituted by the deceased's husband.

The court's decision was rendered after it was testified Mrs. Butler, who had been converted to the Roman Catholic faith at the time of her marriage in 1920 to Thomas N. Butler, had been reconverted to the Jewish faith during a recent illness. The woman died yesterday.

The husband's equity action asked that the father, Adi Birnkrantz, her two sons by a former marriage, Bernard and Wilbert Rice, and an undertaker, Walter S. Willig, be restrained from arranging the burial. All reside in McKeesport.

Mrs. Butler was taken from her husband's home to the St. Francis Hospital February 8, and from there was taken February 11 to her father's home, where she died, according to Butler, who was with her at the time of death. He averred that an undertaker he engaged was refused the body by Birnkrantz, who engaged Willig and planned the burial in the Ellroad cemetery, Versailles Township.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Herbert Keister, alleged vagrant, declined to salute the American flag in police court here to show Judge George J. Steiger that he was "sympathetic with American ideals," and the court sentenced him to 30 days in jail for contempt. Keister gave notice of appeal.

U. S. PRISONERS GO FOR DRINKS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—No more federal prisoners will be farmed out to the Mansfield (O.) county jail unless conditions there are "materially improved," it was stated at the Department of Justice today following an investigation which disclosed that the authorities were "extremely lenient" with federal charges.

Investigation is said to have revealed that two federal prisoners were allowed to go outside to speakeasies and attend the theater.

No action will be taken by the department because both federal prisoners have now completed their terms and have been discharged.

In the circumstances, department officials said there was no recourse left but to refrain from sending any more prisoners to Mansfield until conditions are improved.

POWER LAWYER CITED ON FRAUD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Charges that have marked the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee's investigation of the Federal Power Commission continued today with F. E. Bonner, commission secretary, charging that Charles A. Russell, commission solicitor, had made a "false affidavit" to obtain $700 just before he became commission counsel.

Russell in testimony last week asserted Bonner countenanced irregularities and favored "power interests." The commission secretary declared today that Russell's charges were false and continuing his attack on the counsel said he "is a dishonest debtor."

Bonner added that Russell was under investigation by the government.

Senator Wheeler interrupted: "If you discharged every one in the government who doesn't pay his debts you wouldn't have many working."

Senator Dill asked Bonner if he could give any "official act" in which Russell failed to serve the public. The witness presented several letters which condemned Russell personally.

The affidavit said that Russell was "separating himself from the civil service." Bonner testified, adding that he did this in order to receive the $700 from the government's retirement fund.

FIND GANGSTER SLAIN, BURIED

GARY, Ind., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The reason Paul Perconti failed to telephone his wife last Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, was that he was dead—shot to death—a victim of the Duneland gangs.

They found his body late yesterday, buried in a quicklime crypt, sealed with freshly-poured cement under the floor of an abandoned barn, 12 miles east of Gary.

Always when absent from home Perconti had telephoned his wife hourly. It is a practice among members of gangs, who never can be sure their time has not been set by rival gangsters. When he failed to call last Tuesday afternoon, his wife notified police.

Perconti was known as the leader of a gang reputedly active in the transportation of alcohol. He was the second of three brothers to die by violence, and the third brother, John, has been hunted nearly two years to answer charges connecting him with the Billy Ranieri kidnaping.

Tickets to Theater Jail Two in Thefts

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Two theater tickets, which police said were stolen from a home in Lansdowne, a suburb, brought about the arrest of Arthur Field, 16, and William Broell, 16, both of Lansdowne. The boys, according to police, admitted robbing nine homes.

When Lieut. Weston, of the Lansdowne police, found the tickets stolen from his house, he secured the numbers. Last night he went to the theater and arrested the boys when they attempted to use the tickets to gain admittance to the performance.

Ex-Officer Paroled In Pointing Gun

WATER NORMAL HEAD SAYS

Drinking water in the East Boroughs, which had been marked by a peculiar odor and taste during the past two days, will be normal today, W. C. Hawley, chief engineer and general superintendent of the Pennsylvania Water Company, said.

"When the ice broke at the headwaters of the Allegheny River last week," Mr. Hawley explained, "a lot of organic matter was introduced into the water, together with a large amount of phenol.

"To comply with the state health regulations we increased the amount of chlorine to guard against any impurity in the water. The taste and odor was produced by the chlorine and phenol.

"The water should be normal today. The Turtle Creek Valley district may notice a slight difference in taste, but our tests show that all of the water will be as it should be."

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair.

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

How to Relieve A Gassy Stomach

Excessive gas in stomach and bowels is directly due to one of three things—nervous excitement, indigestion or the action of stomach acids upon alkalies in the food. To obtain genuine, lasting relief, get a package of Baalmann's Gas Tablets from your druggist and take a couple before and after meals. See how different your stomach will act from the very first day. No more bloating or distress after eating—no sour taste in the mouth—no burning in the stomach—no pains about the heart, palpitation, difficult breathing or other annoying symptoms arising from gas pressure.

Baalmann's Gas Tablets get at the underlying cause of the trouble and help to banish it safely quickly and completely. Absolutely free from injurious drugs. You'll find them on sale at any good drug store. Price $1.

FLIER MUST PAY FIRST WIFE

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Superior Court has ordered Leslie Arnold, former United States Army aviator and one of the Army round-the-world fliers, to pay Mrs. Mildred Avery Arnold $75 a month temporary alimony pending trial of a separate maintenance suit filed by his wife.

The hearing was a sequel to a series of marital disputes between the couple which started after Arnold presumably obtained a divorce and then married Priscilla Dean, former motion picture star.

Shortly after his marriage to Miss Dean, Mrs. Mildred Arnold started action in Atlanta, Ga., and had the divorce decree set aside. Arnold and Miss Dean were married in 1928 at Agua Caliente, Mexico, but separated when they learned Mrs. Mildred Arnold had annulled the decree.

Mrs. Arnold then began a separate maintenance suit but servers could not locate immediately. He was reported in various cities and after months the papers finally were presented to him.

Arnold first married in 1918 in New York City but he and Mrs. Mildred Arnold lived together only a short time before he was called to war.

TANLAC ENDS ANOTHER CASE OF RHEUMATISM

and Stomach Troubles—Hotel Man Benefits This Time

Ending the suffering of 10 years in just a few weeks is going some but that's just an example of how quickly Tanlac works in stubborn cases that never yield to other remedies.

No wonder so many local people are so enthusiastic about Tanlac—no wonder local druggists are loud in praise of this medicine. Read for instance what Mr. J. L. Kline says: "For 10 years have had stomach trouble. Rheumatism also of mornings, stiff and sore all over, mostly in back and shoulders. A good powerful medicine was needed to fix me up and Tanlac proved to be all of that. From it I got relief from all troubles, stomach and rheumatism. My digestion now is just about 100% good. No more pain or distress, eat good, sleep as good as I eat, pain, stiffness, soreness all gone. Rheumatism in back and shoulders wiped out. I have tried out lots of medicines but Tanlac gave me results." That's the story of Tanlac in a nutshell—it gives results and gives them quick, for every herb, bark and root is a real medicine. Many "patent medicines" make glowing promises that may fool you into buying them, but remember Tanlac is a real medicine that backs its claims with a guarantee. At all druggists. Accept no substitute.

BAD BREATH KEPT HER HOME

Humiliation Ended by World's Tonic,

"For weeks I stayed at home every day suffering. I would not go near my neighbors because I knew my breath was so foul they would notice it. To make matters worse, though I seldom sweat, I detected bad odors coming from my body. My skin was getting dull and sallow, and my eyes were yellowish. I had severe headaches at times in the top and back of my head. I would sit holding the back of my head with my hands every time I went out in company. I had dark circles under my eyes; my ankles were swollen in the daytime. I was so humiliated I did not want anyone to see me.

"All these things seemed to come from a bad stomach. My food soured on it, and it got so bad I hated to eat anything. With this I suffered a great deal. I had sharp pains through my shoulders and neck. I got so weak I did not want to do anything, and every effort I made hurt me. During this time I took a lot of medicine, but if it had any effect I could not see where it helped." This sad story was told to a druggist in Pittsburgh by a lady who was purchasing a bottle of World's Tonic. She said: "All these uncomfortable things disappeared when I began taking World's Tonic. It seemed as if it was made just for my case. The first bottle helped me, and this is the fourth that I am buying today. It is doing me so much good that I will never be without it in the house. I eat with a relish now. My food does me good. My breath is clean, the body odors have disappeared, my eyes have cleared up, and I have real strength for my household work.

"The experience I had really scared me. I shudder to think what it would have led to. World's Tonic relieved me so quickly and thoroughly that I cannot say too much for it." This new valuable medicine can be obtained at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, or any other first class drug store. (A-64)

CITIZENS DEMAND TOWN HALL ACTION

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Jimmy Hoey,
Police Inspector,
Oakland.

Jimmy:

WELL, now, how do you like Oakland by this time, Ump? Are the boys and girls at Pitt making trouble and are there too many cars parked in Lovers' Lane over in Schenley?

Things have been rather lively since you—oh, Ump, pardon this hasty interruption but we just remembered you had a visitor to the home the other day. What are you going to call her and what kind of cigars did you pass? Congratulations.

As we were saying, things have been rather lively since you were transferred from the downtown district to the Cathedral of Learning. Your successor, Al Beebe, is hot-footing it all over the district getting acquainted. We heard the other day that Al didn't think much of the office you used and changed to another. The gossip is that he tossed out that electric reducing machine and put in one of those new-fangled telephones. Does that burn you up, Ump?

Well, anyhow, what we wanted to tell you about was a symposium we've been working on for over a year. Every time we meet a racketeer we ask him who is the copper that he'd like to see in Haiti and the answer's the same every time—Jimmy Hoey, the Umpire, although the racket guys use stronger language than that.

Well, now, that's a pretty compliment and we hope Senator Coyne hears about it. Any copper who isn't liked by the racket guys must be on the up-and-up—and up. What we'd like to have is a tin whistle for every time you've jerked the old thumb and barked, "You can't run, see?"

The only other thing we wanted to mention was Schenley Park. Summer's coming on now, Ump, and the boys and girls will be strolling through the park and if we hear that you're chasing 'em home we're going to put you on the pan. You were young once, weren't you, Ump?

They're giving examinations to applicants for jobs on the police force today and that reminds Jess Boyle of this story:

"What's the distance from Pittsburgh to Denver, Col.?" the questionnaire asks.

"I don't know," the applicant answers, "and if that's to be my beat I don't want the job."

WE ARE being assailed by persons of sinister motives for our bridge theories. Not a good bridge player according to the rules of the experts, we make up for this deficiency by playing an unusual game. If, for instance, we have eight good spades we'll start the bidding in clubs or diamonds, ease into our spades later and inveigle the enemy into a welcome double. That is our strategy and some day we're confident it'll work.

In bridge discussions we have never been able to raise our voice above the tumult. And the humiliation of the situation is that Howard Cassidy, the attorney, insists that this is as it should be. We have been trying for years to assert, as a pioneer, that there are too many accepted conventions, if not rules; that, for example, if you bid an original club, your partner should immediately presume that you are inviting a no-trump declaration. This is all wrong; there should be more hit-and-miss about it. If bridge is to be reduced to obvious "strategy," then we're going back to Old Maid.

10 MORE VOTE BOXES UNDER SCRUTINY

County Begins Quiz in Three More Wards as Result of Fraud Charge

County Detective David Drexler today began examination of 10 more ballot boxes, reported by Chairman Ward Bonsall, of the primary recount board, to contain evidence of fraud. The first 18 boxes examined resulted in informations being filed against two election boards.

Boxes now under the official magnifying glass are those of the Third, Thirty-second and Thirty-third precincts of the Fourth Ward, First, Second, Third, Fourth, Seventh and Twenty-fourth precincts of the Fifth Ward, and the Thirty-fifth of the Nineteenth Ward. A court order to have the boxes turned over by the sheriff to the custody of the district attorney was signed by Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court yesterday, and the boxes were delivered to the district attorney this morning.

PEDAL 56,000 MILES ON BIKE

After 56,000 miles of leg work on their bicycles, F. J. Davar and G. Sztavjanik are in Pittsburgh today making ready to finish their round-the-world tour. The cyclists will leave the city tomorrow for Los Angeles, where they will board ship for China. They expect to tour China and Japan and finish their travels at Bombay, India. When they arrive in Bombay six years will have elapsed since they started.

Davar, a native of Bombay and a Boy Scout director, left his home in 1924 seeking for adventure and establishment of a bicycle tour record. From Bombay he went via Caucasus Mountains to Turkey and Austria, where he arrived after 10 months. There Sztavjanik joined him.

The travelers carry an autograph book in which appear the names of nine kings, the former kaiser, Von Hindenburg, President Hoover, Lindbergh, Mayor Walker and Dr. Hugo Eckener, of the Graf Zeppelin. The name of Mayor Kline was added yesterday.

Patrolman J. A. Stanton told the magistrate Wright had been firing his revolver near the parking lot.

"But, judge!" Wright exclaimed, "I'm a business man and these rats would ruin my office. I just shoot them with my revolver."

Rothenberg discharged Wright, but ordered the gun confiscated.

Chickie Frightened After Barry Kisses Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Chickie Bryce is attending business college when the story opens. Her father, Jonathan, fears the pitfalls ahead of her, but his wife allays his fears. Chickie gets a position in a brokerage office. Through one of her co-workers, Janina Knowles, she meets Jake Munson, a rich bachelor. Mary Blake, Chickie's closest friend, marries a poor young chemist, much to Chickie's regret. Mary's brother, Jimmy, begs Chickie to marry him, but without success. Chickie meets Barry Dunne at a party given by Munson. She learns that the party is to last all night and Barry takes her home. The next night Barry calls at her home. Barry takes Chickie motoring, tells her she's beautiful and kisses her. Munson meets Chickie and insists on taking her to dinner. He asks her if she'll be one of a party on a yachting cruise.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

JAKE looked into Chickie's ardent, seeking eyes—a momentary sadness in his. He shook his head slowly. "That's your belief, Chickie. You said that people who grab never get anything but trouble. But I say you only have to thrust your hand in the right nest. You can't draw the golden egg from a mud hen. I say there are plenty of golden eggs in the world and it's the young and the beautiful who should have them. You and I, for instance.

He was paying the waiter. She noticed that he put a $10 bill on the plate and very little of it came back. She had a strained, frightened sensation at this guilty extravagance

But when Jake established her with a smiling tenderness in the sedan she let herself sink back joyously in the soft luxury. The happy, gentle things of life—like silk next to her skin—ah—indeed she wanted them. She closed her eyes, drew a long, dreamy breath.

Jake, hearing that, pressed her hands, hunching his shoulder down comily.

The rain tossed against the windows blurred the lights into dim, shifting eyes. He drove out and out. Curled low on the seat, she called out blithely: "Home, James!"

"Yes—presently—we have a few moments yet." He drove the car down a side road in the park. The wind whirled about the grounds in eddies, dashed the rain in thin, silver mists against the trees.

He said in his firm, intimate way: "So you have your own ideas on this and that, but all the same, when you settled down here, you felt happy, didn't you?"

"Yes—very—"

"Why, Chickie? I'll tell you. It's because you know you have a right to this—because you feel at home here—isn't that it?"

"Maybe! I told you I can quite enjoy riches and such"

Barry Calls
Brings Chickie Package Of Books

"Yes—" He put his arm about her. Instinctively she stiffened. He leaned down and looked into her face. "Why did you do that?"

She wouldn't answer. He went on, his eyes demanding, earnest. "Is it that you don't like me?"

"No—it's not that."

"Or that you're in love with some one else?"

She shook her head, fearful, not knowing what to do. Seeing the white of her neck, his lips trembled, an immense desire, a luminous tenderness swept through him. He touched her hands. He said softly: "You dear! Never mind—I won't keep you late tonight."

Barry Dunne took a box from the drawer of his chiffonier—a small box, but in it there were a dozen tiny leather volumes. He put it in his pocket and went out whistling. Warm in his thought there glowed a face—pretty eyes, but ah—the lips. Something in her head, too! Little wonder—little dream. She liked poetry—the clever thing—knew the best ones, too.

When he stood before Chickie he pulled out the box shyly, shoving it quietly to the table.

"For me, Mr. Red? You bring me little packages in your pocket? Oh, I love that! What can it be?"

"The whole darn earth, Chickie! It's every worthwhile thing that ever was. Here it is."

Happy
Chickie Is Gay When With Barry

She laughed happily, surprised to find herself all at once in the gayest spirits. All day she had moved about in a thrill of dark, mysterious excitement.

Her thoughts kept returning to the evening before—to the dinner with Jake—the moment when his hand had pressed her palm against the table, his eyes pouring fire into hers. It caught her with a little pang of curious terror.

In the midst of her work her mind drifted off into a dreamy speculation. She wondered with a touch of pathos about herself—her future. Was some one magnificent, rich, happy hearted waiting for her? Just around the corner might she one day come face to face with this tremendous and glorious love?

And did this Jake, who seemed so kind, so exuberantly satisfied with life, really have cruel, vicious thoughts against her? No—she wouldn't believe that—yet there ran through all her musings a dark, tight thread of half frightened suspense. He was a problem. She wondered how she should act, what she should say.

With Barry Dunne it was different . . . Young like herself—free—out in the sun—nothing to fear—

She pulled the paper from the box: "The whole darn earth? Tish, 'tis no more than I expect! Oh, books— So you want me to read you to sleep again?"

Refuses Jake
Will Not Call Off Date To Go With Him

"Say—how did you guess that? How about Sunday, Chickie? We can take another ride down the lane—sit under that tree. Now listen, don't turn round and give me a cold eye. I said we can sit quietly under trees—a summer idyll as it were—just these and I—sans jug, sans kiss, sans anything!"

She answered jubilant: "Except a little lunch—some sandwiches?"

"That you'll make with your little fingers? Ah—delish!"

When he was leaving, he said, "You won't change that date, will you, Chickie? In case anything else turns up?"

"No—nothing will turn up."

She found herself looking forward to Sunday with a tight heart. She saw herself sitting under a tree as she had before, his head against her arm.

Jake stopped her Friday as she came from lunch. The way he looked at her; the way he held her hand gave her a queer feeling as though he put his arms about her on the street.

"I meant to see you before, Chickie. I've been out of town. Suppose we make up for last Monday? Going to be a wonderful day on the bay. How will you like that?"

"I can't, Mr. Munson. I have another date."

"Can't you break it? Make it worth your while. I'll have a race staged for you. I'd like it a heap, Chickie, if you'd break that date for me. You know, you owe it to me."

She shook her head. To her surprise, she felt no regret.

Sunday came with a rush of Indian summer in its soft, up-

The advisory committee will consist of men prominently identified with the industrial, commercial and educational activities of Pittsburgh and its environs. The meeting will be held in the ballroom of the hotel.

MURDER TRIAL NEARS CLOSE

The commonwealth was expected to complete its side of the case today in the murder trial of Policeman Frank Kerekes, of McKeesport, charged with the death of William M. Tarver, Negro, 36, of 1308 Railroad street, McKeesport, last September 1. The case went on trial in Criminal Court yesterday before Visiting Judge Edward M. Biddle, Jr., of Cumberland County. Most of the first day was spent in the selection of the jury.

Testimony of the state was to the effect that the policeman had gone to a McKeesport garage to arrest Tarver, an employe, whom he charged with driving recklessly and without license plates. Tarver was said to have resisted and grappled with the officer, in a struggle to get possession of the policeman's revolver it was discharged, the first bullet piercing the officer's leg, and the next three shots entering the body of Tarver. Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Adair and Attorney C. B. Prichard are trying the case.

WATER CO. WRIT DISSOLVED

A preliminary injunction, granted Friday night, to prevent the South Pittsburgh Water Company from building water lines across the property of the Hannah Butterweck estate, 4600 East Carson street, at Becks Run road, was dissolved in Common Pleas Court by agreement of counsel for both sides. Judge George V. Moore was informed that there is a question of title to be determined. Indications were that an amicable adjustment of the controversy is underway.

The injunction was granted by Judge Frank P. Patterson through an unusual step Friday night long after court closed. Judge Patterson's instruction in the Duquesne University Law School was interrupted by Attorney Jacob Frank, representing Mrs. Emma Page and George Butterweck, heirs of the estate, who alleged the water company threatened to take advantage of the court holidays Saturday and Sunday to construct water lines across the property to connections on both sides.

Loot Light, Gas Robbers Boost Haul by Sale

Three holdup men who robbed the Gulf Refining service station at Jumonville street and the Boulevard of the Allies today, disappointed in their small haul, waited until a customer arrived and made a purchase.

J. A. Desrock, 21, of 329 Atwood street, station attendant, told police three men, one of them armed, entered and took $5 from the register. They forced him, he said, to show them where $23 was hidden and they added this to their loot. An automobile drove up to the station and the two unarmed men stepped into a nearby alley.

Desrock, left with the armed robber, who assumed the role of owner, sold gasoline and oil and received $1.21. This he handed to the gunman and the latter thanked him politely.

As the customer turned to go, the robber called to him a "thank you and call again." The robber's companions returned and they took Desrock into the rear room of the office, bound and gagged him, and walked away.

Felix Gallino, of 28 Oakland Square, reported to police that while he and a woman companion were seated in an automobile in Schenley Park, two young men approached and forced him to turn over his wallet.

VACILLATING COURSE SCORED

Fear Project's Fate Will Be Similar to Postal Building; Ask Decision

Citizens' impatience over the County Commissioners' delay in acting on the Town Hall found expression today in statements by leaders in civic affairs.

"We have been fooling with the new postoffice for 20 years, and it hasn't been started yet," remarked one. "Are we going to have the same sort of experience with the Town Hall?"

"No one has the right to abrogate the will of the people," said another.

"Let us either have the Town Hall without further ado, or let's forget it," suggested a third.

KEENAN WANTS ACTION

James F. Keenan, president of Haugh and Keenan Storage and Transfer Company and a member of the Town Hall committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said:

"I have no desire to criticize the County Commissioners for the delay in building the Town Hall, because I do not know their reasons for the delay; but I think if it could be arranged to start work on the project at once it would offset much of the unrest among the unemployed. Unemployment is getting to be a serious matter. To build the Town Hall now would be in line with President Hoover's plan to have public improvements made at this time.

"Let us have not only the Town Hall but also the postoffice. We have been fooling with the postoffice for 20 years, and it is to be hoped the Town Hall will not be similarly delayed. I hope the commissioners will realize there is need for speedy action."

BAKER URGES HASTE

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, said:

"The people have decided that they want the Town Hall. Unless the popular sentiment in regard to this building has changed, a decision as to the location should be reached as quickly as possible, and the authorities should proceed with its construction.

"No one has the right to abrogate the will of the voters, as expressed when they chose to favor the bond issue for the Town Hall."

Leo Lehman, manager of the May-Stern Company and vice chairman of the Allegheny County Town Hall Association, said:

"The County Commissioners have had a reasonable length of time to act on the Town Hall project. The vacillating policy should be ended. Further delay will cause the public to lose interest. My opinion is that if the hall is not soon located—and located properly—it would be better to forget it."

Will Rogers Says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 25.

MR. HOOVER not only fed the Republican senators and congressmen yesterday, but along with their ham and eggs they received the following iron in their food:

"You Republicans want to get it out of your head that you are in here for life. The country is slowly getting on to you. After November I can easily take half a dozen leaves out of this breakfast table. Now go back to your office and have your stenographer compile you a list of ex-senators and congressmen who are still living. You would be surprised good, g-o-n-t-l-e-m-e-n."

Yours, WILL.

P. S.—Poor little wind-tossed Mabel Normand died. She has given the world much laughter, and strangers and friends much financial aid. I hope no one writes of her only the ones that had met and known her. Her last press notices would all be beautiful.

PHONE OFFICIAL OFFERS PLAN TO CATHOLICS

Employe Representation, Thrift Plan, Short Hours Presented as Panacea

F. J. Chesterman, vice president of the Bell Telephone Company, today outlined an employe-employer relations plans which, he believes, over a period of 10 years transformed a large group of restless employes into a satisfied, efficient organization.

Speaking before the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems, now in its second day in the Fort Pitt Hotel, Mr. Chesterman emphasized the necesity of good wages—enough to live adequately—and declared to be the most important factor in busines. Stock buying by employes was a point he specifically urged.

Categorically explaining methods, which, he said, he did not want to foist upon others, but found from personal experience to be successful in his organization, he said:

"Briefly, some of the things we have done in the past 10 years are:

REPRESENTATION URGED

Distribution of information about the business, first aid training for men, health and nutrition courses for women.

Training courses, vocational, educational and inspirational. Service, house committee and competitive contests with prizes, including slogan and poster.

Entertainment, thrift plans, company stock, savings plan and insurance are advocated.

LONG HOURS CUT

Public relations committee for the elimination of irritating practices, solving of operating problems and suggestions and wage adjustments.

M. F. Tight, international president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, and Rev. R. A. McGowan, of the National Catholic Welfare Council, followed on the program.

At a banquet tonight, the speakers will include Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, Frederick P. Kenkel, of St. Louis, and Dr. J. E. Hagerty, of Ohio State University, who is president of the conference.

AN ARTIST IN OVENS AND PAINTS

OTTO NEBEL, ASSOCIATED ARTISTS' EXHIBITOR, AT HIS DAILY WORK IN MANSION KITCHEN

Nebel in his studio and "room" in the garage of one of Shadyside's finest mansions, where he's employed in the home. In the Associated Artists' Exhibit, his is one of the most refreshing canvases. It's called "The Gloucester Harbor."

CHEF WINNING ART FAME

By PENELOPE REDD

Should you be a guest in a certain Shadyside home, you will enjoy a dinner prepared by a kitchen magician whose artistic talent has transcended his vocational abilities to win recognition for him as a painter. His paintings, done as an avocation, are among the most distinguished canvases in the current exhibition of the Associated Artists at Carnegie Institute.

TALENT ENCOURAGED

Otto Nebel presides over the kitchen of a home where he has found sympathetic consideration for his talents and for his desire to paint.

His work, free from the competitive harassments which make life and art so difficult for most young painters, gives him some leisure daylight time and an advantageous summer's holiday that has inspired him to paint the sea about Gloucester, Mass.

Penelope Redd

Nebel's study of Gloucester Harbor, now on exhibition at Carnegie Institute, proves that he commands the painter's intelligent comprehension of his subject. He renders a trite composition, unhackneyed, by arranging the New England houses and fishing boats huddled together, gregariously vivacious. The fresh, almost harsh color, suggests to an inland Pittsburgher, the bracing vigor of the New England coast.

ORIGINALITY SHOWN

Another study of the harbor at Gloucester, which hangs in the collection of his employer, is perhaps more beguiling in color because Nebel has chosen gentler blues, greens and greys. His spontaneous approach and his frank relish for painting, carries the whole into the realm of modern art.

Otto Nebel has worked without contact with other painters. He has had stimulation only from the paintings exhibited at the Carnegie Institute. In his endeavors to paint, he has welded his observations and his desires into the beginning of a promising avocation as a painter.

INTERESTED IN SEA

Nebel proves himself an authentic tyro-artist, in his constant experimentation with new subjects. All the world of vision interests him—landscapes, animals, still life. However, it is in the subjects allied to the sea that he hopes to realize the paintings of his yet impeded expression.

The Associated Artists is a necessity to aspiring artists in this town, since it accepts the work of all who measure up to the jury's standard whether it be the printer-guest who eats the picturesque canape, or the cook who knows his truffles.

COOLIDGES VISIT HEARST RANCH

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Apparently unaffected by a death warning received in the mail, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge today arrived at San Simeon ranch where the former president and his wife are the guests of William Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher.

The Coolidges are to remain at the Hearst estate for a few days, according to present plans. They boarded a special train for the trip here last night following a banquet given in their honor by the chamber of commerce.

Death threats reached former President Coolidge in his apartment at the Biltmore Hotel.

A city-wide search was begun for the man who is reported to have threatened the life of the former President and the man who sent warning through the mail to Mrs. Coolidge.

The girl was described as being five feet tall, with light hair and blue eyes, and a mole on the left side of her face.

Beltzhoover Name Change Advocated

Another attempt to change the name of Beltzhoover avenue has been started in Council by residents of the section. Without making a definite suggestion they asked a shorter and more euphonious name.

Banksville road, Twentieth Ward, and Woodville avenue, would be changed to Woodruff avenue by ordinances to be considered by Council at committee meetings today. Woodville avenue and McKnight street would be widened by allied ordinances.

State Road Fund Allocated By Lang

A tentative allocation of the $219,000 to be received from the State by Pittsburgh was proposed in a letter received by Council from Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang. His allocation, requested by Council, would provide for the improvement of stretches of Perrysville avenue, Dallas avenue, Lebanon street, Noblestown road, West Carson street and Dinsmore street.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: What are your impressions of spats and derby hats on the sartorially-perfect male?

JACK ALBAN, Pittsburgher Hotel: "I am very much in favor of these two items of apparel, especially spats. A pair of spats sets off the average costume and adds a touch of distinction to the man who wears them. Aside from this they serve another purpose, that of keeping one's ankles warm in extremely cold weather. Every man can't wear a derby hat, though, but I think the majority can."

Jack Alban

GLADYS DUGAN, waitress, Brookline boulevard: "I like spats and a derby on some people, but it all depends on who wears them. There is nothing more atrocious, in my opinion, than spats and a derby on an extremely short man. The spats are not so bad, but the derby results in a laugh. Now a tall, stately man can wear both to good effect. I think that they are extremely popular and that they are being worn more and more each year."

Miss Duggan

LOUISE POPICHAK, Carnegie: "You want to know what I think of spats and derbies. I think they are perfectly terrible. Especially on a short man. A tall, stately individual doesn't look so bad with them on, but they seem to detract, rather than add to the male ensemble effect. Spats may be popular but if a lot of men wearing them could really see how they looked, they'd discard them immediately.

Miss Popichak

RUTH STECKLER, North Side: "Spats and derbies are o. k. and correct for tall men, but not for short ones. The spats on a man of short stature are probably all right, but derbies never are. Of course, there are exceptions. Even though some persons don't like them at all, the majority rules, and as a result they are gaining in favor every season. If a man wears these two articles of clothing the rest of his ensemble has to be nice-looking or the effect doesn't click."

Miss Steckler

JOHN WAPINSKI, Oakland: "There can be no question about the effectiveness of spats and derbies. In a way they are almost as essential to man's clothing scheme as his necktie or his shirt. They are extremely fashionable and nice looking. Of course, there are some men who don't look good in them. This goes for the man who is short of stature. Tall men can wear them effectively."

John Wapinski

GEORGE ABRAMSON, Pittsburgher Hotel: "Until a few years ago spats were the exception rather than the rule. Derbies, however, have been worn for many years. The ones worn though, were seemingly atrocious and had no style about them. That has all been changed recently and the man who wears spats and a derby is usually among those who are best dressed. Both items are popular with men in Pittsburgh as well as other cities of the nation."

DRIVER BLAMED FOR 11 DEATHS

KENOSHA, Wis., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—A hasty coroner's inquiry today blamed a wild automobile driver for the triple train and automobile wreck that ground out the lives of 11 persons and injured nearly 100.

Deaths of four of the injured are expected hourly, according to hospital attaches. Two others lie in critical danger due to severe injuries.

In a statement issued by officials of the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee road, the blame for the wreck is laid directly upon Norman Shinner, driver of the automobile that tried to "beat" the trains to the grade crossing.

Instead of clearing the speeding trains, Shinner's automobile was caught by a freight train and hurled against the passenger coaches. Both trains leaped the track and plunged down an eight-foot embankment, trapping the passengers within the crushed cars.

The jury of six business men, formed by by Coroner A. B. Schmidt, will hold a more thorough examination as soon as statements of some of the victims are available.

DOCTOR LOSES LIQUOR APPEAL

Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in an opinion dismissed the bill of complaint of Dr. Delano C. Thomas, Edgewood physician, with offices in the Forbes Building, in which he sought the restoration of his permit to prescribe liquor for medicinal purposes. The court held that the revocation by the prohibition authorities was not arbitrary.

The revocation occurred following the seizure of a large quantity of whisky in the home of the physician, which the court held could not be classified as medicinal whisky.

In his bill of complaint Dr. Thomas claimed that the facts at the hearing did not justify the revocation. The liquor was seized September 29, 1929, by Edgewood police, who turned it over to the prohibition authorities.

ACTION DELAYED ON SOLICITORS

Disposition of the cases against J. Leon Lewis, 6326 Forward avenue; C. B. Jacobs, 210 Morrowfield street, and Thomas Shannahan, Peebles street, Wilkinsburg, was postponed until Friday by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today.

Lewis is accused of having represented himself as the publisher of an official parking and traffic guide, proceeds of which were to go to the Police Pension Fund. He implicated the others, police say.

Testimony was produced to show that he had solicited funds from downtown business houses. Acting Lieut. Hugh Lavery, head of the fund, denied the men are connected with it in any way.

Lewis explained that while he is the publisher of the traffic guide, he had a contract with an advertising firm to secure adds for him. In the future, he said, he plans to send his own solicitors out. If any of them misrepresent the purpose of the publication he personally will prosecute them, he declared.

NO ANTHRACITE STRIKE FEARED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—The nation probably will not have to endure another anthracite coal strike for some years to come.

This information was conveyed to Secretary of Labor Davis today by field agents of the department in the Pennsylvania fields and was a source of much gratification to the administration.

The present agreement, reached in the spring of 1926, following a strike that lasted for more than six months, will expire at midnight, August 31 next.

Officials of the United Mine Workers and the department's field agents have expressed the belief that weeks before the present contract expires a new wage agreement will be negotiated by the mine workers' organization and the operators mutually satisfactory to both sides.

Cellar-Pumping 'Alarm' Fails To Work

North Side fire alarm operators are endeavoring to learn what resident of the Grand avenue district near Riverview Park put one over on them early today. For several hours after the storm the operators had been telling North Side residents who called that it would be impossible for the fire department to answer calls and pump out cellars. One resident who said he lived on Grand avenue became insistent and said he would make them come. A few minutes later an alarm was sounded from Grand avenue and El Reno street. There was no fire, but several men who were found on the street suggested that firemen help them clear their cellars. The firemen were unable to oblige.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Bright Hued Gowns Seen At Shows

WITH spring torrents bestowing themselves generously upon the city last night, one might have thought that even the most habitual "first nighters" would have tucked themselves into their most comfortable fireside chairs and turned on the radio. But Pittsburgh folks, quite daunted as usual by the weather, wanted to see George White's Scandals at the Alvin and Molly Sarl at the Nixon.

And in spite of the rain and taxi strike the entire half of the audiences were gowns representing as many different hues as a Colonial bouquet. By the way, have you noticed as spring draws nearer that evening gowns are becoming quite exotic in pattern and color?

Helen Leovy, whom I saw chatting with friends in the foyer at the Alvin, had a springtime gown of apple green satin, and her slippers were of silver. She chose a wrap of black velvet with a scarf collar of ermine.

The J. Porter Gillespies, who are always seen at all openings and concerts, I noticed at the Alvin last night. Mrs. Gillespie wore a long, clinging gown of black crepe, and a wrap of gold cloth embroidered in black with a collar of mink.

AND the gay peasant costumes of the gypsies in "Sari" vied with the gay gowns of the Nixon audience. Petite Mrs. William A. Duckham chose a soft of black chiffon fashioned with a brief train. When I saw her waiting with Mr. Duckham for their car I noticed she wore a black velvet wrap boasting a scarlet lining and a novel upstanding collar of ermine reminiscent of Elizabethan ruffs.

The Felix B. Stewardts jostled friends in the foyer during the one intermission. A gown of black chiffon with a pointed leaf design in beige Mrs. Stewardt wore beneath a small coat of black caracul.

Mrs. Frederick B. Huffnagel wrapped in a black and gold metal cloth wrap I saw leaving the theater, and Ruth Friday in a beige satin gown and a green velvet coat with a collar of fox.

Mrs. Z. Collier was there in a dahlia crepe gown, and her young daughter, Louise, in peach chiffon.

GIVES DUE ATTENTION TO ASSEMBLING THE ENSEMBLE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The ensemble assembles itself for the new and arduous season that lies before it. But it will be of a different caliber from the ensemble of last year, much smarter and infinitely more interesting with an astonishing variety of clever treatments. Crisp skirts just demand little coats to intensify their boufant charms, while many frocks will seem lost without capes to complete the ensemble effect that has brought such happiness and harmony to the wardrobe. It has taught many of us that the art of blending is not confined to tea or coffee, but that it is of vital importance in selection of one's clothes, making it impossible to make a haphazard choice of garments without thought of their relationship to the rest of our wardrobe. And the days of any handbag, hat or shoes to be worn regardless of dress or coat are also over. We wear such accessories because they contribute to a certain scheme, not just because we happened to have pounced upon them at a sale. Something that is bought without definite place in one's sartorial scheme is not a bargain however little it may have cost, for by the time it can be worn with a certain garment it is generally out-of-date.

FOR the latest event in the ensemble world we refer you to a study of the model sketched here, which is a creation of the house of Heim, and has just been shown. It is an evening ensemble of black tulle with a short jacket of rose-colored velvet. The amusing coatee has only one sleeve—which may or may not be a result of the armament conference—while the other arm is to be found nestling beneath the bloused part of the jacket. The wide tulle skirt is very flaring and reaches the floor all around.

THE girlish afternoon frock is from the atelier of Welly Soeur and is of black satin. The neckline and cuffs are edged with satin ribbon in two shades of tan tied in bow-knots. Intricate piecings and stitched down pleats give a close silhouette to the skirt, but a flaring effect is to be had below the knees by releasing the double pleats.

Dr. Louis K. Anspacher Talks on Drama at 20th Century Club

IN HIS scholarly address on "The Spirit of the Modern Drama" before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning, Dr. Louis K. Anspacher asked his audience to forget Broadway for the moment, as, with only one exception, "Journey's End," nothing on Broadway was either modern or dramatic.

As the founder of the modern drama, Ibsen wrote plays, not roles, and was never a dramatic dressmaker, Dr. Anspacher declared. Shakespeare, on the other hand, was not above dramatic dressmaking which may be proved by reading his First Frolic. Modern drama makes ethics, morals, and purpose of supreme importance; it shows the social and moral cost to the individual and instead of making the objective ideal sacred, it puts the emphasis on the individual. Ibsen was said to have defined marriage as having equal independence, mutual dependence and reciprocal obligations.

The profound distinction between the dramatic and the theatrical was strongly emphasized by Dr. Anspacher, the dramatic dealing with internals—psychology and character—and the theatrical with the externals—plot and action. He pointed to Sardou's "Madame Sans Gene" as the masterpiece of theatrical literature and Ibsen's "John Gabriel Borkmann" as the outstanding example of the dramatic.

Modern drama shifts from external conformity to internal guidance; it gives only the silhouette which the audience must fill out; it is full of revolt against all traditional ideals and puts self-realization into the place of self-surrender; it refuses to deal with sentimental hypocricies; it appeals to the understanding and not to the sympathy. The very moral which solved the problem in the old day is being questioned today and the modern dramatist, if he succeeds, adds to the common consciousness of our common life, the speaker summed up.

Dr. Anspacher's examples of modern drama and his comparisons with the old, together with his humorous comments and his delivery were illuminating illustrations of his art as an actor.

Dr. Walter P. Hall's talk next Monday on "The Europe of Today" will be the first March attraction for the club. This will be followed on the tenth by a visit from Upton Close (Josef Washington Hall), who will speak on "The Pacific Era Arrives." The choral will have a recital on the thirteenth and on Monday, the seventeenth, Dr. Andre Morize will come to the club in a new role, that of lecturer on "Dance Music, Old and New," with his wife to illustrate the talk. The drama committee's presentation of the three winning playlets is set for the twentieth of the month; Dr. Andrey Avinoff, of Carnegie Museum, will give an illustrated talk on "Styles and Ornaments of Nature," March 24; "The Importance that Color Plays in the Home" will be discussed by Miss Edith Douglas Deane, March 27, and the month will close with Mrs. Ida Wright Bowman's talk on political current events.

PENNSYLVANIA is twentieth in illiteracy among the states. Allegheny County has 312,000 illiterates (people who can neither read nor write in any language) and the United States rates tenth in the world of illiteracy, Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart told the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday, basing her statistics on the 1920 census. Mrs. Stewart, who is head of the national illiteracy crusade, had some tremendously interesting things to tell her audience—of the woman who traveled seven miles over the mountains to have letters read from and written to an educated daughter; of the establishment of the moonlight schools in Kentucky and of their spread through other states. When these schools were founded an attendance of 1,500 was looked for and instead the enrollment was more than 3,000, Mrs. Stewart said. * * *

THE March 3 meeting of the Women's Community Association will be held in the auditorium of the Oliver High School instead of in the John Morrow School, the usual meeting place. Have you ever tasted real Philadelphia Pepper Pot?

"Pepper Pot, smoking hot," rang the cry of the picturesque cooks through the quaint streets of old Colonial Philadelphia. They were magic words. They opened the doors of the fashionable and elite. The steaming, savory delicacy graced the glittering boards of the leaders of society in those gay times.

From one of the most famous of these Pepper Pot cooks, who numbered the distinguished belles of the hour among her patrons, Campbell's derive the recipe for the Pepper Pot you can enjoy today. It is a soup which even the French, with all their admitted culinary skill, do not possess the secret to blend.

For Campbell's is the real Philadelphia Pepper Pot, which has never been successfully imitated.

Pepper Pot has a charm and a flavor all its own. No other soup is like it. Whole black pepper gave it its name but in the blend are marjoram, thyme, sweet pimientos, diced potatoes, a generous supply of macaroni dumplings—all combined with the subtle "touch" of Campbell's Special Philadelphia Pepper Pot Cook!

Serve this unique and "different" soup today. We promise you a treat that you will often repeat. 12 cents a can.

OPERETTA, REVUE AND MELODRAMA ON STAGE, ROMANCE ON THE SCREEN

Mitzi Brings "Sari" Back And Melody at Nixon Is King for a Day

By GEORGE SEIBEL

AVAUNT, Irving Berlin and Paul Whiteman! The spirits of Balfe and Benatzky were abroad last night — and Jazz was drowned in melody. At the Nixon Theater not only an old favorite light opera was sung again, but the little woman who first won fame as Sari appeared again, singing and dancing and laughing with the old gayety and charm.

George Seibel

Emerich Kalman, who composed "Sari," must have had Mitzi Hajos hovering about him when he created the "Ha-Za-Za" dance. It is the abandon of the Hungarian Gypsy caught in a spontaneous rhythm that seldom can be trapped by the mere musical mechanic. And all through this operetta there are melodies of the flowing and bubbling kind that elude the stonemasons and bricklayers of the conservatories.

Yes, this operetta reaches almost to the heights of "Martha" and "The Bohemian Girl." There are melodies like "My Faithful Stradivari" and "Love's Own Sweet Song" that have the enchantment of olden days when Adler Planquette, Lecocq, Messager and Offenbach were making music.

It was a happy thought to revive this gem, and it was a happy circumstance that Mitzi was here to help in doing so. She has lost a little more experience a few more pounds than when she was young. Let us say that as good measure of a very good thing. She is a delightful personality and gave a delightful performance.

ESSENCE OF MITZI

Mitzi is the essence of soubrettes. That is a term that has gone out of fashion. But when soubrettes were treated as queens. As the ambling peasant maiden who goes to Paris and says "Stop your kidding king," to a royal highness Mitzi is superb. Her gurgling laugh, her tripping feet and her happy voice are all her own. She is not the acrobat out to make comedy are nowhere about. She need to be.

She is just Mitzi, adorable as the adorable be

And around her is one of the best aggregations of Adelina Rasch Girls that has ever come from that training school. They are young and fair to look upon, and they dance as if they were paying for the privilege and meant to get their money's worth of fun out of it.

Maybe what makes everybody so glad is the ballets, the costumes and scenery by Willy Pogany. Willy has the Magyar eye for color and he has made "Sari" a treasure. All the girls are costumed like [illegible] as if they had grown in a flower garden. The Hungarian ballet of the first act would delight the soul of Petofi Sandor. The Parisian interior of the second act doesn't remind you of the Philadelphia Renaissance.

Willy Pogany is a magician who has put the rainbow into his pocket, and he has used a good bit of it in scenery, too.

VOICES ALSO COLORFUL

When an opera has melody as "Sari" has, the voices that carry it must have quality and the voices in this production have that.

Boyd Marshall as Pali Racz, Marybeth Conoly as Juliska, George Clark as Joska and Mario Alvarez as Lacri were particularly effective in the romantic atmosphere of this work. For the spirit of it is essentially romantic and it could only be told in a world where the telephone and the automobile had not yet spoiled the idyl of Paris.

There are [illegible] scenic settings, [illegible] chiefly carried by Arthur Hoerber as Cadeaux, and it is well-fashioned comedy of a sort that is [illegible] it had lain in lavender for a few years.

Sung with such charm and spirit, coincided with musical finesse by Paul Yartin, reviving the rich and succulent music of other days and bringing as the queen of soubrettes in Mitzi, this revival of "Sari" deserves well of the public. Paul Whiteman and Irving Berlin were forgotten at the Nixon last night.

Singer

Evelyn Wilson sings character songs as one of the features of George White's "Scandals," current on the Alvin stage.

"Scandals," Alvin Bill, Peppy Entertainment Of Revue Type

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

George White's "Scandals" came to the Alvin last night giving an audience that braved thunder, lightning and rain plentiful compensation for doing so—that is compensation for those who like peppy entertainment of the revue type. This particular edition of "Scandals," the tenth, is not very well fortified in the matter of "names" in the cast, but there is a lot of fun, some of it in the nature of broad comedy, and abundance of pretty girls, good dancing and the kind of decoration and novelties one has come to expect of a show of this character. It is speedy as well.

Willie and Eugene Howard are the featured comics. Frances Williams, singing and dancing comedienne, occupies a headline position among the feminine entertainers, and her vocal and stepping ability are proof that she rates the distinction.

ECHO PAJAMA FAD

The Howard Brothers introduced in a song specialty, "What the Well-Dressed Man Will Wear," echo the pajama fad of last summer in an amusing way. Thereafter they are prominent throughout in most of the comedy skits and, from their reception last night, they are as popular as ever.

The outstanding hit of the production from a laugh angle is the specialty of Mitchell and Durant, acrobatic comedy dancers extraordinary, who mop up the floor with themselves to the extreme peril of such vest buttons as are not wired to the garments of the male portion of the audience. They are funny—no argument!

PLUMP BUT PEPPY

Another thing in the show that makes the audience sit up and take notice is the ensemble hoofing of the Abbott specialty dancers, introduced as from Chicago. No frail dames these. Rather they suggest the good old days when plumpness was a virtue. I mean they are meaty. Good lookers, nevertheless, and agile. They dance rapidly, and they do some difficult and pretty stepping. Then, to show that the willowy ones have nothing on them, they cavort through gymnastics, winding up one of their numbers with a couple of them doing diving handsprings over as many as five others. Pep—that's them.

Evelyn Wilson pleases with her singing of character songs. The Elm City Four, featuring Jim Carty, also has a prominent place in this well-conceived, well-staged and well-executed revue.

Happy Girl

Janet Gaynor should be a happy girl for she is prominent in "Happy Days," musical romance, showing on the Aldine screen.

ALOMA GIVES MAKEUP BOX A BREAK IN PITT

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Aloma of the South Seas" is the current George Sharp presentation in the Pitt. It may entertain you. And it will make you laugh! It is one of those tropical romances in which the little native girl goes "goofy" over a white man.

This Aloma is a pretty hula-hula maiden, whose skin is brown and whose clothes are scant. One of the native men is wild about her. But she wants a young white man, a derelict, who went to the "dogs" when the girl back home married another fellow. And the first thing you know Aloma has the young white man asking to marry her the next day. But before that tomorrow comes, the white lady from home turns up and there is nothing left for the native girl except her native boy friend.

Incidental music and dance is mixed with the story. Four girls come out and the supposition is they do some native stepping. Then Signe Paterson, well-known dancer, appears in two terpsichorean numbers, a la Hawaii.

OH, THESE NATIVES

The production affords Mr. Sharp's emoters a chance to do a Lon Chaney. This is especially true of Billy Link. His makeup as an old liquor-devouring native makes him look like the twin brother of a nightmare.

Harland Tucker is all browned-up, wears a fuzzy-wuzzy wig and fools everybody until he speaks. Alice Ann Baker has been made into a South Seas woman whose figure defies all definition. Edith King also has gone "native" for her role as Aloma. And she is the most convincing South Sea Islander in the group.

SHAVES BETWEEN ACTS

Henry Wadsworth, the juvenile, shows versatility as the young white man. He is a quite soddish portrait in the first act. But by the time the second act arrives he has had a shave and looks very much the gentleman. He arouses interest and helps create a belief in the play. But this belief flies out tropical windows when "the girl from home" in the person of Mabel Kreelan appears. Which is no reflection on Miss Kreelan. The casting director erred, that's all.

A number of other players appear, including Robert Fiske, who is at his villainy again and who, this time, ends up in a shark's stomach.

Yes, the to-be-expected tropical storm comes along with the climax. And last night Mr. Sharp's stage storm had competition from without. In fact, when the sun came up in the final act, the thunder was still pealing. But this was the final one—rumbling from the skies above the Pitt Theater.

BOY VIOLINIST GIVES CONCERT HERE THURSDAY

Yehudi Menuhin, boy violinist, will give 12 concerts in America this season, and Pittsburgh is to be favored with one of these, on Thursday evening, in Syria Mosque.

Sunday, in Carnegie Hall, New York, Yehudi again gave proof of the greatness of his talent when he played to a capacity audience with 500 extra chairs on the stage, and literally hundreds turned away.

He will open his program here Thursday evening with the Cesar Franck Sonata in A Major, to be followed by the Bach Sonata in C Major for violin alone.

Ban Trotzky Name For Soviet District

MOSCOW, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The District of Trotsky has been renamed Chapaevsk, honoring a commander killed in the war instead of the exiled leader.

MUSIC AND ROMANCE IN 'HAPPY DAYS,' ALDINE FILM

"Happy Days," musical film, opened in the Aldine yesterday. The photoplay mixes a football story of a sort with entertainment of the revue variety. It also is the means of presenting a large number of well known stage and screen players at one time.

The story concerns one of those Mississippi showboat owners who finds the talking pictures are heading his business toward bankruptcy. Prior to playing in Memphis, a sheriff attaches the boat. But there is a girl in the show, the sweetheart of the owner's grandson, who has an idea. She goes to New York and enlists the aid of a lot of bigtime talent which formerly appeared with the showboat.

The result is that Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Edmund Lowe, Charles Farrell, George Jessel, Walter Catlett, El Brendel and numerous others make a flying trip from Broadway to Dixieland and stage a benefit show in behalf of the showboat owner. This benefit performance done in minstrel style is quite an elaborate affair, with stage and screen stars featured in various specialties.

There is a lot of song and comedy in the production. The dance and singing ensembles must total more than a 100 members.

In Two Films

Conrad Nagel is seen as the hero in two films at the same time. He appears in the Penn in "The Ship from Shanghai" and in the Sheridan Square in "Second Wife."

WOLHEIM, IN SEA FILM, AND TEDDY JOYCE IN PENN BILL

There was another great outpouring in the Penn Theater yesterday when that old favorite, Teddy Joyce, came back as the guest M. C. for a week. He received a very cordial ovation and his dancing, violin playing and good humor showed he was also glad to be back.

"Bermuda Bound" is the title of the production, with the deck of a ship for the scene of the revels by which the Chester Hale Girls make their bow-are short.

THE RUNAWAY FOUR

Funniest and cleverest of all the good things in the program, the Runaway Four, with their comical collapses and falls, kept the audience in a breathless uproar. Dancers and acrobats they are, humorists above all else — and their diverting antics leave one wondering how the human form can be twisted so many ways.

Dick Leibert's organ interlude also is decidedly clever, for he has to play himself out of a prison cell in which he has been put for playing the numbers. The loyal audience helped to sing him out.

SHIP FROM SHANGHAI

The talking picture is a grippingly tragic drama of the sea—"The Ship from Shanghai"—which smells of Joseph Conrad and Jack London.

Conrad Nagel and Kay Johnston have the principal roles, but Louis Wolheim gets a chance to grab the camera and he keeps it. There is at least one shark in the South Seas who must have indigestion after two bites of this mad sea beast.

Wolheim and the rest do splendid acting, though at times their diction is indistinct. But the climax of the picture is a realistic storm — which beats the vessel nearly to pieces but doesn't ruffle the immaculate wardrobe of the passengers from Hollywood.

Besides the good acting there is very good photography. But we aren't so sure of the psychology. Calling a madman a beast over and over doesn't always persuade him to jump into a shark's convenient jaws. But Conrad Nagel and Kay Johnston had to get back to Hollywood somehow.

Dancer

Signe Paterson, former prominent stage dancer, now Pittsburgh housewife, does dances atmospheric of the tropics incident to the presentations of "Aloma of the South Seas," in the Pitt this week.

TALKIE OF ARMY LIFE REMAINS IN OLYMPIC

"Troopers Three," talk comedy of army life, is being seen in the Olympic for a second week. It details the adventures of three actors who find themselves in the U. S. Cavalry for three years when what they really want is 30 days free board at a Citizens' Military Training Camp. Dorothy Gulliver, Rex Lease, Slim Summerville and Roscoe Karns head the cast.

Voting Machine Plans Altered

MERCER, Pa., Feb. 25.—Mercer County is affected by the decision by the state that voting machines must be supplied in alphabetical order.

Mercer County Commissioners had planned purchasing 14 machines for Farrell, Sharon, Greenville, Grove City and Sharpsville.

Fisher Names Trio For Political Meet

They are Dr. George L. Omwake, president of Ursinus College, Collegeville; Roland S. Morris, former ambassador to Japan of Philadelphia, and Col. Ernest G. Smith, of Wilkes-Barre, publisher.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A jury here returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Stanley Przybyl, known as the "Millionaire Kid," accused of complicity in the Carson $250,000 jewel robbery. The Kid, who already has two felony convictions against him, will be sentenced Friday.

The four other members of the gang, one a brother of the man convicted, already are serving prison terms.

South Side Bridge To Cost $280,000

An ordinance authorizing an agreement between the city and Allegheny County for the proposed reconstruction of the South Tenth Street Bridge was introduced in Council yesterday.

Under the terms of the agreement the city will provide the approaches and pay the damages, estimated at $280,000. The amount depends largely upon where the federal government orders the new piers located.

Hospital Preference

proves the importance of Kotex to your health

Authorities in 85% of America's leading hospitals now insist upon Kotex absorbent . . . proving its hygienic safety.

IF there is one time above all others when you want hygienic security, a feeling of safety and absolute comfort, it is when you are selecting sanitary protection. That is why you will appreciate the fact that America's great hospitals (85% of them) are now using Kotex absorbent.

Cellucotton—not cotton

Hospitals know this as Cellucotton absorbent wadding. It is not cotton, but a cellulose product which, for sanitary purposes, performs the same function as the softest of cotton, with 5 times the absorbency.

The marvelous absorbency of Cellucotton explains why Kotex stays soft longer. This protection gives greater safety and security because it absorbs away from the surface, not in just one particular spot.

Soft, lasting protection

It is well designed, it won't twist and bulge, it can't pack. Sometimes there is a deceptive softness about a pad which soon turns to chafing, uncomfortable stiffness after it's worn. That isn't true of Kotex, as you will soon discover when you try it.

Then, of course, there is the reason most women first began to use Kotex: it is disposable. Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, fleecy softness that lasts for hours.

2—Safe, secure. . . keeps your mind at ease.

3—Fastidious . . . the sign of true daintiness.

4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

5—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

GRANDMA'S OLD RECIPE FOR YOUR ELECTRIC WAFFLE IRON

2 eggs
1½ cup milk
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons melted butter
1 tablespoon sugar

Sift dry ingredients. Separate yokes and whites of eggs. Add milk to well beaten yolks and add to dry ingredients. Beat well. Add the oil and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites last. Heat electric waffle iron 10 minutes before starting to bake. Pour batter into a pitcher and pour from pitcher onto waffle iron.

THE same delicious taste for which grandma's "waffle dinners" were always famous . . . the same appetizing richness that lasted down to the very last "bite" . . . is most successfully retained in the new-fashioned electric way of Waffle baking.

You'll find that the Electric Waffle Iron has quite effectively added convenience to the art of Waffle-baking. The modern method is to make waffles right at the table without the bother of greasing, the baking being done electrically by simply plugging-in to a nearby electric connection.

Only a few minutes time to have tempting and delicious waffles all ready to serve with plenty of butter and a generous spread of maple syrup . . . waffles with all that old-fashioned goodness.

Electric Waffle Irons are now being offered at Special Sale Prices at your nearest Electric or Hardware Dealer or at the Gas and Electric Shops.

SPRING Fashion Review

☆ ☆ ☆ Stylists of Pittsburgh's leading Department and Women's Specialty Stores have given the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph a brief prophecy of the Spring Styles in women's wear. The consensus of opinion is that the skirt will creep up just a little, although it can still be termed "long." What with a saner skirt length, we find that women's fashions are turning to more and more practical treatment throughout the entire wardrobe.

☆ ☆ ☆ The suit, so say the stylists in verification of Parisian reports, is to be the chic mode for daytime wear this Spring. Peplums, capes, blouses, jackets and belts will affect the silhouette in a pleasingly novel fashion. Boleros are excellent and their influence is seen in many directions—from the suit and coat to sports, daytime and evening frocks. Flowered prints will be the vogue for dresses, although chiffons, plain silks and flat crepes will enjoy a season of popularity. For evening wear, the safer fabrics are satins, chiffons, tulles, taffetas and lacy creations. Tweed will reign in suiting materials.

EVENING

Long trailing lines — in dresses. Flares and softly drapped wraps.

NIGHT

Gowns and negligees that follow dress silhouettes —of sheer silks — black and pastels important.

MORNING

Dresses, suits or coats of the tailored type with skirts four to five inches below the knee.

AFTERNOON

Coats with dressmaking details — Dresses of soft lines short sleeves. Slightly dipping or even hemlines, 13 inches from the floor.

NEW COLOR TONES

As fashionable colors are naturally designed to compliment fashionable complexions, the sartorial color chart of 1930 will favor the pearly feminine skin. Blue always accompanies feminine fashion epochs and is coming back strongly into the Spring mode for morning, afternoon and evening. A great variety of gray tones will naturally follow. There will be several rich reds, the gamut of brown from negre to yellow. White for summer is as inevitable as black for winter, and white contrasted with black is one of the smartest Spring fashion themes. Spring always launches new greens and we will have tones ranging from a color that approaches spring water to dark leaf shades. A fascinating group of pastels are featured for sports, in a variety which provides choice for dark girls and fair.

THE SILHOUETTE

As always, simplicity is the test of true chic and the test of the new fashions manage to achieve an effect of subtle simplicity despite their elaborate details and picturesque lines. The silhouette of Spring is the silhouette of good taste—a modification of extreme length and nipped-in waist. As to length there are four classifications—for daytime, four to six—for afternoon, six inches below the knee, except for the very formal costume. Ankle length all around, with perhaps a dip in the back, is accepted for evening. The normal waistline is defined by a belt, shirring or tucking. Skirtfulness remains low, gored effects and pleats are prominent, but there is less flare in the smartest models.

BUCS GET LONG WORKOUT

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Estimates on Pitching. McCarthy Puts It High. Rated at 85 Per Cent.

Wright Is Optimistic. Kremer Not Hold-Out. Ring Flop No Surprise.

M'KECHNIE THINKS CATCHER KING-PIN

WHAT percentage of baseball does pitching represent? That it is still the weightiest item in the game in spite of the presence of the lively ball, the consequent increase in slugging and the fattening of batting averages all around, is indicated by the huge number of young hurlers to be tried out by the various major league clubs in spring practice in an effort to find capable new moundsmen. But the big league managers are not of one mind as to how much it counts for in a pennant race.

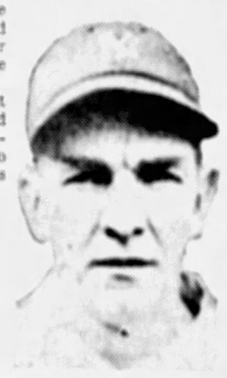
Joe McCarthy

In his days as leader of the Pirates, Fred Clarke always estimated that hurling amounted to 65 per cent of the diamond sport. Others have reckoned it at 70 per cent, and now comes Joe McCarthy, pilot of Chicago's National League champions, to express the opinion that it ought to be rated as high as 85 per cent. "It has been said thousands of times by all the managers in baseball that pitching is 70 per cent of the battle," McCarthy is quoted. "Not only would I say that pitching is the most important factor, but I'd be willing to go a little stronger and make pitching 85 per cent of a winning team's strength."

THAT'S the highest rating that has ever been given to the value of hurling, but while nobody will take exception to McCarthy's statement that slabwork is the most important factor in the game it does not necessarily follow that it is sufficient to win without support in other departments.

True, it was a lack of pitching strength that kept the Phillies from landing higher than fifth place last year when they led the league in batting with an average of .309. Their slugging was discounted by the fact that their hurlers allowed more runs than any other staff in the circuit. In 1928 the Pirates topped the league with an average of .309, scored more runs and made more hits than any rival team, yet the best that they could get was fourth place.

DETROIT, with a powerful slugging team, long has been a trailer in the American League because of a lack of good pitchers. On the other hand, John McGraw's flingers last year allowed fewer runs than any other staff in the National, yet the Giants finished only third. The Reds had the best mound crops in the senior loop for years, but couldn't get anywhere because the punch was missing.



Bob Shawkey

The answer would appear to be that neither high-grade pitching nor sustained slugging is sufficient to win a pennant unaided. A happy combination of the two seems to be what is required. Each needs to other to bring the best results.

WHEN Joe Villa recently asked a majority of the big league managers to express their opinion as to the most important factors in producing a winning club, five agreed with McCarthy. One of them was Bob Shawkey, of the Yankees, himself a former slabman. "I consider the pitcher the most important man on any ball team," he said. "Without a good pitching staff no club will get very far." Those views were shared by John McGraw, Connie Mack, Roger Peckinpaugh and Dan Howley. Three others—Donie Bush, Bill Killefer and Gabby Street—voiced the opinion that shortstop was of more vital importance than any other position, while Bucky Harris and Heinie Wagner named teamwork as the biggest item.

IT remained for Bill McKechnie, now skipper of the Braves to string along in support of one of the oldest sayings in the game—"In trying to figure out what chance a club has to win a ball game, don't look to see who's pitching, but look to see who's catching." McKechnie thinks the backstop is the swaying factor on the field.

"Catching is a most important thing," said Bill. "The catcher must know what the enemy players like to hit, he must watch all infielders for quick signs, he must sign the pitcher when to throw sidearm or cross-fire, fast or slow balls to certain hitters, and he must be alert every second. The catcher has so many bases to watch, so many hard plays to handle, and so many quick and accurate throws to make that he, to me, is the king-pin of the team."

THOUGH the management of the Brooklyn Dodgers admitted that its action in buying Mickey Finn and Gordon Slade from the Mission club was due to a fear that Glenn Wright, former Pirate shortstop would not be able to come back this year, Wright himself is optimistic.

Glenn Wright

"Of course, I don't know for sure," said Glenn when he reported at the Robin camp in Clearwater, Fla., but I have reason to believe that my throwing arm will be greatly improved.

"THE last operation I underwent last summer may have turned the trick. Part of the flesh was removed from one of my thighs and placed under the ligament I had dislodged in my shoulder. I gave my arm complete rest until a couple of weeks ago, when I became eager to see what would happen if I threw a baseball. I went through a few throwing drills and was always careful not to put any force behind my throws. To my delight, I discovered I could raise my arm above my shoulder and throw a ball straight without feeling any pain. After the workouts my arm felt normal. So far, so good. I am going to be very careful, and mean to guard against over-exertion, but I am very hopeful."

THE report that Pitcher Remy Kremer, of the Pirates, was a holdout was without foundation—just another case of jumping at conclusions because the player had not turned in his signed contract before his mates on the advance squad started for the training camp at Paso Robles.

As a matter of fact, Kremer and Pirate officials had agreed upon terms long before the Bucs left for the Coast, and the signing of a contract was no more than a formality. The big right-hander will get a full course of training and bids fair to continue the fine stride in which he finished the 1929 season, when he won five of his last seven games and 15 of his last 22 after a skidding start.

NIGHT football in America is to be followed this year by night baseball games and track meets, but down under in Australia they have carried the moonlight stuff even farther. Night harness racing is a regular feature on brilliantly illuminated tracks.

It has gone over big, too, the fact that the meetings are held

GIRLS SET RECORD

WABASH, Ind., Feb. 25.—Averaging nearly four points a minute, the Wabash High School girls basketball team, the Scrubbettes, established what is believed to be a new world scoring record when they trampled on the Fairmount girls by a 102 to 1 count here last night. The former record was held by a Pocatello (Idaho) team, 120 to 3.

TRINITY ROYALS VICTORS

The Trinity Cathedral Royals rallied to tie the score and then defeat St. Mary's Lyceum, of Shareburg, 39 to 37, in an extra-period game on the latter's floor last night. Reidenbach and Weite starred.

DUAL MEET FRIDAY

A dual interscholastic swimming meet is to be held Friday night at the Keystone Athletic Club pool between the Pitt and University of Cincinnati teams. A regulation list of events is on the schedule, with no charge, it is announced.

MINNICK RECOVERING

Coach Ed Minnick, of the Duquesne Lafayettes, has recovered sufficiently from his recent illness to leave the McKeesport Hospital, where he has been confined for several weeks, although he will have to remain shut at his home in Duquesne for several weeks yet.

CHAMPIONSHIP IN SECTION II PRIZE TODAY

The question of supremacy in Section II of the City League will be settled once and for all this afternoon as Perry and South Hills clash in the Pitt Stadium. This pair wound up the regular season tied for the second division lead, today's playoff game being necessary to determine the right of one or the other to engage Fifth Avenue, Section I champ, in a three-game series for the league title.

The second division race this year was a nip-and-tuck affair from start to finish. South Hills was an early favorite, but failed to get started and was well in arrears at the end of the first half of the race. Perry rode the crest until the campaign was in the stretch, when the North Side quintet faded and South Hills pulled into the lead. Perry recovered in time to give Allegheny a pasting last Friday and gain a tie.

MAY PLAY FRIDAY

The series for the league title probably will open Friday, with today's victor meeting Fifth on the Stadium floor. The Uptowners, defenders of the flag, figure to be strong enough to beat either of the Section II fives, and are sure to be favorites in the city series.

Homestead, facing Duquesne on the Homestead floor, can throw the Section VII race in the W. P. I. A. L. into a three-way tie. If Bill Campbell's team wins, Duquesne, McKeesport and Homestead will all be tied for the lead, necessitating an involved play-off series. If Duquesne wins, in they go as champions.

CAN COP TITLE

In Section XI, Ed Paulie's Swissvale passers can clinch the title by beating Aspinwall, Ambridge, meeting Leetsdale in Section II, will take down the title held last year by Bellevue, by topping Ray Bucher's team.

North Braddock and Rankin, fighting for the top in Section VIII, see action today, Johnny Reed's team meeting Braddock and Rankin playing at East Pittsburgh. Coraopolis and McKees Rocks, out in front in Section IX, play Dormont and Stowe, respectively.

Ben Avon defeated Sewickley, 21 to 18, in Section II, and Monessen tripped Donora, 35 to 17, in Section 5, of the W. P. I. A. L. yesterday.

School Notes

One of the first round W. P. I. A. L. elimination games, the Aliquippa-Ambridge contest slated for the Stadium Saturday night, figures to attract close to a record crowd. Ambridge, coached by Moe Rubenstein, and Aliquippa, with Nate Lippe in charge, are old and natural rivals. Special trains likely will be run to the game from both towns.

Penn State and Duquesne coaching systems are fighting it out in Section VIII where Johnny Reed, of North Braddock, and Jack Rosenberg, of Rankin, are making a two-way fight for the section title. Reed is a former State lumberjack, while Rosenberg shone for Duquesne during his college days.

Ford City, Section VI finalist, and one of the teams favored in the tourney, will put much of its dependence in Base, the Navy center star. Base starred for the Ford City entrant last year, and is reported to be a greatly improved player this year.

Phil Bridenbaugh has moulded a strong team out of what at first appeared to be ordinary material at New Castle, and beat out the strong Butler High team for the section honor. With Bridy at the helm, New Castle must be counted upon to make a strong bid for the league crown.

Coach Ditty is back with a powerful quintet at Monessen. His team lost to the early rounds a year ago, more because the club suffered an off night when eliminated than because of superior strength on the part of the team it played. Coaches who should know predict that Monessen will be one of the finalists.

GOB'S ATTITUDE BIG FACTOR IN FIGHT

By JAMES J. CORBETT
World Heavyweight Champion, 1892-1897.

Jack Sharkey is the heavyweight champion of the United States—but the title is bestowed rather grudgingly by many ring experts. They are not inclined to sound the cymbals because of his greatness, but rather credit him with being "the best of a bad lot"—and let it go at that.

J. J. Corbett

Sharkey is a peculiar type of ringman. And he ever has been something of an enigma. Superbly built, a man of great natural strength and brilliant speed, a clever boxer when he wants to be, a heavy hitter when the mood is upon him, there never is anything but wild guess work attached to his forthcoming ring efforts.

It has been said of Sharkey that "as he thinks, so does he fight." And his career has proved that to be quite true. If Jack gets a notion into his head that he can annihilate a man with a savage onslaught, he goes ripping and tearing into his victim and usually accomplishes a knockout. But if the other man is menacing—if Sharkey concludes that he is a dangerous puncher then the big boy from Boston ceases to be a terror and fights a most cautious battle.

BEATEN BY DEMPSEY

Sharkey came to dislike Jim Maloney at a time when his Boston fellow-townsman was blasting foemen out of the pathway with monotonous regularity. Jack told the world—because he believed it himself—that he would stop Maloney. And, by casting science to the four winds, scorning defense and lunging courageously to the attack, he did crush Maloney—knocking him cold in the fifth round.

For some reason or other, Sharkey concluded that Jack Demp-

Facts and Fancies About Our New Bucs

(This is the first of a series of thumbnail sketches of the new Pirate players sent from the Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp by Charles J. Doyle, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph staff correspondent. Others will follow in rapid order.)

NO. 1—ANDY BEDNAR, PITCHER

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 25.—Black diamonds are O. K. with Andy Bednar, but since this sturdy coal miner found the pleasures and profits of another diamond he desires to forsake the bowels of Mother Earth for sunshine. The glowing history of baseball is replete with instances of powerful miners who tossed aside their picks and shovels for the more fascinating ball and bat. It seems to be in the blood for a coal-digger to love baseball.

"And why shouldn't we like it?" exclaimed Adam Comorosky, the mule-driver of the Pirate outfield. "If you ever followed a mule around in a coal mine you would know what a wonderful thing it is to get a position playing ball."

The story of baseball also shows that a big percentage of the coal miners who reach the majors are of foreign extraction. Mike Svengros, erstwhile Pirate, and Bednar are of the same nationality. The broad-shouldered Austrian boy of 20 who comes to the Pirates runs true to the type. Bednar lives within 12 miles of Mike in Illinois. He is modesty personified.

Andy Bednar

Andy is thankful to be a part of baseball, and, in his natural, humble manner, he already has made a favorable impression.

Chick Fraser, one of the Pittsburgh sleuths, was moving stealthily in the wilds of the Nebraska State League when he came upon Andy. It was a case of "stop, look and listen" when Chick encountered Bednar. True, he did not hear much in a vocal way from the reticent miner, but Andy had a whistling fast ball that spoke right out, and it wasn't long before Chick learned that he was gazing upon a youth who had remarkable control. A little research work disclosed that the quiet lad with the control had pitched five whole ball games without walking a batter.

Well, of course, Chick, himself a former slab star, realized that this was par for any course and he soon moved to get Andy's feet under the Pirate table. So it looks like the farmhand trick for the rookie; if he is half as clever as Fraser thinks he is he will be put out under a Pirate option.

Nokomis, Ill., the home of Sunny Jim Bottomley, of the Cards, and Charley Ruffing, of the Red Sox, gave Andy to baseball.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

GRIMES, BUCS CONFER; CASE UNCHANGED

Burleigh Grimes and the Pittsburgh Baseball Club were as far apart as ever today, following another conference on the subject of the spitball pitcher's spring holdout.

Grimes dropped into town again late yesterday afternoon from his home in Minerva, O., called at Pirate headquarters, and discussed the matter of a 1930 contract once more with Secretary Sam Watters.

It was with the usual result, however. They didn't get anywhere. Secretary Watters informed the hurler that the club's original offer was final, and as Grimes also continued firm in his demands the situation remains unchanged. The same wide difference still exists, both as to the length of the contract and the salary terms.

Another conference may be held today or tomorrow, but even if Grimes were to sign, he would be unable to leave for Paso Robles with the second squad tomorrow night, as the hearing in his suit for divorce has been definitely set for next Monday.

There will be only two in the coast-bound party starting from Pittsburgh tomorrow night, Coach Bill Hinchman and Adam Comorosky. Floyd Young, recruit infielder and outfielder, was to have left tomorrow, but he is not sufficiently recovered from an attack of pleurisy to make the trip.

Young originally was scheduled to depart with the first squad, now in Paso Robles. As a result of his continued illness, he will be farmed to a minor league team when he recovers.

Hinchman and Comorosky will leave at 7:25 tomorrow evening over the Pennsylvania railroad. At St. Louis they will be joined by Pie Traynor and Umpire Ted McGrew, new National League

COOL WEATHER IS HANDICAP TO ENS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 25.—Despite a frosty tinge in the air since the arrival of his big vanguard of Pirates, Manager Jewel Ens today expressed satisfaction over the conditioning results obtained and he was ready for another long mud-day drill.

"As long as the weather remains as cool as it has been since we arrived, I feel that one workout is much better than two, especially if we take it in the middle of the day when we are apt to get more heat," was the way the Buccaneer skipper put it this morning in discussing conditions.

WEATHER COLD

Ens has been coming to Paso Robles since the training site was switched here seven years ago and he feels confident that the zephyrs will tone down in time to get the players in something close to the condition required for the start of the coming campaign.

Low temperatures were reported here just before the arrival of the big leaguers. The natives were somewhat disappointed to see the athletes get here at the same time as a cold wave, but there is no reason for alarm so far as the condition of the boys is concerned.

Showers have accompanied the coolness in Paso Robles, but the rains are a God-send to the countryside. The rainfall is quite a bit below normal, so that each shower adds to the happiness of the natives and they are not apt to hamper the baseball players to any great extent.

The Buccos are remarkably free of sore joints and the like as the sessions progress. The introduction of calisthenics into the curriculum may be one of the chief reasons for the absence of the pains incident to training. Each session begins with this form of exercise and the stunt has made a hit with all hands.

ENS LIKE JORGENSEN

Then again, the athletes are being treated consistently by the new trainer, Dr. Charles Jorgensen. Over the greater part of last season the team was without the services of a trainer and unfortunately there was nobody to work on fellows like Pie Traynor and George Grantham when they were forced out of the lineup.

Manager Ens is tickled pink over the new trainer. He has watched his work on more than a score of players already and he is convinced that the healer of defects is just the man needed to keep the athletes in action, though there are times when a star can play under quite severe physical handicaps, provided he is treated correctly from day to day. It seems that the treatment end of the game is coming into its own. On the other hand, it is possible

All is quite OK with Pittsburgh's college basketball boys, thank you. After a restful week-end, during which they ruminated over their transgressions of any and thoughtfully considered things to come, all three of the local institutions toss their quintets into the arena tonight — Pitt and Tech against each other and the Dukes against Westminster in an important Tri-State Conference setto at New Wilmington.

Ralph Hogan

The latter game, having as it does the conference lead at stake, is the more important of the two contests. Pitt and Tech will be ending their annual three-game city series for no reason at all, and the feature of the affair will be the final appearance of Charley Hyatt, Les Cohen and Paul Zehfuss against Carnegie Tech.

Tech's record is somewhat drab, only one triumph over a major opponent being in evidence to offset a long string of defeats. But Coach Hogan's team upset all dope in knocking off Penn State, and by employing the same style of play against Pitt is very likely to keep the score low.

DUKES FACE TITANS

It is the Dukes who are up against it tonight. Playing at New Wilmington against the clever, oh so clever Titans, Coach Davies' charges face a stern test. Of course the reward of a victory, the lead in the Conference is worthy of the best efforts of the locals, and as the Red and Blue passers desire so very earnestly to continue their impressive win streak, they'll probably play a great game.

One other game enhances the tri-state district's program, Geneva and Allegheny tangling at Meadville. Let's see, the Covenanters lost the last time out, so they'll probably win this one.

GOB'S ATTITUDE BIG FACTOR

sey was "soft pickings" in 1927. He really felt he could stop the once great champion. He tore into Dempsey and actually outslugged him in the first round. He had Dempsey teetering.

But Dempsey wasn't Maloney. He was constructed differently. He came back in the second, and, by coaxing further slugging, invited Sharkey to knock him out—or be knocked out in failure. The story goes—and the result of the battle shows it—that Dempsey's courage took much of the fighting spirit out of Sharkey. The sailor fought with decreasing vim and Dempsey broke him down and knocked him out in the seventh round, while Sharkey turned his head to protest alleged low blows.

THE STRIBLING FIGHT

Following a long vacation, Sharkey proceeded on a comeback, taking on Arthur DeKuh, a third-rater. He won the decision. Then he mixed it with Kayo Christner, another third-rater. He again won the decision—but it was merely by the width of an eyelash.

After that, Sharkey met Young Stribling at Miami last February and gained that decision. Yet up to the fourth round Stribling had the advantage. But in the fourth, Stribling threw out his left arm. He could attack and defend with only the right hand, and Sharkey nosed his way to victory.

But it was only a final round rally by Sharkey that marked the difference between victory and defeat, many still believe.

In his next fight—last summer—Sharkey stopped Tommy Loughran. The latter was a legitimate light-heavyweight. But he purposely added about 10 pounds to his frame. It wasn't fighting weight. It was fat.

Secondly, Loughran, never a puncher, got a notion that he could win by slugging with a heavier and harder puncher. So he walked in and traded punches with Sharkey. The latter, inflamed by Loughran's pre-fight taunts and figuring that he had nothing to fear in the way of a devastating blow from the light-hitting Loughran, welcomed the toe-to-toe warfare.

KNOCKS OUT LOUGHRAN

Loughran, just the same, won the first round, although that detail is seriously disputed. Sharkey took the second.

In the third, Sharkey charged at Tommy like a wild man, backed him against the ropes, and drove a terrific punch against Loughran's forehead—the whole body of Sharkey being behind the smash. Loughran went down, took a count, got up and, bewildered, walked to a neutral corner, looking for a chair.

The referee stopped the fight. Sharkey became winner on a technical knockout with Loughran still on his feet, physically undamaged, but with his brain in a confused fog for upwards of an hour!

There you have the highlights of Sharkey's most recent career. It embraces nearly three years. It reports knockout successes over Maloney and Loughran, a knockout defeat by Dempsey, decision triumphs over two men—who were third-raters and Stribling, who fought the final six rounds with a useless left arm.

Yet Sharkey is recognized as best of the American group, the seeming champion of the U. S. A.—although always there is someone who adds, "Champion—yes—champion of a mournful looking group."

Camp Notes

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The first casualty of the Cubs' 1930 spring training cropped up yesterday.

Lon Warneke, young right-hander who came up this year from the Alexandria, La., club, was struck a severe blow over his forehead by a batted ball during the short batting practice. His eyes swelled, damaged, but suffered a bad gash on his forehead that required several stitches to close.

ROBIN CRIPPLES BACK

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—News was strictly foolish at the opening session of the Brooklyn Robins' spring training season. Dave Bancroft, 1925 Oliver Wright, two Brooklynites and Johnson City, Kinsell, apparently have recovered from the ailments that made them practically useless to the Robins last year. Wright is swapping the ball to first base with freedom and speed and there was no trace apparently of the lame arm that kept him on the bench in 1929. Bancroft, who underwent two operations during the winter, hit the first home run of the season. Elliott, the big left-hander, tossed up the ball in practice and appeared in better condition than he has been at any time since the end of the 1929 season.

TIGER BATTERYMEN WORK

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Battery men of the Detroit Tigers took to the field yesterday for a brief warming up which formally opened spring training for Manager Bucky Harris' young and hopeful baseball squad. Six pitchers and four catchers threw the ball about while Harris and two coaches watched and Harris put on record that he will be a bench manager so long as Charlie Gehringer is at second.

Those who were not here were Herring, National, Page, Barnes, Sullivan and White, hill pitchers, and Shea, Hargrave, Stanicke and Ressa, catchers.

INDIANS LIMBER UP

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Perfect weather sent the Cleveland Indians scampering into the practice field here yesterday, a day ahead of the scheduled opening for the annual limbering up.

All except three members of the pitching staff were on hand. Wes Ferrell and Willis Hudlin, now classed as holdouts, and Ken Holloway, were the missing hurlers. Holloway will report in a few days.

BISHOP HAS COLD

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Max Bishop, the general utility player of the Athletics baseball team, is suffering from a heavy cold and not prompt as first feared, Bishop informed local newspaper men. Despite his cold, however, Bishop went through a stiff workout yesterday.

RED SOX START GRIND

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Heinie Wagner ordered his Boston Red Sox in the field in uniform immediately upon their arrival here today. He announced that one word was to be taboo during the season—"collar."

ALICE DAVIS IN FINAL

MANILA, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Miss Alice Davis, daughter of Dwight F. Davis, governor general of the Philippines and donor of the famous Tennis Cup, yesterday entered the final of the Philippine Women's Tennis championship tournament. Miss Davis defeated Miss Petra Carvera, 6-4, 6-4.

MEETING TONIGHT

There will be a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in room 328 A Fulton Building to form Carnegie League. Any club wanting to enter be on hand. Blythe Independent, North M. E. and Neville are the first teams to enroll.

LORD P. M. C. COACH

CHESTER, Pa., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Bibb Lord, one-time star outfielder on the Philadelphia Athletics, yesterday was appointed coach of the Pennsylvania Military College baseball team. He succeeds Al Paustis, who has joined the coaching staff of the University of Pennsylvania.

TRACK BUILDER DIES

MONTEREY, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A. A. Allen, 70, president of the Monterey Bank of Monterey Canning Company and formerly a race track builder, died yesterday at his home near Point Lobos. He built the Hawthorne and Harlem tracks in the East.

REFEREE NAMED FIGHT BOSS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 25.—Chairman Louis K. MacReynolds, of the Miami Boxing Commission, announced today that Lou Magnolia, referee of the Sharkey-Scott bout next Thursday night, will be the sole judge of whether the fight should be stopped in the event either contestant is beaten into a helpless condition.

MacReynolds made this statement to clear up a controversy which developed over the interpretation put on the rules governing the fight by Jimmy Johnston, manager of Scott, who claims he was assured by MacReynolds at the commission meeting, yesterday afternoon, that Magnolia would not stop the fight without first consulting him and being told that Scott could not continue. Johnston insists he does not want the fight ended on a technicality and declares Magnolia must count out his fighter if he gets into distress.

Reiteration was made today by William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, that there would not be any radio broadcast of the fight. He said strong pressure was being brought to bear because of the international aspect of the card of battles to permit a world-wide broadcast, but that tickets for the fight were being sold with the understanding that there would be no broadcast and no change would be made from this position. Last year, a last-minute change of front permitted the Sharkey-Stribling bout here to be broadcast.

Sharkey and Scott both went through workouts yesterday. Sharkey was vicious and impressive against his sparring mates, while Scott again was drab and colorless and excited pity of onlookers. Betting now is 4 to 1 that Scott will be knocked out in an early round.

Gene At Miami; Dempsey to Miss Show

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25. (AP.)—Gene Tunney reached Miami Beach last night in company with Mrs. Tunney. He will be at the ringside for the Scott-Sharkey fight Thursday night, but Jack Dempsey will not be among those present. Tunney walked with the aid of a cane and said he still is weak from his recent operation.

William F. Carey received a telegram from Dempsey, who is in Chicago, saying the former heavyweight king regretted business would keep him away, but sending his best wishes for "the most attractive card of heavyweight matches ever arranged on one show."

A message of good wishes for Phil Scott from the Prince of Wales was conveyed to the British heavyweight by Maj. Metcalfe, former royal equerry, who will witness the fight.

after working hours having the effect of drawing large crowds. Horse racing in any form gets an immense play in Australia. It's the country's pet pastime, and the big event of the year, the Melbourne Cup, is comparable to the Kentucky Derby in the United States.

Phil Scott

REPORTS of a feeble advance sale that indicate the Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott fistic show in Miami next Thursday night is likely to prove a financial flop, with the receipts not more than $250,000 instead of the $400,000 originally expected by the promoters, are far from being astounding. Really, the only surprising feature is the reported possibility that the affair may draw even as much as $250,000. It doesn't rate nearly that high on its merits, admitting that it has some of the latter not apparent on the surface. Scott doesn't measure up as having a ghost of a chance to win, and real fight fans cannot be attracted from a distance to patronize a one sided catch-penny bout the result of which looks like a foregone conclusion. Bad as it was, the Sharkey-Young Stribling thing in the same place a year ago had far greater drawing power. For one thing, Stribling was a card in his native South, where Scott is a nobody, and besides there was the color of Jack Dempsey as a promoter, with a sentimental desire among fistic followers to make a success of the last show planned by Tex Rickard before the latter's death.

MALCO TO BOX WINNER AT GARDEN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Tom Malco, of Soho, will meet the winner of the Vincent Hambright-Jimmy Belmont 10-round bout which features the opening of the new boxing arena in the upstairs hall of Duquesne Garden tomorrow night. Announcement to this effect was made last night by Matchmaker Nate Leff, at the end of a busy day during which he signed Malco for the battle, which will take place in the Garden ring one week from tomorrow night, and also completed the job of superintending the laying out of the hall.

Contrary to the original plan, the ring is not placed at one end of the hall, but has been located near the center, giving all of the fans a good view of the proceedings. The club will be able to seat comfortably about 1500 persons.

Hambright and his stablemate, Phil Heckert, who meets Harry Williams, Negro light-heavyweight of the North Side, in the semi-final, are due to arrive in town today from Cincinnati to finish their training here.

Indications are that the new club will get off to a good start with a capacity crowd for its initial offering. The advance sale has been fair, picking up considerably since Saturday. Last-minute reservations may be made by calling Schenley 9259, the club's office in the Garden.

Between Rounds

Promoter Jim Mosier, of McKeesport, today completed his card for his weekly show in the Palisades Arena Thursday night with the signing of Johnny Motta, babe, of Braddock, to box Jimmy Shade, of Pittsburgh, and formerly of Niles, O., in the six round opening bout. They are 130-pounders. Eddie Brannon, Negro light-weight, of the Hill, boxes Johnny Sacco, of Buffalo, in the 10-round main bout. Abie Beatty, of McKeesport, and Jackie Herman, of Wheeling, are in the eight-round semi-final, and Danny Russell, of Braddock, and formerly of Baltimore, meets Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, in the second bout, rounding out one of the best balanced programs of the season in this section.

George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, and Jack Wells, of Wellsburg, W. Va., have been matched by Joe Gans, main bout at Washington, Pa., next Monday night. Chuck Zelnack, of Monessport, and Jackie Wilson, of Jersey City, who put on a good battle at the Moose Club last Friday night, will clash again in the semi-final.

WEST BOXES M'VEY

A Bob Gordon wonder card has been arranged for the Arch Friday night. Tiger Wood, of Uniontown, meets Jack McVey, veteran Negro middleweight star, of New York, in the feature event, and Tiny DeBoe, Young Jack Dempsey, of Connellsville, and Jack Grant, of Carnegie, in the other 10-rounder.

Battling Gray, of Washington, Pa., will not box Louie Severo, of Erie, in the main bout at East Liverpool, O., tonight, as advertised, but is Johnny Thomas, of the Hill, booked for the semi-final, according to Abe Witt, one of the managers of the pair, who claims they never were signed for the show.

Young Jack Thompson and Freddie Fitzgerald box one of the supporting bouts to the sanction Mandell-Jimmy McLarnin non-title match in Chicago next Saturday night.

COMPLETES CARD TODAY

Promoter Francis Flynn, of the Moose Temple, will complete the bill today for his Gene Moretti-Young Saylor show Friday night. He has Andy Andruzzi meeting Johnny Smackey in a return bout in the semi-final.

Louis Nicolette and Joe Schmid have been matched to box the main bout of a show at Lorain, O., next Monday night.

Mickey Blake and Danny Devlin, home-town rivals, meet in a 10-rounder at Allentown, Pa., tonight. Eddie Mack, of Denver, boxes Maurice Holtzer, the Frenchman, at Los Angeles.

Steve Smith, the iron man featherweight who recently defeated Lew Massey at New Haven, takes Tony Canzoneri, former claimant of the featherweight title, at Newark, N. J., Thursday night.

Carnera Stops Farmer Lodge In Second

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, gigantic Italian, pushed Farmer Lodge, ponderous Minnesotan, like a child about the ring, and then knocked him out in the second round of their fight here last night.

Carnera knocked Lodge down for a short count in the first round, and in the second floored him for a count of seven. After his second collapse,

BOSTON, Feb. 25.—The world champion Bruins will conclude their season series with the Pittsburgh Pirates here tonight when they meet the Steel CSty skaters for the sixth and last time during the 1929-30 campaign.

BRUINS FAVORED

In five previous meetings with the Pittsburghers, the local puckmen emerged with five triumphs. The champions have lost only four decisions in 37 starts this season, and the Pirates have won only five, and all indications are that the locals will add to their commanding lead in the league race in tonight's joust.

Although they have enjoyed great success against the Bucs, the Bruins have learned that the visitors are not to be regarded as a set-up. In their last meeting at Fort Erie, the Champs were extended to win by a one-goal margin, and in two other contests the tailenders gave the Hub sextet a real battle befored ropping the decision.

SCHMEELK AT HELM

Secretary Garry Schmeelk was at the helm when the Pirates arrived here today. Manager Frank Frederickson having gone to New York to discuss plans for the 1930-31 season with Owner Benny Leonard. Schmeelk said that in the event that Frederickson is able to concludeh is business with Leonard on time, he will come here to direct his term in its last battle here.

At the conclusion of tonight's fray, the Pirates will return to Pittsburgh to make ready for their fight with Les Canadiens, of Montreal, at Pittsburgh aSturday. The probable lineup:

Rookie Given Ruth's Yank Uniform

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A deep and dark plot to force Babe Ruth to put his signature to a New York Yankee contract has been scented by baseball reporters covering the Yankees spring training here.

At the first workout of the season yesterday, it was discovered that Babe's famous uniform, with its well known "3" hemstitched on the back, was being worn by a rookie, Allen Cooke, who may or may not play left field for the Yanks this year. Sports writers, with a facetious turn of mind, believed the Babe would never stand for having his uniform worn by anybody, much less by a rookie.

The J. J. Veronas begin their battle to regain first place in the Allegheny County League tonight when they entertain the crack Homestead Ackermans in the only league fray on the card at Columbus Temple. The contest brings together two natural rivals and should be productive of numerous thrills.

TWO TOUGH GAMES

The Veronas have two tough battles on their hands this week and must win both to remain in the running for the second half championship of the County League. Thursday night they meet the league-leading Goldensons at the South Side Market House in a contest that is expected to have a decided bearing on the championship. This game has stirred up considerable interest in local professional basketball circles and a record-breaking crowd is expected to view the proceedings.

In the other league contests carded tonight, Kingsley House plays the Knickers in the West Penn; Irene Kauffmann Settlement House plays at Equitable Life in the Central Pittsburgh; St. Joseph's is at St. John's in the Catholic Lyceum; Sharpsburg Y. is at the North Side Buicks in the Greater Pittsburgh; St. Paul's Lutheran is at Flying Dutchmen and Immaculate Reserves are at Pittsburgh Boy's Club in the Metropolitan League.

FINTEX ON TOP

An early lead by Fintex stood in its stead as that club defeated the Charleroi Lions, 37 to 33, at Columbus Temple in a County League tilt last night.

The Schneiders tripped Y. M. H. A., 52 to 28, and the South Side Falcons won from North Side Community, 58-24, in the West Penn circuit. Trinity Cathedral knocked off Joseph Hornes, 65 to 50, in the Central loop.

Byllesby copped from Equitable Gas, 42-22 and Sales and Service defeated Duquesne Light 37 to 25, in the Philadelphia Company league, while P. & L. E. won from Riecks, 27 to 14, in the C. & I. Mt. Washington Triangles toppled St. Ann's, 23 to 15, in the Metropolitan.

The Penn Five eliminated St. Michaels, 40 to 32, and the Penn Cadets bumped Foster A. L., 24 to 18, in the A. A. U. tourney.

WEISS, STRUB, HARRIS WIN FIGHTS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 25—Sam Weiss, of Philadelphia, won the decision from Jimmy Mahoney, in 10 rounds at Jolly Bowl last night. Jackie Ward of Cleveland, won the six-round semi-final from Bud Dempsey, of Ambridge. Frankie Frey, New Castle, and Steve Marks, Akron, went six rounds to a draw. Frankie Lands, New Castle, and Dan Burns, Canton, fought a six-round draw in the opening fight. The fights were good and enthused the crowd.

STRUB STOPS NABORS

OIL CITY, Pa., Feb. 25—(AP.)—Maxie Strub, of Erie, won on a technical knockout over Ben Nabors, Jamestown, N. Y., in the second round here last night.

Red Jaderberg, of Jamestown, N. Y., knocked out Jeff Davis, of Youngstown, in two rounds; Tony Brown, Jamestown, N. Y., outpointed Paul Balint, of Pittsburgh, in six rounds, and Young Tusky Gazlett, of Franklin, won the decision in four rounds over Art Anderson, of Jamestown, N. Y.

MICKEY HART BEATEN

PIRATES GET LONG DRILL IN CAMP

to overdo this phase of a club's condition. There are athletes who demand treatment when they have nothing whatsoever wrong with hteir bodies.

DEVINE TO WED

Joe Devine, Coast League representative of the Pirates and the same droll fellow who has picked up a galaxy of Pirate stars, is about to enter a new field. Joe is engaged to wed Miss Viola Dunne, a charming Irish beauty of San Francisco. Miss Dunne came down with Mrs. Remy Kremer for a short visit at the Pirate camp and she and Joe were congratulated on all sides.

Devine is extremely popular with the Pittsburgh players. His good nature and wit help to entertain the boys. After several of the Pirates had been quite fascinated by Joe's fiance, they approached the scout and began to tell Joe how lucky he was, and all that sort of stuff.

"What a beautiful girl you have won for a wife," observed a Pirate to Devine.

Joe smiled, and then in his slow, quiet manner remarked:

"Thanks, boys, but you know I have been picking off some pretty fair ballplayers in the last few years, so I ought to be able to pick myself a good girl."

Jack Grant, the professional at the Atascadero Country Club, is a popular personage around the ball camp. Jack's layout is located about 10 miles out of town, but he has a car handy and thus it is quite easy to form a foursome or better. After yesterday's practice, Sam Dreyfuss, Oscar Stanage, Charley Hargreaves and John O'Connell accompanied the pro to the golf course, where they indulged in a pleasant round.

KAPPELL PLAYS SANBORN

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 25.—The first round of match play in the annual Dixie championship golf tournament is being completed today over the Miami Country Club course. Among those participating is Bill Kappell, of Pittsburgh, who is opposing Dr. F. A. Sanborn, of New York, in the eighth flight. In the qualifying test yesterday Kappell turned in a card of 53-53—106.

AMOCO-GAS
Will Make You Grin On Both Sides of Your Face

FILL up with AMOCO-GAS and head for the nastiest hill you know. Start at the bottom at any speed. Feel how the car gathers power as it goes. Notice that you can't make it knock. Watch it soar over the crest with a final spurt of power. That'll cause a smile.

Then head for a traffic light and line up beside another car. As the light changes from amber to green, feed her the gas. Notice your get-away—how the others are left far behind. The smile will broaden—on one side of your face.

As the days roll on and you roll on on AMOCO-GAS, the one-sided smile is going to widen until your face feels lopsided. Then take a few minutes to check up on your costs and the smile will be just as broad—on the other side of your face.

For although AMOCO-GAS costs slightly more per gallon, it costs much less per mile. You'll smile when you find how many more miles you'll get to each gallon. And you'll smile when you see how AMOCO-GAS cuts down on your operating expense.

Regular stops at the AMOCO-GAS pump will give you a thrill of motor performance such as you've never known at a lower cost per mile. Start smiling—keep smiling—with AMOCO-GAS.

CENTRAL LEAGUE CLUBS REORGANIZE

STRONG LOOP EXPECTED TO BE FORMED

By TOM BIRKS

The Central League will have its get-together this evening at Honus Wagner's and from the interest that is following its formation there is reason to feel the circuit will be much stronger than last season.

Last season the W. O. W. club, of McKees Rocks, copped the race, and then followed up this feat by winning the Greater Pittsburgh Class A title. Of last season's teams the Bowles will not be back. Abe Goldstein had thrown in his lot with the Jimmy Coslett's, and Abe and a number of former Boyle stars will be doing their stuff on the Schenley High School Field.

The Harvey and Wagner clubs will be dropped this season and their places are to be taken by teams which show much promise. The Stephen-Jenkins team of Homestead is anxious to get in the loop and the managers feel this club would be a worthy addition. Of course, it is hardly possible to tell what will happen at the session.

Roosevelt, under the leadership of Lutton, will be back stronger than last season, and W. O. W. will be represented at the meeting by Wally Wickline.

Bunts

At a meeting of the City League last evening the W. O. W. club, Greater Pittsburgh cross A champion and Central League champion, was admitted to the City League. Negotiations with the Junior South club, Sid Briggs the motor to eight clubs again. The season is now complete with Sons, Shaw Boosters, Board of Trade, Stowe Cities, W. C. W. Juniors, South, North Side Cubs, Pleasant Valley and St. Johns.

Fans should remember the Dormont midnight show to be held Friday evening. Secretary Price and his committee have lined up quite a big list of entertainers, and sandwiches and their friends are invited to the South Hills Harris Theater.

lifting breath. Barry Dunne carried out the box to the spot where Chickie had packed sandwiches, all wrapped in wax paper.

"Say, isn't this merry, though? I thought up to the last minute you were going to call it off."

"Why—and you such a devil of a fellow with the ladies?"

"Well, I thought anyway that you'd ask me to shift about and go on the yacht."

"Did Jake ask you, too?"

"Yes. I think he had a hunch we were beating it off together. He tried all ways to get me along." He turned his eyes searchingly to her face, his own a little hard, doubting. "Most girls fall for a fellow like Jake. He's quite a killer. Don't you think so?"

"He's handsome — and, of course, he has big cars and lots of money."

"Sure—that's the bait for the girls of today. If a fellow has the coin in his pocket it doesn't make a bit of difference to them if he hasn't a hair on his head or a thought in his brain."

She laughed merrily: "You find the competition hard to meet, Mr. Red? You seem to be carrying it off quite jauntily. I'd like to tell you that the redoubtable Jake, with his money and his cars, failed to catch one little fish not so very far away from yourself. You see, I kept that date anyway!"

He wanted to be made sure of this. When they sat under the tree eating their lunch, he came back to it. He was filled with curiosity about her, but more poignantly he wondered what she saw in him. She couldn't, in her heart, prefer him to a wonderful fellow like Jake Munson.

Her hair was glinting in the sun. The breeze blew it in shimmering threads across her white forehead. He put up his hand and drew it back. "Will you tell me something truthfully, Chickie?"

She answered absently, because a great sweetness was rushing in and filling up her heart: 'Maybe, if it's a pleasant question."

"Did you keep the date because you said you would or because you wanted to?"

She laughed softly: "How vain we are, for all your red hair and your vanished freckles."

"Please—I can't enjoy myself unless you tell me."

"Indeed! I kept it because I wished to."

"Oh, you darling. Turn your face this way—there—how do they make them like that, I'd like to know?"

He began asking her all manner of questions: Did she read much? Did she intend to keep on working always? What did she think of marriage? And finally: "Chickie, how many times have you been engaged?"

"Oh, you idiot. Now, I might think that was Mary talking. Why, never."

"You've been in love, though—you were handing me out a tall line about never kissing fellows—"

Her face grew suddenly sober, then she tossed her head with a laugh. "Such a nerve as a man has! Like Jimmy—he said the very same things. Why, you'd think yourself a prize booby if you didn't kiss every girl you could. Why not us? Why should there be one rule for you and another for us?"

"There isn't! Not any more. But if a girl thinks she has a right to do these things, why does she deny it?"

"They don't. Janina doesn't.'

"You say there should be only the one rule, Chickie. If that's so, then you should believe in kissing and kiss!"

"Indeed, that's like a man all right. Suppose the one rule I'd have should be 'no kissing either for thee or for me.' I think abstinence would be especially fine for a man."

He took her hands and turned them over, laughing. "That's on your tongue—all that. It's not in your heart. I'm here to shout it's not in mine!"

"Read to me! That will keep your lips busy."

Sitting on the ground next to him, listening to his voice, she had a wish that recurred like some soft, drowsy perfume drifting in her face—a wish to lean back against his shoulder—to close her eyes dreamily. She would have been glad to let him sleep against her arm—let her fingers loiter on his face.

He read on and on. He stopped over his favorites and sometimes quoted whole stanzas, asking her opinion. She gave it with a grand, princess air, hoping eagerly she said the right thing.

Finally he closed the book. "Some things are awfully hard on the lips, Chickie." He pulled her to her feet.

The sun was caught in a great black splash of clouds. He put his arm about her waist, whispered softly in her ear, "Ah, 'tis a beauteous evening, calm and free—and thou, dear girl that walkest with me here—like to walk on and on and hate to walk back?"

He looked down at her and laughed. She felt his heart thumping—a deadly stillness in her own. An impulse that suddenly charged over her like a rush of hot tears made her turn—made her reach out her hand to him.

He caught it. He said with a gasp, "Chickie! Oh, you darling!"

She stood there and let his arms sweep about her. She raised her face. She said "No." But she waited, moveless—waited, trembling.

He put her arms swift to her shoulders; he drew her, whispering, "You darling!" He kissed her.

His face was white. He turned her hands upward and kissed them. He said, breathless, looking into her face: "Chickie, you're beautiful. You are!"

She wished the world would end—then—too sweet to bear. They walked along silent.

Afterward it frightened her. She lay awake, clasping her hands hard against her heart. She said to herself, half aloud: "No! Not again. No!"

In reality, PEBECO is a "grown-up" tooth paste—one made for those who have found ordinary dentifrices seriously lacking. For PEBECO takes up where others leave off. It cleans—like others. It whitens—without scratching the enamel. And it also stimulates the flow of saliva which checks the mouth acids, and thus retards decay. Get acquainted with PEBECO'S distinctive taste. In a week you will realize it is a dentifrice for people who make up their own minds.

LOVEJOY

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XLII.

STEVE came swiftly down the platform toward her. A little knot of station loafers were watching him, and so was Sheila. But he caught Lovejoy's face between his hands, and there in front of them all he kissed her on the mouth.

"This sure is a sight for sore eyes—to see you on this station platform!" he said, grinning down at her boyishly. "I'd begun to think Id never get you here!"

He picked up her bags and they went down the platform side by side, Lovejoy's high heels clicking like castanets on the wide boards.

The train moved slowly past them, its lighted windows throwing a moving pattern of gold on the ground. A white-capped chef was leaning out of a window of the dining car.

Their own waiter waived at them from a platform as the train disappeared into the deep-blue darkness of a Nevada night.

"I'll bet he's sorry to lose us! —All the tips we gave him!" Sheila called to them as they came toward her.

She struck Sheila as oddly out-of-place with her cigarette, her satin suit and her hat with its tiny lace nose veil. Above her was a new moon, larger and whiter than the station lights. In the air was a faint spicy smell of sage-brush and dust, and a feeling of wide spaces around them.

Lovejoy was glad when she called out to say that there was a fifteen-mile drive ahead of them.

"The place where I stayed wasn't exactly a hotel," she explained. "It's a ranch house—the kind where they take people to board, you know. You'll love it, both of you! We can ride in the morning, if you like, Lovejoy."

"Are you talking about a horseback ride?" Lovejoy asked her with alarm in her voice. She had heard about the wild bucking broncbos of the West, and she hoped that nobody would expect her to ride one of them.

"They have some awfully good horses at Hill's," Sheila answered. "You're going to love this place, Lovejoy."

Start for Ranch

At this time Lovejoy herself thought she was going to love it. That is, if she did not have to ride!

She sniffed the good, clean air as if she couldn't get enough of it. It was like a tonic after the smell of liquor and perfume and cigarets that had been in her nostrils for the last day or two.

"You'll want to send a wire to your aunt, won't you, dear?" Steve asked her. "Let's see, I wired ahead for a car to meet us—"

As he spoke a tall figure moved into the light of the nearest lamp post. A tall, broad-shouldered, narrow-hipped man in tan shirt and trousers and a broad-brimmed Stetson.

"Mr. Oglebay?"

"That's right." Steve told him. "You the man from Hill's. Here are our bags."

The cowboy picked them up and carried them easily across the station to a big, open car that was standing in the shadows beyond the station.

"Stunning, isn't he?" Sheila whispered into Lovejoy's ear as they left the town behind them and started out into the wide scented country.

The wind was cold and Lovejoy pulled her hat-brim down and snuggled close against Steve. . . . This was like a dream. The stars coming right down to the ground along the horizon, the strange scenery, the cowboy on the front seat, the howling of a coyote coming to her ears above the hum of the engine.

"I'm not going to sit back here with you two any longer!" Sheila said suddenly. "You're so wrapped up in each other that you don't know I'm alive! Ten minutes ago I asked Lovejoy a question and I'm still waiting for her answer to it!"

Sheila Friendly

Lovejoy laughed. "How could I answer it? How could I tell you that our driver is stunning-looking when Steve's right here beside me, listening?"

"Well, anyway, I'm leaving you flat!" And Sheila swung her long, silk-covered legs over the front seat and dropped down beside the surprised young driver of the car.

"Want a cigaret?" Lovejoy heard her ask him, and in two minutes they were chattering like a couple of long-lost friends.

"Don't you make eyes at any of the good-looking cowboys around here while I'm down in California!" Steve whispered to Lovejoy. "Remember that you belong to me now!"

He laughed but she knew that he meant what he said. He did feel that she belonged to him now that she had taken this last step—now that she had crossed all her bridges and come to Minden. There was something of ownership in the kisses that he pressed on her mouth now—and all at once she remembered the kisses that Tom had given her almost two years ago on the night when they had come home for the first time to the little flat in Hewlett street.

"Don't kiss me, Steve!" she whispered pushing him gently away from her. "I don't want —that cowboy to see you—kiss me."

Hill's ranch house was a long, low white building ablaze with many lighted windows.

It was everything that a ranch house should be. There were Indian rugs on the floor of the big center hall. The chairs and tables were in mission style and there were antlers and deer heads on the polished brown wood walls.

Opening off the hall was a great dining room. In the middle of it stood a long table covered with a red-and-white cloth. There were plates and glasses and silver at one end of it.

"I've a cold bite for you all," Mrs. Hill told them when she came into the hall to make them all welcome. "Just some cold baked ham and a bowl of salad greens. I remember how you like your salad, Mrs. Nettles!"

The food was delicious. And the coffee that followed it was the best coffee that Lovejoy had ever tasted. It was golden-brown and it was smooth and rich with heavy cream.

Lovejoy Worried

But she was sorry she had drunk it when she went upstairs to bed late that night. For it kept her awake and she kept tossing and twisting in her bed for hours.

Downstairs in the stillness of the great house a clock struck one, and then, after an eternity, it struck two.

It will be hours before the telegraph office in town is open, thought Lovejoy, getting up on her elbow to stare out into the moonlight. Hours and hours—and Aunt Em doesn't know where I am. Suppose the baby should be sick—

She got out of bed and began to walk up and down the bare floor of her room, too nervous and unhappy to even try to sleep by this time.

It must have been a little before half past two when some one knocked softly on her door. So softly that at first she was not sure it was a knock.

She went swiftly across the room in her felt slippers and opened her door. There was a lamp at the far end of the hall and in its dim light she could see Steve standing there in his bathrobe.

"What's the matter, sweetheart? Can't you sleep?" he asked, just above a whisper. "Worried about anything?"

Lovejoy nodded her tousled red head. "I forgot to send my telegram to Aunt Em," she said, "and I'm worried about the baby."

He stood thinking, for a few seconds.

Telephones Home

"The telegraph office is probably closed at this time of night—or we'd drive into town," he said quietly. "But I'll tell you what we can do. There's a telephone in the hall downstairs. We can telephone your aunt and find out everything you want to know. How will that be?"

That would be fine, Lovejoy told him. She slipped into her new pink wool dressing gown and followed him down the long, chilly hall, down the unparpeted stairs to the big table in the hall below.

"Steve, you're so good to me," she said to him while they waited for long-distance to get Aunt Em on the wire. "Steve, sometimes I'm so sorry for you."

He looked up at her, his eyes full of amazement.

"What are you talking about?" he asked.

"Well, you deserved better treatment than I've given you," she told him. "I ought to have married you two years ago when I married Tom. Even Aunt Em said so at the time. . . . Of course, she meant that I should have married a man with money instead of a poor man. But she was right, all the same."

He came around the table to her and drew her into his arms. "It doesn't matter what happened then. Things are all right now, aren't they?" He kissed her. "We'll be married in six months and you'll have your baby—and everything will be fine as silk."

The telephone bell rang sharply in the night-time stillness of the house.

Refreshes Atmosphere

The heavy odor of food pervading the dining room is not an appealing appetizer with which to begin a meal. To keep the room fragrant and the coming courses a delightful surprise, place a few drops of oil of lavender in a bowl on the dinner table when it is being set. The aroma will refresh the atmosphere.

Fay King Defines Legitimate Alimony and Some Other Kinds

By FAY KING

THERE are only two cases in which I believe alimony absolutely justifiable.

First and foremost to a divorced woman with small children. In this case alimony should even be a man's prior obligation. The mother of his children is entitled to more of his income than his new wife, until she also has children.

Second, to a childless wife who is too ill or too old to support herself.

Outside of these two cases, alimony is usually nothing more than legalized blackmail and post-matrimonial gold-digging.

Why a free, able-bodied woman should hound a man to the end of the earth for alimony just because they were once married sweethearts is ridiculous and unjust.

Especially if the marriage was brief.

Madge Seeks Contents of Brixton Letter

DICKEY drew out his watch and looked at it when I put my question at him as to what we meant to do about our discovery that young Noel Veritzen was shabby and in need of clothing.

"One thing is certain — we can't do anything tonight," he said. "And Harry and I are going to miss some very interesting preliminaries if we don't beat it. You girls don't need us anyway. Fix up any scheme you want to let the boys pride down, with as little jolt as possible, and count on us for whatever you need in the financial end. Eh Harry?"

"I'm right on your coat tails," his friend declared, and in another minute the two men were outside the apartment hastening to the boxing match, which was so engaging their interest. Lillian with Noel's torn coat still in her hands, looked after them with tender eyes.

"They're pretty good scouts, our men," she said.

"Do you think that is news to me," I countered with a smile. But let me see that coat. I'm not a tailor, but——"

"You're a darned sight better, if anybody should happen to ask you," Lillian retorted affectionately, putting the coat in my hands and leading the way from the closet.

I sat down under her reading lamp and examined the torn place carefully. It was not beyond repair, I decided, and rose abruptly.

"I'll run over to my rooms and get my sewing things and my roll of pieces," I said.

"I can go over there if you don't want to bother lugging them over," she proffered.

"I like your light better," I said hastily, and was guiltily conscious that I had not given her my real reason for preferring her apartment to mine. With her husband's admonition before me to find out everything possible concerning the coming advent of the Brixton family, I did not want her to leave the apartment and Helena Brixton's letter. I stood a far better chance of having her read it to me if it were casually close to her hand, as it was now, lying upon the reading table.

"I'm glad you do," she said with a grin, "for I'm lazy enough to be glad of the chance not to move."

I hurried over to my own room and took from a hamper the roll of pieces collected from long years of mending. Then I picked up my small sewing basket and went back to Lillian's sitting room, where I took possession of a small drawing board, spread it over the arms of my chair and opened my roll of pieces upon it.

"You should get something out of that mess," Lillian said, with the distaste she always has for anything connected with needlework. "You ought to be able to mend Joseph's coat from those."

"If I can mend Noel's," I murmured busily sorting. "It is all I shall worry about this evening. Ah!" I pounced upon a bit of cloth from an outworn suit of Dicky's. "This is nearly the same color and texture. It will do to put underneath the darning."

I put the rest of the pieces back in the roll and selected my thread with care. Then I settled down to the delicate task of darning the torn sleeve, so that ordinary scrutiny would not detect the needlework. Lillian stretched herself lazily, then slumped herself comfortably in her chair opposite me, watching me as I worked.

"I'm an awful cook and housemaid and a worse seamstress," she said frequently, "so why inflict my shortcomings upon myself or my family when I can earn the money to have things done so much better than I can do them?"

But like so many successful and brilliant women, deficient in domestic accomplishments, she had an exaggerated idea of the skill required for cooking and sewing, and it was with laughable awe and respect that she looked upon the elbow of Noel's coat when at last I had finished darning it.

"I'd give two fingers of my right hand to be able to do that."

"Don't talk nonsense," I said crossly, for I always had to fight envy of Lillian for the artistic skill which is hers, with its accompaniment of financial regard such as comes to few women earners.

"It's anything but nonsense," She retorted. "You couldn't tell that patch was there if you weren't looking for it. But I'll agree we both have something more important to discuss. What's to be done about Noel? Don't get peeved if I ask you a straight question. Have you any idea where Phil Veritzen is?"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

A Little Blarney, Now And Then.

THE only kisses for which a man ever feels any lasting gratitude are those that a woman bestows on the Blarney Stone.

When two people marry, it proves that they admire each other—but that is no valid reason why they should consider it necessary ever to mention the fact, again.

The man who treads on your vanity, before marriage, will probably tread all over your sensibilities, your amour propre and your self-esteem, after marriage, without even suspecting it.

A man who wants to keep his superiority-complex should choose a wife as a woman chooses a wallpaper. He should pass up the showy patterns for something modest, quiet, restful and non-committal which will make him stand out in brilliant contrast.

Never believe a man who tells you that he loves you, and then begins trying to "improve" you. A man in love is so dazzled by your charms that he cannot see a defect in you, even with a microscope.

In marriage, courtesy is much more comforting than candor; and a flattering safe-blower with a tender "line" may make a pleasanter household companion than a critical banker with a reform-complex.

A woman's enemies never strike her when she's down. They merely step aside and look gleefully on while her friends do it.

It is difficult to say which does more to spoil a woman's winter in Florida, the thought that her husband may be lonely and miserable while she is away—or the thought that he may not be.

Of all hard words ever uttered or penned,
The hardest are those of a "candid friend!"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, February 26

A DAY of what may be called "mixed influences" is the presage based on conflicting planetary operations. Some important changes, rendered advantageous by diligence and stability, are noted and critical situations, contention and perils to possessions may be swerved aside from danger points by equanimity and sound judgment.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of conflicting situations, with some excellent prospects, possibly through change or travel, attended by hazards of financial loss, quarrels and litigation, unless a firm grip be held on word and deed. Calm judgment may avert the shoals.

A child born on this day may be keen, quick and ingenious, but should be given firm training in self-rule, equanimity and sound judgments in all crises.

Keep Windows Shining

Shining windows are a housewife's rightful pride. They are not difficult to have if a soft chamois leather, wrung out of clear water is used to wash the dirt off. This should, of course, be followed by a brisk polishing with a soft cloth. A rag moistened with methylated spirit, shortens the labor when the windows are very grimy.

NOT SO DUMB

By HELEN KLUMPH

From Marion Davies' forthcoming All-Talking Picture by Wanda Tuchok and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play, "Dulcy," by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

CHAPTER XX.

THE three of them stood there, stunned, Dulcy, utterly limp, leaned against Gordon for support, while Forbes glared at the door grimly as though he dared anyone to come in.

The door burst open, and Angela rushed in, glowing with excitement, just as Mrs. Forbes hurried down the stairs to see what all the excitement was about.

Dulcy felt that the very least Forbes could do now, was to pretend to forgive her, no matter what he felt in his heart. She turned to him expectantly.

"Well Angela," he said coldly, "are you married?"

Angela seemed to think it was all a glorious joke, as she nodded. "Yes."

"Then—where is your husband?"

His voice was calm, ominously calm.

"Answer me, Angela," he ordered grimly.

Bill came in the door smiling as if he, too, shared Angela's glorious joke. With a confident nod at Gordon and Dulcy, he strolled over to Forbes. But there was just one thing Forbes wanted to know, one person at whom he wanted to explode.

"Where is Leach?"

Angela passed off his vicious question with a shrug, and Bill seemed as little interested in his whereabouts. It was some time before Forbes could puncture their smiling composure enough to make them explain.

Angela Explains

"It was just the most romantic thing that ever happened," Angela twittered gaily, keeping everyone in an angony of suspense. "Bill kidnaped me."

"It was like this," Bill explained. "We started from here together last night, and down the road a little way it occurred to me that my tail light might have gone out. I stopped and Mr. Leach was kind enough to get out to see that everything was all right. Well—"he added as if that explained everything. "Suddenly the car started. So I tossed his suitcase out to him and told him good-bye. From the way he yelled, I don't believe he will care much about seeing me again."

Forbes drew a long sigh of relief. He put his arm around Bill paternally and beamed on him and Angela.

"Very clever, my boy. I always said I liked you."

"I sent Bill along with them," Dulcy edged in, delighted at the turn events had taken.

It had been a day of surprises for Forbes, and he was prepared to believe anything now. He saw Dulcy through entirely different eyes. He wondered why he had disliked her so yesterday. Why she was a lovely girl, a beautiful girl! You'd never think to look at her that she was so clever.

"So this is what you were working for, really, when you pretended to be in favor of that fool of a Leach," he told her, marveling.

Takes Credit

Dulcy was willing to claim credit for anything; it was such a relief to be praised.

"You don't understand women very well, Mr. Forbes," she began, when the kitchen door behind them was flung open and they all turned to see Perkins walk smilingly in.

"Perkins!" Dulcy exclaimed, as startled as if he were a ghost.

Paying no attention to the others, Perkins strode straight toward her, holding out Angela's pearls.

"Here are your pearls, Miss" he said confidentially. "I found them up in your closet, and I didn't think they were safe with a lot of funny looking people around here."

"But Perkins"—Dulcy couldn't help chuckling at his suspicions of the others—"Where did you go last night?"

"To the probation officer's," he told her in surprise. "When I came here to work I told you I had to report to him once a week and you said that would be all right, I could drive over to Middletown Friday night and come back as early as I could Saturday morning. And this is as early as I could get back."

Perkins seemed a little hurt that she hadn't remembered, but Dulcy's beaming smile of gratitude would have made him forgive anything.

As Dulcy clasped the pearls around Angela's neck, she was thinking fast. She mustn't make any mistakes now. What was that old saying that always seemed so wise to her. "A slip in time saves nine stitches" or something like that.

Forbes Is Satisfied

"Think of Angie being a married woman," she chattered, feeling that she was just on the verge of a great inspiration, "and Willie a married man. We're all sort of one family now, aren't we? And Mr. Forbes, you know, sixteen and two-thirds per cent isn't very much to offer a close relation—a son-in-law's brother-in-law!"

Forbes was in a mood to grant anything. He might even have been willing to play bridge with Dulcy at this moment, if she had suggested it.

"Well—" he began, "perhaps I wasn't very generous about that deal of ours. What do you say to coming in with me for 20 per cent?" he asked Gordon.

Gordon would have jumped at the chance, but Dulcy repeated in a tone of abject disappointment, "Twenty?"

"Well, say twenty-five, then." Forbes offered, hoping to clinch the deal and forestall any further bargaining by Dulcy. Women ought to keep out of business affairs.

"That satisfies me," Gordon broke in, before Dulcy could interrupt.

"Well—" Dulcy thought it over for a minutes, and then added, "if it satisfies Gordon—"

He crossed over to her, and clasped her in his arms, as the others quietly stole away.

"I didn't mean to interfere, dear," she whispered. "I never will again. I always say—"

But it was a time for kisses, no promises.

Dulcy's kisses were better than her promises, anyway.

THE END.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Underweight Child Is Sick

MANY children go listlessly about, behind in their school work, burdened more than they should be by long hours of study and home work. In consequence they are unfit to do any task with profit and pleasure.

DR. COPELAND

How about your child? Has his school report shown him behind in his studies? Does he seem tired and disinterested in what is going on around him? Is he underweight?

This question of underweight centers about a good many contributing causes. Perhaps the first thing to consider is whether or not he has any physical defects. Nobody but a doctor can tell you that. The child should have a thorough physical examination.

A healthy child is usually a happy one. Such a child should be able to maintain his school standing, and in later life to make his way in the world. Without good health, this is an impossibility.

If your child is underweight he is a sick child. He must be kindly and firmly taught the right habits of living, of eating, sleeping and recreation.

Any physical defects should be corrected. That goes without saying.

At midday, after his luncheon, he should have an hour of rest in bed, in a dark room, sleeping if possible.

The child needs plenty of out-of-doors; in fact, he should be outdoors every minute of daylight after school hours. He must have fresh air and sunshine, all that is possible. Nothing will bring him back to health so quickly.

As he gains in weight and strength, he will of his own accord get enough exercise in play. Soon his appetite should return, his eyes grow brighter, and, as his physical vigor grows, so, too, will his mental powers increase.

After all, health comes first of all in importance. The underweight child must be considered as a sick child. He should not be found fault with, but firmly and kindly guided in right living habits. When his day has been reorganized, and he has had time to build up his bodily functions, it will be worth untold riches to have him again in good health. It will be a joy to know that his depleted condition has been turned into one of sound bodily vigor.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Formal Costumes for Men and Women.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. My sister says that when a girl wears an evening gown, it is correct for a man to wear a dark business suit if he so desires. I do not think it is correct. I think a Tuxedo should be worn, as this is considered formal dress.

2. My sister also says that in a musical revue, which is to take place within a few weeks, the girls are to wear evening dresses and that it will be proper for the men to wear business suits. I think Tuxedo suits should be worn. Who is right?

MRS. C. G.

A BUSINESS suit is out of place and most inappropriate with an evening gown. An evening gown presupposes formality, and for formal wear the tail-coat is correct. The Tuxedo suit isn't really "considered formal dress," dear friend, but is of a distinctly informal nature. The tail-coat is formal—with white waistcoat and white tie.

2. The men would look absurd in the revue if they wear business suits when the girls wear evening dresses. If the scene is a strictly formal one, the men would wear tail-coats, and if not so formal dinner jackets.

Where the Lady Pays Her Own Way.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct to accept the offer of a young man friend to pay your train fare, when you have just entered the car alone, and he came and sat beside you? I have known him for some time, but he is not a close acquaintance.

2. Will you please comment on my handwriting and letter paper? I THANK YOU.

UNDER the circumstances that you set forth, the best form demands that you pay your own fare. It is quite natural for the young man to suggest that he pay your fare—although a man who took most strict account of form would not do so—but he will respect you and know you to be right if you thank him for his offer, and pay your own fare.

2. Your handwriting and letter form are excellent, except that it is better form not to abbreviate the names of states and months in the heading of a letter. Your letter paper is good as to color and texture, but, for your handwriting, it would seem to me that it would be better for you to have paper a bit larger.

"Chief" Disappears.
"The Chief" has disappeared again. How, where and when are the questions that are perplexing Jimmy Otis and his companions.
Adventuring on San Muradon, capital of Paradon, the mythical Central American republic where they have gone to end a revolution, Jimmy Otis, Secret Service Agent McCarthy and Rowley Parker surround "The Chief" in a tower of the President's palace.
But not for long. By the time they get the doors open he is gone, and other than the assurance that he will show up again his whereabouts are a complete mystery to everyone.

Handcuffing the Static

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

ONCE upon a midnight dreary we turned in on the quivering horizon and located a string of good old southern profanity as long as a crocodile's spine.

"Bugs" Baer

They were real cuss words like you learn in college. Language like that is not permissible outside of banking hours.

It remained for Senator Dill, of Washington, to protest against this nocturnal deluge of drawling billingsgate. It put Senator Dill in a pickle.

He regards it as an usurpation of the congressional franking privilege.

Thanks to the Rocky Mountain News we learn that the bad-tempered broadcaster is a young fellow named Henderson who distributes his rough valedictories from a 10,000-watt garage in Shreveport, La.

Mr. Henderson gets thousands of letters boosting and panning. If you disagree with him he frys you with 10,000-watt oaths.

We envy the grouch who can drive up to your front door in a 10,000-watt vehicle and unload a disgruntled encyclopedia in your lap. It certainly beats drinking tea out of a saucer, dunking a herring in mustard and knocking the government.

Not that Mr. Henderson ever got too manly. He limits his raps to one-syllable words and never really gets out of the kindergarten class. Nevertheless, Dill of Washington seems to think Mr. Henderson is guilty of impersonating a Senator.

The average man has seven or eight spots every day in which a 10,000-watt station would assist him in winning arguments. Even Rudy Vallee's megaphone would be of some assistance.

Your feeble voice isn't much good around the house unless it is picked up and augmented by General Electric. It would be educational as well as amusing if every back-fence argument was decorated by a national hook-up.

They say that you cannot pull a word back that has once been spoken. In that case, why not shoot the works and let everybody hear it?

Since Senator Dill got after Mr. Henderson the congratulatory introductions have been restricted to goshdarns and beeswaxes. Sometimes, an indignant subscriber is tabulated as low-down and pusillanimous, sway-backed and hatchet-chinned. But another Lousiana gentleman was using that mild language in the old days when he had copper toes on his first boots.

We consider that Senator Dill is engaged in the unconstitutional process of the restriction of free Louisiana speech. He is going to ruin the next Shreveport political campaign if the candidates are forced to merely point at each other and gargle.

Again?

Men don't understand, and some women are so helpless. Each month they suffer untold pain, though those times could be entirely painless. Midol will make the periodic process peculiar to women an incident, yes, even for those who have always experienced prolonged suffering! Try Midol, anticipate your time and avoid all misery or even discomfort. Or take it when the pain is at its height, and feel at ease in five to seven minutes. Midol is not a narcotic; acts directly on organs affected. Fifty cents, metal case.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of bite. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

"I SENT our engineers from coast to coast . . . and made them PROVE their amazing claims"

WHEN they tried to astonish me with the performance of the new Model 589 at our own factory I only laughed at them. They were told that tests in our own laboratories meant nothing to anybody but us and we didn't care how it acted here. What I wanted to know was how it performed in Florida, Canada, in Portland, Maine and Dallas.

W. Parks
President—General Manager The Sparks-Withington Company

I sent them out, and they took that instrument into twenty states. They tested it in hotel rooms and in university laboratories, in city apartments and suburban bungalows, in zero weather in Northern Canada and in sunshine and rain in California. They placed it side by side with every other well-known radio made. The data they brought back . . . hundreds of pages of it . . . forms one of the most remarkable volumes ever written on radio.

So NOW, when we say that the new Sparton sets a new high mark of radio value and performance, we mean just that, because we KNOW. We know that Radio's Richest Voice and FACE-TO-FACE REALISM have been preserved with all their thrilling beauty in the lowest priced Sparton console ever made. We know that we are offering one of the most remarkable distance-getters ever built. We know that its ability to cut through high-powered local stations to far-away outside points has amazed radio experts from coast to coast, and that it holds thrills for owners beyond even their hopes.

This is Sparton's 10th Anniversary Year

We have accomplished our aim of bringing Sparton reception . . . true music . . . within the means of every home, and we are proud of the result. We want you to hear it . . . and to judge for yourself. Our dealers everywhere are waiting to welcome you. Accept this invitation to hear Radio's Richest Voice in the new Sparton Model 589.

STOCK PRICES AGAIN TURN DOWNWARD

Collapse of Commodities Unsettles Share Market After Show of Strength

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A fresh collapse in wheat and cotton prices to new low levels for the season, coupled with a sharp break in rubber futures, unsettled the stock market again today after an early interval of strength which was featured by a brisk demand for the public utilities and a selected assortment of specialties. Early gains of 1 to 3 points were quickly cut down or wiped out, and by early afternoon the general market was reactionary, losses of 1 to 5 points being scattered over a broad list.

A firm opening of the commodity markets provided the background for the early recovery in stocks, with buying also influenced by a series of favorable dividend and earnings reports. The break in March wheat to $1 a bushel, or nearly 4 cents below Monday's close, together with the decline of about $1.50 a bale in May cotton, which sold below 15 cents a pound for the first time this year, started a renewal of selling pressure against stocks.

WATCH COMMODITIES

Wall street apparently was paying more attention to the commodity tickers than it has at any time in recent years, many speculators temporarily switching their activities to the grain and cotton markets in an effort to catch the swings. Commission houses reported a large increase in new accounts in their commodity departments, particularly on the part of so-called amateur speculators.

Some of the early selling in steel shares was based on unconfirmed reports that the recovery in the industry had been checked and that a slight falling off in operations was likely, although few traders expect a decline of long duration. The Boston and Maine Railroad resumed dividends on the common stock at the rate of $4 a year for the first time since 1913. Remington Rand directors authorized their first payment on the common since October, 1927, and an initial dividend was declared on Neisner Bros. common. The Texas Corporation and Neisner Bros. reported larger income for 1929 than in the preceding year, although the per share earnings in each case were smaller because of the large capitalization.

PRESSURE RENEWED

A renewal of selling pressure against Simmons Company carried that issue down more than 4 points to a new low level for the year below $63 a share, which contrasts with a high of $188 last year.

Atchison, New York Central and International Harvester sold down 3 to 4 points. Auburn Auto dropped 5, Bullard Company 5½ and J. I. Case 6¾.

U. S. Steel common after selling above 180, sagged below 177. Consolidated Gas, May Department Stores and A. M. Byers also sold down 2 points or more while a long list of others, including American Telephone, Westinghouse Electric, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and St. Paul preferred sagged a point or more below yesterday's final quotations.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The curb market drifted about uncertainly in dull trading today. The utilities were fairly well supported, but failed to attract aggressive operations for the rise. A few specialties sold moderately higher, but on the whole, other groups were inclined to sag. Several industrials slipped to the year's low levels in trading of nominal volume.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Wall street had no "office" buildings [illegible] dwellings used as [illegible] And, of course, there were no elevators; the first appeared when the Drexel Building was erected on the site of the present J. P. Morgan Building. The president of the Swaddling Stock Exchange, Braxton Ives, did business in the drawing room of a brown stone house at Broad and Wall (below Tobey & Kirk's office) where the stock exchange now stands.

Brokers then went the rounds of their customers to get business. And then, as now, a man's word was accepted as implicitly as his bond when a transaction was entered into. When a customer welched on a deal made by word of mouth with one of the Wormsers, the latter sent him this letter:

"Who buyed from me $25,000 New York Central 3s at 110?

"You did.

"Who agreed to take them reggler?

"You did.

"Who didn't take them regler?

"You did.

"Who a dirty thief and liar?

"Yours truly,

"J. WORMSER."

The Wormser brothers agreed never to ride together in the same elevator lest it fall and kill them all! When a friend expressed the hope to one of them that he (Wormser) would live to be a hundred, the reply was: "Why should God take me at par when He can get me at 70?

WALL STREET'S recent panic was no fledgling, but Mr. Tobey recalls that when GARFIELD SHOT Assassin Caught came over the ticker in 1880 the market suffered a terrific shock. Nor did it quickly recover.

Henry Clews was about the first to install a telephone in his his office, not far from Tobey's. "They used to yell on loudly," says Mr. Tobey, "that all the neighbors kicked as much as neighbors sometimes kick now about the other family's radio. No business that was very private could then be done by telephone."

WE HAVE traveled some since then.

THE CONQUEST OF Nature . . .

Valleys are bridged, mountains are tunneled, rivers are dammed. Thus are the natural obstacles to human advancement surmounted. Victory in the conquest of nature is achieved by infinitely skillful planning and careful calculation. Humanity owes a debt to the engineering profession for the great works which have speeded civilization toward its goal. Because of the tremendous extent of basic industrial activity in the Pittsburgh District, this city is especially fortunate in having an unusually large number of engineers. Many of them are depositors at the Mellon National Bank where their accounts are always welcome regardless of size.

OIL PROMOTERS CONTINUE ON MAIL DRIVE

Make Precise Prophecies As to Profits in Drive To Sell Their Stock

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Undismayed by the cut in oil prices which has discouraged public buying of the Standard Oil securities, the promoters of the Universal Oil and Gas Company, of Oklahoma City, continue their active campaign to sell pre-organization memberships through the mail.

Where more conservative financiers fear to tread, they are unabashed in making precise prophecies as to the profits that outsiders will make if they enroll under their banner. Since alluding to the pre-Christmas offering in this column, I have been stricken from the sucker list, but readers keep me informed of the new appeals.

Toward the close of last week a reader near the financial center received a follow-up from the cordial Garfield Crawford, executive vice president, organization board, of Universal Oil and Gas.

Eschewing the personal greetings which characterized previous letters, Mr. Crawford sticks close to business matters this time, saying: "You can now see that in justice to those who joined Universal Oil and Gas at an early date, the price of membership must be increased with the large growth in the present value of our properties.

"We are negotiating for the taking over of a new refining process which will require the expenditure of several million dollars during the next several months, also we have a heavy development program scheduled. But for the purpose of raising additional capital quickly, we are extending the time for a few more days to those who may wish to take advantage of the $20 price. We are doing this for the benefit of those who can see and appreciate an opportunity. You are actually buying, in our opinion, a $100 value for $20."

PREDICTS BIG PROFITS

Elsewhere in the letter, the prophetic Mr. Crawford says, "We have told you that Universal Oil and Gas memberships should go to $50 or $100 each in the near future."

Possibly as an interested insider Mr. Crawford has an unconscious bias.

For myself, I am old fashioned in this matter. With the immediate statistical position of the oil industry what it is, I am not at the moment greatly enthusiastic over the near term outlook of any oil stocks, but, if any of my readers are, I think that they will be wise if they concentrate on the highest grade securities of the established oil companies, such as Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of California, Texas Corporation, and Shell Union. Those who act on this suggestion can perhaps wait at least for Universal to become incorporated, and to show a longer operating experience. The Rockefellers and other successful oil executives have learned the wisdom of Shakespeare's observation that good wine needs no bush.

One of the talking points in Mr. Crawford's letter is the fact that former Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, of New York, made a report on the property. Since Mr. Crawford dictated the letter, Mr. Enright has testified on subpena before Deputy State Attorney General Richard Sherman, of New York, on this matter. Mr. Sherman said that Mr. Enright admitted that he had signed letters extolling Universal Oil & Gas, although he had made no careful investigation of its financial status or legal rights. Mr. Enright testified further that he did not know that his letters had been used in circulars to promote the sale of memberships. He did add, however, that he was proud of his association with members of the "organization board" and indicates that he had put his own funds into the property and advised friends to do so.

SPECULATION VS. GAMBLING

Thomas Nixon Carver, brilliant economist of Harvard University, takes us gently to task, for a recent criticism of his views on speculation and gambling. Prof. Carver indicates that there is no difference between his view and mine. I wish we were at one, but after re-reading his contribution to the Atlantic Monthly, I still find myself partially in disagreement. This issue is timely, in view of a general tendency to confuse the terms—speculation, gambling and investment, especially on the part of politicians. From my viewpoint, the distinguishing point between speculation and gambling is that speculation deals with business risks, which are unavoidable, and that gambling deals with non-business risks, which may be avoidable. Prof. Carver goes most of the way with me, yet he characterizes as gambling some types of transactions on the stock exchange which, from my viewpoint, constitute speculation, albeit reckless, uninformed, uneconomic or perhaps even harmful speculation.

Prof. Carver says, for example, "The whole organization of the stock exchange is so designed as to make it as easy as possible for men to gamble." Referring to certain types of short selling, Prof. Carver points out "he (the short seller) is to be judged precisely as other gamblers are to be judged, for he is nothing else. The same may be said of the long buyer who merely puts up a margin for the purpose of betting on the market and not for the purpose of buying and paying for what he buys."

These distinctions are not of purely academic significance. The able Carter Glass, senator from Virginia, takes the view that 95 per cent of the transactions on the stock exchange represents gambling, and he formulated a bill to put a special tax on stocks held for less than 60 days.

There is nothing to be gained, however, by a confusion of terms. Buying for the rise, whether on margin or for cash, represents speculation, not gambling, in my opinion. Whether it is beneficial either to the individual or to society is of course another question.

Peoples-Pgh. Trust Co. Reports Earnings

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company reported net earnings applicable to dividends after all charge-offs and reserves for 1929 of $1,851,156. This was equivalent to 36.12 per cent on the capital stock of $5,125,000 or to $7.22 a share on the stock of $20 par value.

The statement showed surplus of $14,000,000 and undivided profits of $735,546, making the total of all invested capital $19,860,546 on which earnings represented a return of 9.32 per cent. The bank paid $1,024,981 in dividends during the year. This included a stock dividend of $125,000.

One of Hundred Largest Banks

THE annual report which was signed by J. H. Hillman, Jr., chairman of the board, A. C. Robinson, president, and L. H. Gethoefer, vice president and chairman of the executive committee, says:

"The year 1929 was an exceptionally interesting and active one for your company, and we are glad to say was marked by continued growth and development. The outstanding event of the year was the merger in September with the Pittsburgh Trust Company, resulting in combined deposits of $56,159,196 and total resources of $77,923,569. This merger was in line with the marked economic trend of merging banks into larger and more effective units. The union of two long established companies with honorable records for conservative yet progressive management was most successfully carried out, and makes the combined institution still more conspicuous as a leader in all financial business. The increase in deposits places your company among the one hundred largest banks in America.

Joined Federal Reserve

"DURING the year your company joined the Federal Reserve System. The growth in all lines of our banking business made this a wise move and we have found the new facilities of great advantage, besides permitting greater freedom in adding new business.

"The merger makes exact comparisons of operations and condition with the previous year impossible.

"The capital was increased $1,000,000, exchanged for stock of the Pittsburgh Trust Company, and $125,000 by stock dividend of 2½ per cent paid at Christmas, making the capital outstanding at December 31, 1929, $5,125,000.

"Trust funds were $111,052,202, an increase for the year of $17,871,087, showing a good increase above the amount brought by the Pittsburgh Trust Company of $8,566,030. Life insurance trusts, of which we have a large total, are not included in these figures."

Associated Banks

THE Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company has large investments in other banking organizations. The group has become known as the Associated Banks. The report states that all of these had a very prosperous year and that the net income received by the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company on its investment in the stocks of these banks fully justified their acquisition. Equities in the undistributed earnings are constantly increasing the intrinsic values of these investments. The banks in the group are mutually helpful in securing business.

The Associated Banks form the second largest group in this city. They have 176,200 accounts. Their consolidated statement shows deposits of $156,574,684 and total resources of $202,920,731. Consolidated capital amounts to $12,375,000, surplus to $21,775,000 and undivided profits to $2,668,627.

The Associated Banks affiliated with the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company include the First National Bank at Pittsburgh, East End Savings and Trust Company, Oakland Savings and Trust Company, Peoples Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Metropolitan Savings Bank and Trust Company, Dormont Savings and Trust Company, Terminal Trust Company and the Squirrel Hill office of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company.

'Not So Good,' Legge Says About Wheat

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Hope that the wheat surplus problem would be solved before the advent of the winter wheat crop in June, was voiced by Chairman Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, in a statement here. He termed the drop of wheat to $1.04 in Chicago as "not so good" and said no one can tell whether the bottom had been reached.

"Anything is possible," he said when asked whether the stabilization corporation would go beyond co-operatives in purchase of wheat should the price continue to fall.

Portland Gasoline Dealers Cut Prices

PORTLAND, Feb. 25.—Gas price cutting has developed here with between 25 and 30 local service station operators reducing gasoline 3½ cents to 18½ cents a gallon, one cent above wholesale price.

Reserve Member Bank Loans Show Sharp Recession.

SHRINKAGE in security and commercial loans, most emphatic in the latter bracket, offset by substantial increase in investment holdings of government securities, constitute the principal changes in this week's condition report of member banks in the reserve. These compensating changes left a net decrease of $16,000,000 in the total of loans and investments of the institution as compared with a week ago. Loans on securities were cut by $13,000,000 and advances for commercial purposes by $61,000,000, while holdings of government securities, due principally to an increase of $52,000,000 among banks in the New York district expanded by $64,000,000 in the aggregate. Indebtedness to the regional banks increased by $1,000,000 to $186,000,000.

While there was evidence of selling in Consolidated Gas as the general market weakened today, report has it that the buying for the last week or more has been of the best character. The stock has been under steady accumulation, according to those who have followed the buying closely, and there are indications that it may be for the account of one of the larger utility holding corporations. At any rate the buying is credited to brokers who generally act for powerful banking interests, the latter being closely affiliated with the Niagara Hudson Power Corporation. It is expected ultimately that Consolidated Gas will be a part of a state-wide consolidation of utilities.

AMONG the specialties selling continues in Simmons Company, and not all of it is professional, according to those who are closely watching the stock. They point out that the company is faced with the problem of realizing greater earnings on operations to justify higher prices for its shares. New properties were acquired and this necessitated the creation of new indebtedness. Some interests are of the opinion that returns from these new acquisitions have not as yet justified their purchase price.

Another of the so-called "blue chip" outfits scheduled to release its annual statement in the near future is Allied Chemical and Dye. Today the directors declared the regular quarterly preferred dividend and doubtless discussed the results of last year and the outlook for the future. Since its incorporation more than nine years ago there has been a constant growth in the earnings of Allied Chemical and a continuation of this record is understood to have taken place last year. Earnings are estimated to have been around $12 a share compared with an annual common dividend requirement of $6.

FURTHER evidence of the progress made in the rehabilitation of New England's railroads is found in today's action of the board of directors of the Boston and Maine Railroad Company in resuming dividends on that road's common stock after a lapse of 17 years. Today's payment at the rate of $4 a share annually marked the first distribution by the road since 1913. New York, New Haven and Hartford is perhaps the chief beneficiary of the dividend resumption by reasons of its large interest in the road held through the Boston Railroad Holding Company, which the New Haven controls through stock ownership. The holding company has an almost 30 per cent stock interest in the Boston and Maine.

Several oil companies reported their results for 1929 during the day. The largest of these was the Texas Corporation, which reported net income of $48,318,072 after charges, reserves and federal taxes, equivalent to $5.12 a share on the average amount of stock outstanding during the year, compared with net of $45,073,879, or the equivalent of $5.56 a share on a smaller average amount of stock outstanding in 1928. The Phillips Petroleum reported net equal to $5.39 a share for last year as against $2.48 a share in 1928. The trading fraternity, however, is more concerned with the outlook for this year than with results for the previous year. Thus the figures carried little market influence.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Steady Worker

JEAN ANDREWS had high ideals.

There wasn't much flightiness about Jean. Long ago she had changed the "Jane" to Jean, but this was because so much slang was used in which nit-witted young men called all girls "Janes."

Jean worked in a fiction place, where a galaxy—no, they were not brilliant enough for that—a flock of magazines were published.

Jean was in the business office. She would have liked to be a reader, but the girl who can keep books, work in shorthand and keep chaos out of a filing case receives something like twice as much as readers.

Therefore Jean was sensible.

A great many young men would promptly declare, when told that a girl had high ideals and was sensible, that they weren't interested. They would visualize a cold, colorless, spinster type of girl.

Any young man putting Jean Andrews in that category would have the laugh on himself.

And she was just as loving and human and normal as any nice girl should be.

A great many young men became interested in Jean.

Ted Hackett, whose father was owner of the publishing house where Jean worked, had asked her, probably a score of times, to go out with him—revue, dance, night club—anything.

"Thank you ever so much, Mr. Hackett," she would say, "but it would bore me—I'm not interested."

The amazing thing about Jean is that she is not interested in wealthy young men.

I know that many readers will snort and exclaim, "A girl not interested in rich young men? There's no such a critter!"

But they would be mistaken.

Jean Great Reader

Jean read a great deal—she read all the modern stories, serials about "Hot Lips" and "The Great Urge," and all such stuff. She thoroughly detested the characters of young men who loafed and danced and flirted with poor girls and cut up generally.

Jean wrote quite a lot of fiction. She used several pen names.

It brought her extra pin money—two cents a word for a 5,000-word story was good for several such dresses as Jean wore.

A remarkable thing about Jean's stories was that all of her villains were rich and idle young men. All her heroes were steady working men.

Jean adored a steady worker.

Charlie Phelps in her office was a steady worker. He was always on time. He saved his money, he invested some carefully and he was good looking.

The only drawback with Charlie, so far as Jean could see, and which was sufficient, of course, was that Charlie had been married for five years and there were two youngsters.

But you get the idea.

"Bart" Wilson, who had known Jean from childhood, wanted to marry her. Bart's uncle left him stacks of money. Bart promptly quit working in an architect's office. From then on whatever plans he made had to do with having a good time.

Jean would never, never marry Bart. She would never, never marry any rich young man!

When Jean sold her first serial, sixty thousand words, and had another ordered, she decided that she could afford better clothes. Jean, in five years, had saved four thousand, but she wouldn't have touched a penny of that.

So she began to appear in modish clothes. One has no idea how these clothes, and the beauty parlor, enhanced her looks.

"Sweet mama," Ted Hackett said. "Jean, you are a pip; you are the queen pip of all the pips—what a swell time we'd have doing Europe, Ostend, Riviera, Monte Carlo—how people would stare at you and envy me. Come on, Jean, be sensible—let's hop out and get spliced and then hop off for Europe."

Not Interested

Ted would have done it. He could afford it, Jean said. "Now, Mr. Hackett, it would bore me—I'm not interested."

Ted gave up, for the time being.

Jean's second serial followed this particular proposal and it hinted a little of Ted Hackett and herself in that she switched the usual order of things.

Her hero, as usual, was a steady worker, an estimable young man.

Her heroine was a cute little butterfly of a girl who was immensely wealthy. Her wealthy girl she made to fall in love with her poor steady-working hero. Hero would not beau Miss Flighty around, it kept him from his sleep and he had to be on the job. Hero told Miss Flighty to stop spoofing him when she confessed that she loved him. Through thirty chapters the serial ran. Finally Miss Flighty scorned the rich youth who almost won her on the rebound, she went into settlement work, met young Mister Steady Worker, convinced him of the change in her, and so they were married.

Jean thrilled in writing it.

A lot of young men said "applesauce" when they read it but many a girl sympathized with Miss Flighty and were happy when she "got her man."

Walks to Office

Every morning Jean walked from her home in the Fifties, just off the avenue, down to the office. She reached the office at a few minutes before nine.

Almost every morning, anywhere from five to seven, Arthur Vardon landed at the Strayer's Club—an exclusive organization of wealthy men, mostly from twenty to forty.

Arthur was almost always sober. If he weren't, few would suspect it. He had a room at the club. He would get out of his evening clothes, get into a shower and then into a neat business suit.

Almost every morning shortly after nine he was supposed to show up at the offices of the Vardon Estates, except when he was abroad or in Canada or Florida or on the Coast—then an attorney would hunt him up and bring tiresome papers for his signature.

By ten-thirty Arthur Vardon would be in his little bachelor apartment of a mere nine rooms!

His valet would have food for him. Then Arthur would tumble into bed in a darkened room.

By eight that night he would be out in evening togs, ready for anything that turned up—receptions, night clubs, poker games, opera and parties later—anything at all. His valet would gather up spare evening clothes at his club quarters twice a week to keep them cleaned and pressed and a supply at home.

One morning Arthur in his neat business suit was coming down the avenue, headed for the Vardon Estates offices, when he saw Jean.

"Corker!" he said.

Meets Jean

Jean saw him. She had noticed him three previous mornings. She was almost tempted to smile at him; she approved of him.

About a week later Arthur was passing her and trying to catch her eye when a taxi skidded over the curb.

"Look out!" shouted Arthur, springing and grabbing Jean.

Arthur wasn't so dumb, even if he had been at a night club until 6 that morning. Jean was in no more danger from the taxi than the man on the next block. But it was an opportunity!

"Sorry," he said, "afraid the taxi might skid over on you—no telling where they'll land."

"Thank you," said Jean.

Arthur helped her across the intersecting street. They walked down two blocks.

"I work here," said Jean.

"My office is only a block below," Arthur said.

"Er—what—what sort of an office?"

"Why—just estates."

"Real estate must be interesting," Jean declared.

"Anything you do would be interesting," said the gallant Arthur, deeply smitten with Jean's real beauty.

"I write a little fiction—and do office work."

Arthur looked at the doorway. "Ah, the Hackett magazines, eh? What name do you use?"

"Pen names, just now a serial signed Sigfred."

"I'll look it up."

"Oh, it's almost nine—you must never be late on your job," said Jean.

She ran in for the elevator.

Arthur walked down to the offices.

Bought some of the magazines and it was noon before he started his daily sleep that day.

More weeks passed. Three or four times a week Arthur and Jean walked together. He praised her serial.

Likes Steady Worker

"What I like about you, Mr. Arthur," she said—she thought when he said his name was Arthur that it was his surname—"is that you are a steady worker."

"It always pays," lied Arthur.

One evening he took Jean to a theater, a new comedy. He suggested a supper and dancing afterward.

Oh, no—it would mean too late hours, Mr. Arthur, and you mustn't be late at your work."

"Quite true," he said, gravely. So he took her home and then ran around to the Zezzo Club to meet some wild friends and have a night of synthetic gin and synthetic fun.

It didn't seem so much fun. He wished he had Jean with him—no, he wished he were with her at a nicer place.

Later he asked her to see the opening of a new revue.

"No, Mr. Arthur—that would be too expensive. I would rather see the new picture," she said.

He took her. She protested at the taxi, but he insisted. On the short ride to her home he proposed and he did it with sincerity.

"Yes, Mr. Arthur—and I know you can support me because you are such a steady worker."

He had told her that he could support her.

"Jean, don't be angry—it isn't my fault that the Estates office is solely to handle my fortune—I can't help being wealthy," he said.

"Well—this—this is disconcerting—but I love you—and anyone as rich as you who gets up and goes to his office every morning at 9 must be all right—even if you are wealthy you are a steady worker."

He never dared tell her the truth about the Strayer's Club and the fact that he went from the office to his home and to bed.

(All names of characters used in this story are fictitious.)

CHICAGO.—Gangland's code of silence was violated for the first time in Chicago's history when Johnny Genaro, dying gunman, named James Belcastro, indicted bomber. Louis de Lucca and Angelo Lucci as the men who "put him on the spot" last night.

The following imaginary conversation probably ensued—

Belcastro—Well, it just shows that Genaro was a punk.

Louis—Yes, sir—it's getting so you can't trust a friend.

Angelo—What burns me up is that I always figured Johnny was a pal.

Belcastro—It makes a fella discouraged. Isn't there any such thing as honor any more?

Louis—I've got half a notion to not even go to the funeral.

Public Service Commission Fails to Give Us Relief In Cab and Bus Problems—Chance for Courageous Leader

IN THE situation arising from the taxicab strike and the attempts to obtain an equitable bus rate for Pittsburgh, the public has received a very good insight as to how the public service law works to the advantage of the corporation rather than the public.

The Public Service Commission, instead of protecting citizens in the matter of taxicabs and buses, throttles the public and holds it while its pockets are being picked.

If competition were required in the operation of taxicabs, does anyone suppose the cab strike would not have been settled long ago?

OR THAT, if when it is settled, the Public Service Commission will not permit an increase in cab rates sufficient to cover the expense the companies have been put to in their conduct of the strike, so that their balance sheet, at the end of the year, will show a profit of at least 7 per cent despite an overhead that possibly may be inflated in other ways, too?

Does anyone suppose there would even have been a strike had the two principal taxicab companies here, Yellow and Green, remained locally controlled companies AND COMPETITORS? When the Parmelee Transportation Company of Chicago obtained control of Yellow and a working interest in Green there was created a situation that contained no promise of benefit to the public.

The first evidence of this is the fact that for nearly seven weeks Pittsburgh has been without cab service, a lack that never prevailed before this association of interest was consummated.

The Public Service Commission, which has initiative power, has thus permitted the public to be made the goat.

IN THE matter of bus rates and operation, the Public Service Commission has consistently allied itself with the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, another evil of foreign domination of the local transportation field. This company is a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, subsidiary of the Philadelphia Company, subsidiary of the Standard Gas and Electric Company, subsidiary of the Standard Light and Power Company, the control of which is under the H. M. Byllesby organization of Chicago.

Among the recent illustrations of the friendly attitude of the Public Service Commission toward this Chicago controller of Pittsburgh transportation is the Oakmont case. The Allegheny Valley Motor Coach Company, an Oakmont organization, requested the commission to grant permission to run buses from Pittsburgh through Oakmont to New Kensington, with a minimum zone fare of 10 cents, and a total of 50 cents, Pittsburgh to Oakmont.

The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, which asked to operate only to Oakmont, was given a permit.

Its minimum zone fare is 25 CENTS instead of a DIME.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, also an applicant, was permitted to run buses to New Kensington.

The Allegheny Valley Motor Coach Company, with its TEN-CENT zone fare, was politely bowed out of the office of the Public Service Commission. Read that again, "Public Service" Commission!

THE history of Pittsburgh protests against the grasping Byllesby company's buses and the attitude of the Public Service Commission thereto is well known.

When a protest against bus fares is made with the commission the company proposing them is REQUIRED to furnish proof of their fairness.

In order to make a fight on the bus rate in Pittsburgh in general, the Allied Boards of Trade got behind a movement to oppose the 25-cent rate as it applied to a new line to Bellevue.

Instead of requiring the company to furnish the burden of proof, the Public Service Commission virtually put the cart before the horse, by requiring the complainants to present expert data on the matter.

This despite the provision of the law that if such a survey is required it will be up to the COMPANY to have it made.

IN THE face of all of our experience with transportation problems here, and failure of efforts to receive relief from the hand of greed, there is only one conclusion—that the remedy is not in the Public Service Commission, but in legislation.

We need a law in which the rights of the public and of the companies which would do business with it are specifically defined and made mandatory. It must not be so elastic that the whim of any so-called Public Service Commission can be made so obviously opposed to public policy as recent decisions of the Public Service Commission have been.

HERE is a chance for some local law-maker to distinguish himself as a real public servant.

Let him fight for a law that will permit competition among such public utilities as buses and taxicabs. Let us have a law in which it will be impossible for any organization to hold up the public, as the public is held up here in the matter of 25-cent bus fares, while other cities pay ten cents, or less.

We MUST have such a law because under the present statutes, the Public Service Commission refuses to give us relief, which appears to be a matter entirely of its own discretion.

Medical Profession Hurt By Assaults of Journal

The editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association is throwing mud at two fine medical men, Doctors Coffey and Humber, of San Francisco. At the very moment when all the world is praising these two great doctors for their tremendous cancer discovery he smears them with the suspicion of quackery and calls the publication of their work in the newspapers "nothing less than criminal."

Instead of letting the world know that they are TRYING to cure cancer they should have followed the "criteria of geschickter" and keep silent for five years! They should have said nothing and hidden from a world of suffering people the knowledge that they had found a great treasure and brought a blessed hope to men and women.

These two fine doctors, Coffey and Humber, have done nothing wrong. They have never claimed they had a CURE. They have never claimed more than they have accomplished. The newspapers have published nothing that could not be verified in the laboratories of Doctors Coffey and Humber. But great news had broken upon the world and it was RIGHT to publish that news. It would have been wrong to conceal it, even though Dr. Morris Fishbein does not agree. He is the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and if he does not write its editorial he is RESPONSIBLE for them and for this sneering attack on Doctors Coffey and Humber.

He is the same man who thought it was his duty a few days ago to defend dope-dealing doctors and to knife two fine pieces of narcotic legislation now pending before Congress. In another issue of his journal he saw the Porter bills as a terrible menace to the medical profession. Distinguished physicians in every corner of the land were praising these two bills and urging their passage as effective weapons in the fight against dope. But HE scented a "bureaucracy" in Washington, HE saw "despotism" in the offing. HE thought the legislation would impose unfair restrictions on honest physicians and hamper them in the practice of their profession.

The proposed legislation will require no additional paper work or fees from physicians and will not limit the use or amount of narcotics a physician may prescribe in his legitimate practice. But the laws will give the newly created commissioner of narcotics power to deny a license to, or to cancel the license of, a narcotic addict or a doctor, dentist or pharmacist who had been convicted of a narcotic offense.

Is it a menace to the medical profession to cancel the license of a man who has proved himself unfit to dispense drugs? The editorial says no person convicted of a narcotic offense "regardless of how trivial that offense may have been, may ever be licensed under the proposed act."

But would Dr. Fishbein seriously contend that a NARCOTIC conviction is trivial?

He objects to the commissioner's power to cancel a narcotic license and says the burden of proof that he is not an addict shall rest on the physician. But whoever takes the trouble to read the Porter bills will see that the burden lies on the commissioner. He cannot deny or cancel a license arbitrarily, but must give the physician a fair trial in his own locality and the physician may appeal the commissioner's decision to a court of law.

Where is "despotism" in that fair and legal procedure?

And where are commonsense and fair dealing in these two amazing attacks of Dr. Morris Fishbein, who is so fussily ethical that he throws mud at two noble doctors, who are toiling to ease the sad heart of mankind, and attacks honest legislation which will rid the medical profession of its dope-dealing betrayers?

Dr. Fishbein is terribly afraid that the publicity given the discoveries of Doctors Coffey and Humber will harm the medical profession. Why isn't he even more afraid of the damage a dope-dealing doctor will do?

If anything can discredit the medical profession more than degraded narcotic peddling doctors do, it is the editor of a medical journal who assaults the good doctors and defends the evil ones.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

IN the young female catkin of a coniferous plant certain special cells, which we may call "spore-cells," are set aside.

Each of these spore-cells divides and proliferates and produces by its own unaided efforts a special mass of tissues, and in this mass a little cluster of egg-cells is developed.

The spore cells are indeed spores, but they are not allowed to escape from the parent plant; the masses of tissue that they give rise to are female prothalli, reduced and insignificant, which they imbedded in the substance of their parent. The supremacy of the sexless generation is almost complete.

H. G. Wells

In the higher flowering plants, the angiosperms, we can trace the same story, but here the sexual generation is even more reduced. (We would make it clear that our account is a very much abridged one; there is a beautiful series of stages leading from fern to angiosperm and showing the gradual reduction of the sexual generation.)

Now what does all this signify? The earliest and most primitive plants had an alternation between sexual and sexless forms; gradually the former was compressed until in the higher plants it is an unimportant gesture, a little mass of tissue packed away in the ovary or creeping over its top.

Why should this be? Well, as we have seen, the spermatozoa, when they exist, swim towards the ova. And they must have something to swim in.

In dry conditions the spermatozoa are absolutely helpless, as helpless as a fish on land, so that if there is a separate prothallus stage in the life history it must grow in a damp place.

And since the sexless stage sprouts directly out of the prothallus such a plant can never get very far away from moisture.

So that the cutting down of this stage, first the tucking away of the whole process into the moist cracks of a cone on the parent plant and then the elimination of a free spermatozoon altogether, is a process of emancipation from water.

It is quite parallel to the way in which, in all vertebrata above the amphibia, the larval gill-breathing phase of development, is reduced and hurried through in the egg-cell or uterus as the case may be.

In both instances, in higher plant just as in higher vertebrate, a progressive emancipation from water and an adaption to dry land is traceable.

And with the plant just as with the animal, it was the water inhabiting forms which preceded and produced the dry land ones.

5. LICHENS.

And next we must notice a widespread series of curious forms that are really double plants. There are fungi that capture and domesticate other plants, as we domesticate other animals.

It was thought until about the middle of the last century that lichens, the familiar encrusting growths that are found on the trunks of trees, on walls, on rocks, and similar places, formed a natural group of plants, equivalent, for example, to the algae, or the fungi, or the mosses and liverworts.

But, as a matter of fact, they are not single plants at all. If we examine a shred of lichen through the microscope, we find that it is made of two very different kinds of tissue intimately mixed together.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

THEY'RE starting to sell things on instalments in Europe now. Some big American companies are fixing it up so's the Europeans won't have anything to crow about when they hear how many years ahead the American's income has been farmed out.

Well, there was a Swede in Sweden that met a neighbor of his.

"Hello, Peterson," says the neighbor, only he said it in Swedish, "and what a big car you got."

"Yes, it's American, and awful cheap."

"How much?"

"Twenty dollars a month, f. o. b. Detroit."

"Yes, but how much is it f. o. b. right here, and how much is twenty dollars, and how many months do you have to keep paying that?"

"Say!" says Peterson, still talking Swedish, "do you think I was going to ask all them questions of the man from Minneapolis that sold it to me? I ain't going to talk impolite and ignorant to a respectable visitor to our country."

HIS UNPLAYED ACES

By Herbert Kaufman

MR. HYDE, who runs a farm of his own, the Agricultural Department for you, and represents Mr. Hoover's cabinet on the Legge board, as much as says that high taxes, high wages and high interest rates no longer permit us to compete with the cheaper lands and lower overheads of Canada, South America and Australia—the thrift of Scandinavian "butter and egg men"—the Mexican vegetable ranchers' standards of living or the Algerian truck gardeners' 12 months season and limited wants.

The Chinaman can raise two hills of peanuts at the expense we must charge to one. Uruguay and Argentine pampas are manufacturing beef at a fraction of our annually mounting cattle fattening costs.

Russia, India, the Antipodes, Egypt and our South American friends, together with the Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta, are underbidding us, earth over, on breadstuffs.

THE big powers of Europe are developing colonial larders sufficient for all national needs. And the little states, yonder, have immemorably been contented with the subsistence peculiar to the neighborhood. Italy, France and Spain have oil to sell, not buy. The Balkans, in more senses than one, are huge hog pens.

The Belgian and the Hollander find everything they need in local pastures and waters. Old world goats, sheep and kine are more than ample providers of milk and cheese.

From all of which you can perceive why Mr. Hyde beholds no cure for Uncle Sam's incessant surplus aches, except through sounder farming practice and in the farmer's realization of the sadder plight in which he'll be bogged, unless he conforms crop dimensions to current demand.

But this problem involves more of human nature than of economics.

To begin with, we have too much wheat. So has the rest of the universe.

AND the reason why there's too much wheat, is that wheat production is the easiest chore agriculture offers.

It takes less time to raise wheat. The wheat farmer need only work a few months of the year. After his ground is plowed, harrowed and seeded, sunshine and rainfall take charge of the job and leave him free until harvest arrives. This affords opportunity to play a few other strings. But of late years, the wheat specialist has stubbornly harped on the grain tune—he keeps planting wheat, more wheat, and still more wheat.

When the World War brought him $2.20 guarantee per bushel, he added his marginal strips and woodlot, tore the sod from his paddock and pasture, eternally destroyed its original utility, and since such acreage is usually scrawnier than the rest of his holdings, the inferior yield therefrom has since tended to reduce his general average and income.

SECRETARY HYDE didn't especially direct his warning at the inveterate wheat specialist, but, nonetheless, he has him particularly in mind.

You can stick four legs on corn and send it squealing to the lard kettle and the smoke house. You can use its stalks for silage, or its piths for cellulose and paper. You can transform its starches into sugar and syrup.

You may can tomatoes, fruits and berries and ship your plusage of cotton to explosive plants, rayon mills and celluloid concerns.

But wheat is itself a specialist, and when the flour barrel is brimming over, there is nothing to do but store, pay elevator, resacking, insurance and depreciation charges on the undisposable remainder, gamble on uncertain futures, or organize a political bloc, extort tincup legislation and compel the rest of the country to pay the pipe while you stick to a steadily losing game with all the aces of diversification lying unplayed.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—A psychiatrist discovers that one out of 500 New Yorkers has a pronounced phobia. While the majority are harmless little mental quirks, there are many going about daily tasks with delusions that often border on stark madness.

The city's mighty rush and rumble are blamed for the frazzled nerves and consequent fantasies. Most of these nagging fears are conquered by a complete rest in the country or at the seaside—away from the hullabaloo.

There are thousands of workers who will not accept posts in offices above the third floor of skyscrapers. They have an uncontrollable timidity about elevators and will labor only where they can walk upstairs to their desks. This has kept many men from important jobs.

There are others who will not work high above the ground for still another reason. They are obsessed with the notion they cannot stifle an urge suddenly to jump out a window. Neurologists say there is little danger of them succumbing to such a fear.

Subway and elevated passengers are often victims, too, of a terror of being shut in coaches. Many of them on their way to and from work ride only a few blocks at a time, alight and stretch their legs along station platforms and continue by easy stages to their destination.

One of Wall street's keenest market manipulators cannot eat a meal without being frightened over the danger there are slivers of glass in his food. He masticates each bite carefully in cafes and at home eats and drinks only from metal vessels.

Then there are the "touchers." In walking along the streets they are curiously drawn to some object in their path—perhaps a window pane, a post or a door-knob—and are unable to pass without pressing a finger to it. Doctors describe most of these phobias as mere "silly fears."

I know a lady who most of her life has felt "fainty." She carries smelling salts and other restoratives and will sit only on aisle seats at the theater so that if necessary she can rush to the open air. Yet she has never swooned in her life. The absurdity of it was illustrated when she discovered a burglar in her home in Westchester. She coolly covered him with a pearl-handled revolver while she telephoned for the police. They arrived to find all the servants huddled in the basement, hysterical from fright.

Fear of the open spaces is still another dread of people who live in the cloister of Manhattan's man-made cliffs. They cannot walk through the broad acres of such places as Central Park alone nor motor beyond the city limits. A doctor tells of one of these victims who was, through a mistake, shunted to a siding on a night's train ride—the sole occupant of a Pullman. He awakened to find himself 15 miles from civilization. He had to walk to a small hamlet, but the spell was broken. He never suffered similarly again.
